Bradley Says Probe Harms Security

Concedes War In Korea Might Just Peter Out

Sen. Tobey Pleads For End To Inquiry

WASHINGTON, May 22 (AP)—Gen. Omar Bradley warned senators today the inquiry into Gen. Douglas MacArthur's ouster may incite Russia to war but he also hinted peace may come to Korea if the Allies smash the big Red offensive now underway.

The five-star General conceded the possibility the Korean fighting might just peter out without a negotiated peace or that the Chinese might agree to peace terms with or without Russia's approval.

Bradley gave these mixed views to the Senate Armed Services and Foreign Relations Committees on the 15th day of hearings into the reasons behind the dismissal of Gen. MacArthur.

Bradley said of the inquiry: "I think it is very harmful to our security and to our country and to our future security to have to pass on to Russia all of our intentions, all of our thoughts, all of our capabilities."

Probe "Demanded By People"

Sen. Cain (R-Wash) suggested the hearings are informing Russia that the free nations will resist aggression "only to a point short of risking war with Russia." And he asked if this might not encourage Russia to start "limited but very destructive aggression" in areas other than Korea.

Bradley replied: "I think that what you say is probably very true, that we are unnecessarily inciting Russia to war—maybe not unnecessarily—but it becomes necessary because of the nature of these hearings x x x.

"I am sorry we have had to do this, but since it is demanded by the people, and is inherent in our form of government, here it is and I just hope it doesn't cause too much trouble in the future."

Bradley declared the present U. N. objective is not to drive the Chinese and North Korean Red armies "clear out of North Korea" although the long range political aim still is a free and unified Korea.

He added: "As far as the military, immediate military objective, is concerned, I think we would consider it a victory with something less than that."

Tobey Urges End To Inquiry

Sen. Long (D-La) drew from Bradley his views on the possible endings to the Korean conflict.

Long said: "Do you think there is some possibility of this war simply petering out around the 38th parallel even without negotiating a peace? In other words, our forces getting back to the 38th parallel, a little below, and the Communists

"FATHER OF YEAR" — Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn), former chairman of the Senate Crime Investigating Committee, yesterday was named "father of the year" by the National Father's Day Committee. (Story at bottom of page)

Demonstrating Iranians Assail U. S. And Britain

Death Of Mossadegh Demanded By Leftists

TEHRAN, Iran, May 22 (AP)—About 30,000 Iranians, waving Moslem religious banners, booed the United States and Britain today at a demonstration threatening a holy war if necessary to nationalize oil.

Sweating under the sun, the crowd went into a frenzy when the black - bearded, black - turbaned Chams Ghanatabadi, leader of the militant Mujaheddin Islam (Fighters for Islam) declared:

"All loyal Moslems will throw the British bandits into the Persian Gulf if they do not leave the country."

Another speaker, Hossein Makki, declared a recent statement by the U. S. Department which the Iranians regard as backing the British stand against nationalization, was "a stab in the back of the Iranian nation."

At an earlier rally, leftists called for the death of Premier Mohammed Mossadegh, who has locked himself in his parliament building chambers since May 14. The leftists engaged in a flurry of fist fights with Mossadegh supporters.

There was an air of crisis in the capital. Police and army officials were on 24-hour alert. Flying squads of truck-borne police and mounted police patrolled the streets. A dozen tanks rumbled into the city this morning.

The mass meeting called by Moslem leaders and Mossadegh's national bloc cheered a resolution which declared "strong hatred" of the United States and Britain.

Britain Drops Immediate Threat Of Using Force

LONDON, May 22 (AP)—Under pressure from the United States, Britain has dropped any immediate threat of using force in the Anglo-Iranian oil dispute.

Informed sources said tonight Britain also has promised to consult fully with the United States before deciding to send troops to Iran even to protect British lives and property.

The change in tactics was made after Anglo-American talks here and in Washington.

Music Teacher Gets Life Term For Slaying

LONG BEACH, Calif., May 22 (AP)—Violet John Berling, 33, was sentenced to life imprisonment today for the torture-murder of her 10-year-old accordion student, Kay Frances Erickson.

Miss Berling, her eyes swollen shut for days by an allergy, sagged as she heard the sentence. She did not faint, as she did many times while testifying during the trial which began last Jan. 3.

U.S. Battleship, Destroyer Hit By Shore Fire

Two Sailors Killed And Dozen Wounded

WASHINGTON, March 22 (AP)—Communist artillery fire from the Korean shore hit the battleship New Jersey and the destroyer Brinkley Bass, killing two men and wounding 12, the Navy said today.

A spokesman added that in the 24 hours since the battleship was hit there has been almost a constant duel between American ships offshore and Red batteries on the land.

One shell hit each vessel, the Navy said, with "no material damage" to the New Jersey and only "minor damage" to the Bass.

The hits were scored on the New Jersey yesterday (Korean time) and on the destroyer Sunday. Both were at anchor bombarding the Red-held port of Wonsan on the Korean east coast when the shells struck. Both slipped anchor and got out of range but the shelling was soon resumed.

The spokesman said that fire from the enemy shore, heretofore rare, has been on the increase for the last five days.

He said the shell which actually hit the New Jersey was not the one which caused the casualties there—one dead and three slightly wounded. He attributed the casualties to a near miss, saying the direct hit was absorbed by the heavily armored No. 1 turret of the battleship's 16-inch battery.

The hit on the destroyer left one dead and nine wounded.

Among the injured aboard the Bass the Navy said one was critically hurt, one seriously wounded, and the other seven only slightly hurt.

The Navy spokesman said ships firing in support of ground forces in Korea usually keep moving. But when the target is a fixed one such as the nine rail and road junctions in the Wonsan area, he said, they sometimes anchor where they have the best field of fire.

The Navy later announced the names of the two killed and nine of the 12 wounded. The names of three men who suffered only minor wounds aboard the battleship were not listed.

Among the wounded was Seaman Clarence S. Godfrey of Baltimore.

2nd Class Mail Rate Hike OK'd

WASHINGTON, May 22 (AP)—A 60 per cent increase in second class mail rates was approved today by the House Post Office Committee. The administration had asked a 100 per cent increase.

Second class mail consists mainly of newspapers and other publications.

The committee action, tentative in that it was in connection with an overall bill on which final action has not been taken, would spread the 60 per cent hike over three years.

The increase would be 20 per cent annually above existing rates until the total 60 per cent boost is attained.

Committee members estimated that the raise would bring in around $8,000,000 the first year, $16,000,000 the second and $24,000,000 in the third and following years. Those figures are based on current revenues of $42,000,000 annually from second class mail.

3 Children Die In Fire

WOOD RIVER, Ill., May 22 (AP)—Three children died today when fire destroyed their trailer home.

The mother, Mrs. J. M. Warren, St. Joseph, Ky., saw the blaze as she was returning from making a telephone call. She suffered a cut wrist trying to break through a window to reach the children.

Tennessee's Sen. Kefauver Is Namd "Father Of Year"

NEW YORK, May 22 (INS)—Sen. Estes Kefauver (D) Tenn., former chairman of the Senate Crime Committee, was named "father of the year" today by the National Father's Day Committee in New York.

The Tennessee Democrat in accepting the award at a Waldorf-Astoria luncheon told the assembled fathers his committee had found that "shipwrecked lives" had led to crime. He said broken homes had been responsible for the shipwrecked lives.

Kefauver, 47, also declared that many underworld figures, including witnesses who had appeared before the crime committee, might have been model citizens.

He said:

"Many of these men, channeled right, would have made great contributions to society. We found they were victims of their own heredity and environment."

Mrs. Kefauver in a brief speech pictured her husband as a "wonder father."

He was presented with a huge chocolate cake which bore the inscription "Dad."

The Kefauvers have four children, Eleanor, 9, David, 5, Diane Carey, 3, and Gail Estes, seven months.

Mother's Prayers Are In Vain

Mrs. Novella Shaddock lifts her hands in prayer for the life of her only child, Tommy, 2, who fell into a fish pond near their Los Angeles home yesterday. But it was to no avail; the lad had already been pronounced dead. Comforting her are Mrs. Aretha Shelton (left), her landlady who recently gave permission to fill in pond and make it a sandbox for Tommy, and Mrs. Jewel Davidson, a neighbor.

Four Lose Lives As Flash Flood Strikes Hays, Kas.

HAYS, Kas., May 22 (AP)—A flash flood swirled into this Northwest Kansas town of 8,000 today, taking at least four lives and driving about half the city's population from their homes.

Several other persons were missing as the roaring waters from Big Creek, a normally docile stream, burst into houses and inundated 75 city blocks at 1:15 a. m. (CST). Workers were searching for more bodies.

Water 10 To 15 Feet Deep

The water was reported 10 to 15 feet deep at one time in the south part of town as hastily organized rescue squads fought against Hays' worst flood. The creek, normally only a foot or two deep in its meandering course at the edge of the city, spread to a mile wide from cloudburst rains before it began to recede. Hays is about 125 miles northwest of Wichita, Kas.

Many persons, clad only in night clothing, fled their homes. Others climbed to second stories or roof tops as Red Cross workers, firemen, volunteer and National Guardsmen manned more than 50 boats to rescue hundreds.

Rescues Dime A Dozen

Heroic rescues were a dime a dozen, City Editor Pat Taylor of the Hays News, reported. One boat loaded with 11 children overturned but all were saved. Two night police patrolmen were credited with saving the lives of dozens of frightened persons.

Fort Hays College, located in the low part of the city, was in the deepest water and the Red Cross reported 120 students marooned in a women's dormitory on the campus. Water was still eight feet deep in some places.

Two persons drowned in the basements of their homes when the walls collapsed.

There was danger of fire as 7,000 gallons of gasoline from a filling station west of the city floated into town on the broiling water.

"Radio Free Europe" Activities Protested

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, May 22 (AP)—Czechoslovakia has protested to the U. S. Embassy here that "hostile activities" have been carried on against the Czechoslovak government by Americans, particularly those responsible for broadcasts of "Radio Free Europe."

The government radio, announcing this today, also charged that a group of "six or seven armed American soldiers in two motor cars" crossed the border from Bavaria into Czechoslovakia, and looked around with field glasses.

(Radio Free Europe is operated by a group of private American citizens. It beams anti-Communist programs to Czechoslovakia in the Czech language.)

Exiled King Peter, Queen Will Work As Press Agents

NEW YORK, May 22 (AP)—Exiled King Peter and his Yugoslav queen are going to work as press agents.

"They are not going to work for a weekly salary or anything like that," explained Roy De Groot, head of a public relations firm here, in announcing today that the royal couple are joining his outfit.

"They will be available on a contract basis for assignments which can utilize their special qualities.

"King Peter has had much experience in mass psychology and in dealing with large numbers of people and his experience can be very useful."

Move To Delay Tax Bill Is Afoot

WASHINGTON, May 22 (AP)—Senate Democratic leaders started a drive today for a summer recess of Congress which would defer until autumn final action on a proposed huge increase in taxes.

Sen. McFarland (D-Ariz), chairman of the Democratic Policy Committee, said decision on such a move would be left, however, to the tax-writing Senate Finance Committee.

He had in mind, he said, a recess from about August 1 to sometime early in October, with the idea of completing action on the measure before the first of the year. He made the announcement after a closed-door meeting with the policy committee.

The House Ways and Means Committee, with which tax bills must originate, is working on a measure which would boost taxes between $6,000,000,000 and $7,000,000,000 a year, in contrast to a $10,000,000,000 increase requested by the administration. The House committee is working toward an increase in personal income taxes effective as of September 1, and a retroactive increase in corporation tax rates.

Israel To Halt Work On Drainage Project

TEL AVIV, May 22. (AP)—Israel will halt work on the drainage project in the disputed Huleh swamp area along the Syrian-Israeli border. Foreign Minister Moshe Sharret so informed Maj. Gen. William Riley, United Nations chief of staff, tonight.

Sharrett's letter followed receipt by the Israeli cabinet today of the U. N. Security Council resolution ordering suspension of the project until Israel and Syria can reach a settlement of their dispute over the demilitarized zone.

1,485 More GIs Home

SAN FRANCISCO, May 22 (AP)—The transport General William E. Mitchell brought 1,485 Army combat veterans home from the Korean war today.

Ferrer Denies Any Red Taint; Was "Careless"

WASHINGTON, May 22 (AP)—Actor Jose Ferrer today confessed himself a "careless" man with his name around Communist - front movements, but vehemently denied he was either a Communist or a Communist sympathizer.

The 39-year-old Puerto Rican-born actor told the House Un-American Activities Committee that many of his publicized associations with red fronts were completely unauthorized, or the result of his political "ignorance."

Won Movie "Oscar"

In most cases, he told the committee, he became associated with alleged subversive groups "through plain stupid carelessness or misuse of my name."

Ferrer said he never publicly repudiated some unsought offices in various front groups "because I didn't know it was bad to be that."

The actor, winner of the latest movie "Oscar," testified in the committee's investigation of Communist influences in Hollywood.

Ferrer spent a full day in the witness chair before being excused to catch a plane back to New York in time to go on stage tonight in his current play "Twentieth Century."

Schulberg To Testify

He was ordered to return for further questioning Friday morning.

Tomorrow, the committee will hear Budd Schulberg, best-seller author of "The Disenchanted" and the early success "What Makes Sammy Run."

Schulberg appears as a voluntary witness after being identified as a one-time Communist Party member in Hollywood by a previous witness.

Explaining how he happened to allow his name to be used as a sponsor of various movements, Ferrer said repeatedly:

"If I had known it was Communist activity, I would never have authorized use of my name."

Folks Of GOP Town Don't Want Truman Impeached

WAKEFIELD, N. H., May 22 (AP)—The folks of this 177-year-old rural community — 1,256 residents — don't want President Truman impeached.

They made their views known at a special town meeting called tonight to vote on the question:

"Should Harry Truman be impeached?"

The answer was 48 against; 17 in favor; 35 not voting.

Only 100 of the town's 795 voters showed up for the unusual meeting called in town hall by a petition circulated by a former Army captain, William N. Sparhawk, Jr., 32-year-old chicken farmer.

Ten signatures were necessary to call the meeting. Sparhawk said 50 residents signed the petition.

The town is Republican by a wide margin.

The vote came after speeches by Sparhawk and an opponent, Edwin P. Geauque, merchandising consultant.

Sparhawk supported his opinion that Truman should be impeached on the charge that "the ship of state is being scuttled and the President is pursuing a policy of appeasement." He said the administration is "rampant with corruption."

Geauque told the attentive audience that the "world has its eyes on our town tonight. The answer to this question depends on whether we will be called screwball or thoughtful people."

Sawyer Wins Stay In Battle For Ship Line

WASHINGTON, May 22 (AP)—Secretary of Commerce Sawyer and eight associates — all held in contempt of court — won an eleventh hour stay today in their fight to retain government control of a $68,000,000 steamship line.

They had been given until 2 p. m. (EST) Thursday to turn over effective control of the American President Lines Ltd., to R. Stanley Dollar and his associates.

If they failed to meet the deadline, the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals here said, they would go to jail for contempt.

Vinson Steps Into Fight

Late today Chief Justice Vinson of the Supreme Court ordered action held up until the government can appeal the contempt convictions. All other proceedings in the intricate case are also stayed pending the Supreme Court review. Attorney General McGrath obtained the order.

Justice Vinson said he intervened because compliance with the Circuit Court of Appeals order would preclude Supreme Court review of the issues.

The Justice Department claims full title to the stock for the government, arguing it was surrendered in return for financial help to the Dollar interests in 1938.

Truman Interested In Case

The Dollar group contends that the stock was put up as collateral, that the government loan has been repaid and they are entitled to return of the stock.

The Court of Appeals ruled for the Dollar interests and the contempt proceedings arose from efforts to enforce its ruling.

President Truman has interested himself in the case. Last Nov. 30 he wrote Sawyer a letter directing him to continue to hold 92 per cent of the line's voting stock. This was before the contempt proceedings.

160 Tons Of TNT Set Off In Utah

DUGWAY, Utah, May 22 (AP)—Army engineers touched off 160 tons of TNT today, the most powerful explosion ever to occur without the use of atomic energy.

The blast sent a cloud of smoke and dust mushrooming into the brilliantly clear sky over desolate Western Utah. Several hundred spectators watched as the cloud billowed up, black in color, then faded to a grey.

"It was beautiful," said L. E. Christensen, resident inspector for the Corps of Army Engineers.

"Everything went off as scheduled. There were no accidents and conditions were ideal."

The explosion was part of the engineers' series of tests to determine the effect of underground blasts on various types of installations.

Engineers refused to say, specifically, what types of installations were tested. Suggestions have been made that structures simulating underground factories and warehouses were used.

The 160 tons of TNT was buried at a depth intended to be approximately the same as the hole that would be made if a bomb, of similar capacity, were dropped.

D'Alesandro Takes Oath

BALTIMORE, May 22 (AP)—Today was inauguration day in Baltimore, but the holiday atmosphere of four years ago was missing.

Thomas D'Alesandro took the oath for his second four-year term as mayor in War Memorial Plaza, opposite City Hall.

Inauguration day in 1947 was a gala one. The city's Italian community set the pace in paying tribute to D'Alesandro.

Enemy Attacks In East Korea, Flees In West

U. N. Tank Column Seizes Changgong

TOKYO, Wednesday, May 23 (AP)—Allied tanks rammed retreating Reds from a strategic city on the Western Korean front late Tuesday while big guns and warplanes pounded a Communist breakthrough in the east.

An armored column captured Changgong, 25 miles northeast of Seoul in the broad Pukhan River valley. Field dispatches reported battalion-sized Red groups were scattered along the west bank of the stream.

Thus United Nations forces hounded the heels of Communists pulling back all along the western and west-central fronts. But U. S. Eighth Army officers cautioned against calling it a rout.

There have been no current instances of U. N. forces overrunning Red manned positions or seizing sizeable amounts of war booty or prisoners, as occurs during a rout, these officers said.

Time Believed Ripe For New Peace Effort

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., May 22 (AP)—Some United Nations diplomats and officials believe that Communist Chinese military reverses in Korea have created a new situation more favorable for peace talks.

They feel the time is ripe for new attempts at peace negotiations with Peiping and the Soviet Union to halt the fighting along the 38th parallel.

These UN. people, who will not talk for attribution, said today the big problem is to find someone who will start the ball rolling and produce a plan which will save face both for the Communists and for the U.N. forces.

Eighth Army kept a wary eye on Reds trying to exploit gains made through a hole in Allied lines between Soksa and Pungnam, some 18 air miles inland from Korea's east coast.

Reinforcements Rushed Up

Reinforcements were rushed up to plug the hole on the right flank of the U. S. Second Division, which shattered the initial phase of the Chinese and Korean Red second spring offensive last week.

The Second Division hurled back several Chinese attacks Tuesday. Some were attempted during predawn darkness. Red losses, already reckoned in the tens of thousands in that sector alone, again were reported heavy.

Eighth Army headquarters estimated between 50,000 and 60,000 Communist casualties were inflicted between May 16, the outset of the second Red offensive, and Tuesday.

Two other attempts by Chinese Communist forces to blast through U. S. Second Division positions about 75 miles northeast of Seoul were bloodily repulsed. B-29 Superforts bombing within 300-yards of American foxhole positions and devastating artillery fire wiped out at least 1,000 attacking Reds. This was about 17 air miles northwest of the scene of the Reds' end-run attempt near Soksa.

Reds Group For New Strikes

With the failure of these jabs at the Second Division, the main body of Chinese broke contact for the time being and pulled back out of range of the deadly American artillery.

Associated Press Correspondent William C. Barnard, however, warned that an estimated 130,000 Communists were being grouped for new strikes along the critical east-central front. They were assembling from Chunchon, 45 miles northeast of Seoul, eastward to Inje, where one week ago the Reds hurled their heaviest concentrated attack of the war. That attack cost the Reds 60,000 or more casualties in five days without winning a decisive breakthrough.

Along the rest of the front—from the Pukhan valley northeast of Seoul on west to Munsan, 22 miles northwest of Seoul—the Reds slowly pulled back for the second straight day.

American, British and South Korean troops hammered hard at the retreating Chinese and gained up to five and one-half miles.

Air Maneuvers Open

PARIS, May 22 (AP)—About 500 warplanes of six Allied air forces open their biggest postwar maneuvers tomorrow to test West Europe's defenses against aerial attack.

Jones Terms Coal Bill Veto By McKeldin As Lame 'Alibi'

For the second time in a week, John T. Jones, president of District 16, United Mine Workers, charged Governor McKeldin with violating a campaign promise in refusing to sign a bill that would allow only Maryland mined coal in state institutions.

Today Jones, head of the local UMW district, termed the Governor's reply to his initial charge as a "lame alibi."

Governor McKeldin's answer last Thursday was that he refused to sign the coal bill because it discriminated against 42 miners of Crellin who work across the state line in a West Virginia pit.

Jones' letter follows:

"My Dear Governor:

"I have no desire to engage in a controversy with you over the purchase of Maryland coal for use in Maryland institutions. You made a promise, you broke your promise, and the men who mine coal in the state of Maryland are the victims of your duplicity. But surely you do not expect the people of Maryland who believed you once, to accept your lame alibi, that to be more than fair to 42 Maryland citizens, who mine coal in West Virginia, you must be more than unfair to 1,600 citizens who mine coal in Maryland. You are asking too much, I assure you.

"Of course we know that politics plays a part in your role as the great equalizer, but how pray tell, could a bill be written providing for the sale of Maryland coal alone or use in Maryland institutions and still provide for the 42 citizens who mine coal in West Virginia. Could it be that a slight brokerage fee of say 25 cents to certain Maryland brokers on every ton of coal purchased had anything to do with the statesman-like decision you reached? If so, I suggest there is no necessity for any fee payment for any purchase of coal in Maryland.

"Could the fact that West Virginia miners work for less money than Maryland miners have anything to do with your Solomon-like decision; does not the fact that Georges Creek and other Maryland coal is much more efficient and has less ash content than does the West Virginia coal purchased, carry no weight in the terrific argument you must have waged with yourself in this momentous and world shaking decision.

"We coal miners don't know these things, Governor, and we are asking. We are a simple people who still believe that to a good American his word is his bond. Be yet politician, businessman or laborer, I suggest that you tell the public the real reason why you double-crossed the coal miners of Maryland."

Spare Parts Autos Help Meet Demand

LONDON (AP) — "New" cars built from spare parts are causing headaches for British auto makers. The patch-up job are done so well that it is frequently hard to tell them from the real thing.

ject to strict rules regarding the re-

British auto sales are still subsale of new cars, which also carry high purchase tax.

But there is no purchase tax on spare parts, and so shrewd operators can pick up a chassis in Newcastle, an engine in Liverpool and keep on travelling until they have all the ingredients of what looks like a new car.

Unwary buyers willingly lay out more than the list price in order to avoid a wait of several years for a new car on the regular market.

SINGAPORE (AP)—The Singapore police force claims to have a "Superman" on its staff. He is Corporal Abdullah bin Ahmad, of the special constabulary.

Abdullah is 28. He is famed for his feats of strength. He is credited with pulling a carload of eight persons with his teeth for a distance of 100 yards with ease. He also lets 14 men—seven on each side—pull a rope tied with a thumb-knot around his neck, has been pictured lifting a load of 320 pounds with his teeth, and pulling out nails hammered six inches deep in wood.

His other reputed feats: Bending iron rods around his neck and arm; breaking an iron chain tied round his body; lying on broken glass and letting a granite be placed on his chest, then hammered to bits.

AP's Gilmore, Back In Soviet Capital, Describes Changes

(This is how Moscow looks to the AP's Eddy Gilmore, back in the Soviet Union after eight months in the United States and France. Gilmore left Moscow last October for a vacation in the United States and then went to work in the Paris bureau of the AP while waiting for the Russians to grant his return visa to Moscow. The visa was granted early this month. A native of Selma, Ala., Gilmore has been stationed in Moscow since 1941. This dispatch was subject to the usual Soviet censorship.)

MOSCOW. —(AP)— Eight months has made a difference in 800-year-old Moscow. The skyline has shot up closer to the heavens. The city is greener and the lights on some streets definitely brighter.

The day's burning topic still seems to be football. The first question a Russian taxi driver asked me as I returned to the Soviet capital after nearly eight months in the United States and Paris was: "Did you hear today's football score?"

There seems to be more interest in football (soccer) than ever before. The season begins May 2 and continues to the first snows of autumn.

The cold war also is a topic. The conference of foreign ministers deputies in Paris, American rearmament, the Atlantic alliance, President Truman, Secretary of State Acheson, the U. S. Congress and the Korean war come in for lively comment.

But certainly there seems to be no war scare here, or among the few Russians with whom I talked at the Leningrad airport.

At the moment, people are making extensive plans for summer vacations. Families are renting dachas (summer cottages) for the season and children are looking forward to the end of the month, when school closes.

There is keen interest in next year's Olympic Games, in which the U. S. S. R. will be a big competitor. (It is the first time for the Soviet Union.)

Each time one returns to the Soviet Union, one cannot help be impressed by the age-old kindness of the Russian people. Customs officials in Leningrad were considerate and quick. When they asked if I did not want a glass of tea in the airport restaurant, I replied that I had no Soviet money in my pockets, and was told: "Oh, that's all right, you can pay for that some other time."

I flew into Moscow under a full moon, in a new silver-colored, twin-engined transport plane. There were constant queries from the co-pilot whether it was too hot or too cold. When we neared the capital, the co-pilot announced: "You'll see Moscow in a few moments just off there. I'll turn off the lights so you can see it better."

My first impression was how the city had grown up in eight months, for now a section of Moscow University is hoisting itself 32 stories into the sky above the Lenin hills; a big office building on Smolensk Boulevard now is almost complete; a 20-odd story apartment building along the Moscow River is going up.

Linden and lime trees which the authorities have been planting here since the war are in full leaf, giving the downtown section and main boulevards an emerald tinge. The Alexandrovsky Gardens beside the Kremlin are as green as Ireland, and Sverdlovsk Square and Pushkin Square look lovely with their central parks.

The huge, rosy stars atop the ancient but refurbished Kremlin towers gleam brightly as ever over the traffic, which is heavier than any time in Moscow's history. The face of the traffic is changing, for the new Zim automobile has taken its place alongside the sleek Zis cars. Zim's name comes from the abbreviation of the Molotov factory, Zis' name from the abbreviation of the name of the Stalin factory.

Of course there are many other changes in the capital. Prices are somewhat lower. There has been much painting and cleaning of buildings.

"Jersey Highball" Favored Says Innkeeper

CAMBRIDGE SPRINGS, Pa. (AP)—With one who knows, it's a Jersey highball two-to-one over other drinks—at least at the Riverside Inn.

"I always have a Jersey highball before I go to bed," says the Inn owner, Francis Parke.

That comes from a native New Yorker and an Army veteran since the days of the Mexican border clashes. Five years ago Parke was retired from active service and came to western Pennsylvania.

Ten years ago he would have asked the recipe for a Jersey highball, which is just a glass of pure rich milk—straight—from a Jersey cow, but Parke found out the hard way when he purchased the 56-year-old inn and became head herdsman for 55 cows thrown into the deal. Incidentally, the Riverside Inn also has a hard liquor bar.

Clue In Ancient Pacific Mystery

WELLINGTON, N. Z. (AP)—Another clue that may some day lead to the clearing up of the mystery of Easter Island, and possibly link the Maoris of New Zealand with the American continent, has been found in a forest near Wellington.

It is an ancient canoe prow of a special type. On the back of the figurehead are carved chevrons similar to those found on the stone statues of Easter Island. Experts here believe the find is of utmost importance.

The significance of the find lies in the support it gives to that group of ethnologists who believe that the original settlers of Polynesia made their way into the Pacific from the American continent and were carried by the Humbolt Current to the islands to the west and south.

A 220-pound aquamarine is the largest gem ever found, says the National Geographic Society.

Better ways to make better products

Every day in the year Celanese Corporation of America puts thousands of dollars into research projects designed to develop new products and processes, to improve manufacturing methods and equipment, and to give better control of quality.

This research is important to every employee and to the communities of which we are a part, for a company can't rest on its laurels and expect to keep ahead of the parade.

Celanese was founded on research which has been carried on ever since. Research activities are now centered at Summit, New Jersey, and at Clarkwood, Texas, but a considerable amount of research and development work is done at various Celanese plants.

At Amcelle, for instance, we're working on a number of important projects, but we don't talk too much about them for the same reason a baseball catcher doesn't tell the batter what pitch he's calling for. We're also doing the "pilot plant" work of expanding laboratory developments into plant production projects.

The money that pays for the Celanese research program comes out of company income. It represents dollars invested in better products for better values, which means security for all. Management recognizes the value of a strong research program, realizing that if you want to keep a company operating you have to continue offering customers a better product for prices they are willing to pay.

Jobs come from customers, and customers are always looking for the best buy. We've got to give it to them—or see orders and paychecks go to competitors that will.

Baseball's Well-Paid Peons

Organized baseball's contentious "reserve clause" will get a thorough looking-over next month, when a House subcommittee headed by Rep. Celler holds hearings on the monopoly status of the national pastime. Celler says the inquiry will be a "friendly" one.

Baseball's most recent tangle with the law ended in a draw. Suspended from baseball for life because of jumping his contract in 1946 to play in Mexico, Danny Gardella, formerly of the New York Giants, sued baseball's big shots for $300,000 for violation of the federal anti-trust laws.

The district court ruled it had no jurisdiction, but the Court of Appeals of the Second Circuit (New York), in a split decision on February 9, 1949, ordered the district court to rule on Gardella's allegations. These were that: 1) the "reserve clause" turns organized baseball into a monopoly; 2) baseball's revenues from radio and television make it interstate commerce and hence subject to anti-trust laws. Judge Jerome Frank said for the Court:

"We have here a monopoly, which, in its effect on ball-players like the plaintiff, possesses characteristics shockingly repugnant to moral principles that, at least since the War Between the States, have been basic in America. . . . For the "reserve clause," as has been observed, results in something resembling peonage of the baseball player."

But in October 1949 Gardella signed a $5,000 contract with the St. Louis Cardinals and settled his suit out of court for a reported $25,000. In June, 1950, the Cardinals made Gardella a free agent.

Baseball's national agreement, covering professional clubs in the U. S., Canada, Cuba, Puerto Rico, Mexico, renders players ineligible on violation of the so-called "uniform contract." In this, a player signing for one season gives his club an option over him for the next season. The following year's contract will carry the same provision, so the player has really signed for the duration of his baseball life. The club, however, can terminate the contract and release the player unconditionally on 10 days' notice.

The District Court in dismissing Gardella's suit had cited the Supreme Court in 1922 on the case of the Federal (League) Base Ball Club of Baltimore against the National League. Justice Holmes said for the Court:

"The business is giving exhibitions of base ball, which are purely state affairs. It is true that in order to attain for these exhibitions the great popularity that they have achieved, competitions must be arranged between clubs from different cities and states. But the fact that in order to give the exhibitions the leagues must induce free persons to cross state lines and must arrange to pay for their doing so is not enough to change the character of the business."

The "Yale Law Journal" declared in its issue of June, 1937:

"Some courts have called 'organized baseball' a monopoly. The uniform contract has been assailed as against public policy and in restraint of trade, and as too indefinite or too one-sided to be enforced in equity. The National Agreement's provisions on ineligibility and trading are in apparent conflict with the anti-blacklisting statutes of several states, and with the traditional common-law doctrine that contracts for personal services are non-assignable."

But: "The prevailing order makes for closer pennant races, better ball games, greater public interest and greater consumer satisfaction. And more fun for the fans means more money for the magnates."

Money Trouble For Colleges

The row at Rollins College in Florida is unusual in that the youthful president, Paul A. Wagner, refused to accept as valid the decision of the trustees, by a majority of one, to replace him. But the situation behind the row at Rollins is confronting practically all other private institutions of higher learning. The situation—fewer students, lower income, higher costs.

Students will be somewhat fewer next year because of the demands of Selective Service. However, they will not be so few as had been feared some months ago. For one thing, the local draft boards are to wait until some time in August, when the results of the forthcoming intelligence tests will be known, to begin to induct students who had been deferred for the present college year.

The draft age is to be lowered to 18½, not to 18. More veterans are expected to enroll under the GI bill of rights in colleges before the deadline date of July 25, 1951. Many students not being graduated this year are veterans immune from the draft, and deferment will probably be continued for students in the ROTC.

When it comes to college income, however, the outlook is still full of gloom. Colleges and universities are receiving fewer and smaller donations as higher taxes afflict the wealthy. There is very definitely a limit on how much tuition fees can be increased. Endowment fund returns are lower; they provided 23 per cent of total revenues of private colleges in 1940, only 12 per cent in 1948.

As for higher costs in education, they have nearly doubled over a decade. The abler members of college faculties can hardly be retained unless their salaries are raised enough to keep their families above the penury level in these high-cost-of-living days. And no college is better than its faculty.

Near East Hot Spot

The Iranian oil dispute continues to sizzle. The London government would like to have Uncle Sam's help in saving their oil concession in that hot spot, or, failing that, to line up guaranties that Britain and Europe will continue to get the Iranian oil which they need to keep their industries going.

If Britain and Europe are deprived of the oil, it will go to Russia. There are fears Moscow has the situation sewed up now. If Russia gets the oil, the U. S. will be called upon to divert some of its none too ample supplies to Europe. Gasoline rationing in this country could be the result.

London complains that Washington remained silent while the Persians were taking over the field. They point out that the same thing could happen to American oil concessions elsewhere in Asia. It was an ironic twist that the nationalizing British were outraged when they became victims of nationalization elsewhere. But as a development of the menacing program of Russian pressure it cannot be regarded lightly.

It is up to the British to take the lead in solving their Iranian difficulty. It remains to be seen whether they will be more successful in the Near East than the U. S. has been in the Far East.

How To Keep Well

By DR. T. R. VAN DELLEN

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases.

Weakened Muscles

Myasthenia is an unusual disease. It produces weakness in various muscles yet neither the muscles nor nerves are at fault. The trouble centers about a chemical that is formed at the places where the nerves and muscles begin. Appropriate antidotes are available to help the majority of victims.

All sufferers tell a typical story. Without warning they begin to have difficulty keeping the eyelids open, not in the first part of the morning but as the day goes on. With a short rest, strength returns and the individual continues until the cycle repeats itself. It becomes a matter of work, fatigue, rest, and work.

More than one group of muscles are likely to be involved. Those of the face, jaws, and swallowing apparatus are most susceptible. Cross-eye may develop when the muscles that turn the eyes are affected. The problem becomes more complicated if the structures concerned with talking and swallowing become fatigued. The person may be engaged in conversation when without warning he is unable to continue until recuperation of the muscles takes place. A somewhat similar condition exists when swallowing or chewing. Should the muscles of the arms or legs become affected walking is difficult, especially upstairs. The housewife may be unable to beat eggs, brush her hair, or play cards.

There are many remedies such as ephedrine and potassium. But in 1934 neostigmine bromide was discovered and this drug surpassed all others. It can be taken in tablet form and is so effective it is used occasionally as a test in this disease. The physician is inclined to make a diagnosis of myasthenia gravis when a test dose of neostigmine relieves the patient's symptoms.

More recently a new chemical, octamethyl pyrophosphoramide, was introduced. According to a group of University of Chicago physicians, the preparation can be administered alone or in combination with neostigmine. They were able to help some individuals in whom the usual remedies had failed. One woman, for example, had been bothered with double vision for five years, along with drooping of the eyelids as well as distress in chewing, swallowing, and speaking. In addition, she was having trouble with her arms and legs and in the course of her illness has lost 32 pounds.

So far this new compound has been tried on only six patients. Four preferred its action to neostigmine. In half the series, return of strength was better than with the older remedy. The two failures in the group had not responded previously to neostigmine. As yet we do not know whether the latest drug will be added to the list of "has beens" in this disease. We must watch and wait.

PUFFY ANKLES

Mrs. H. writes: Could overweight make the ankles swell?

REPLY

Yes, if the added poundage is caused by accumulated water in the tissues. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on dropsy of the legs and feet.

STARCH HABIT STICKS

Mrs. W. writes: I have been eating laundry starch for years but I crave more and more. I'm now up to three boxes a week. Will this do any harm?

REPLY

The habit cannot be recommended but to my knowledge there is no scientific evidence that it produces harm. Let me know if it stiffens your stomach.

KIDNEY GRAFT

Mrs. L. writes: Do the kidney grafts we read about in the newspapers really work?

REPLY

Some have taken; others have not. To my knowledge there is some question as to how much time must elapse before it will be known whether or not the grafted kidney will begin to work.

MOVABLE KIDNEY

V.G.T. writes: Could floating kidney cause pain under the ribs?

REPLY

No. The trouble with floating kidneys is that they sink when the owner stands. If pain occurs, it usually is in the loin or in front over the kidney. A complicating kinking of a ureter producers back pain.

LID CLOSURE

M. T. writes: My right eyelid has taken to closing and I can't open it for a moment or two. My vision is perfect. What could be wrong?

REPLY

If you mean that the upper and lower lids stick together, there may be an eyelid infection with some crusting. If you refer to a temporary ptosis, the chances are that a nerve lesion is not responsible but examination by a capable eye man would be necessary to determine the cause.

BLIND SPOT

M. R. writes: What is a blind spot in the eye?

REPLY

An area where the optic nerve pierces the retina. The lesions are so tiny they do not disrupt normal vision.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Defense Boss Reneges On Promise To Eric Johnston; Top Mobilizers Clash Over Executive Order; Wilson Hints Commie Smear Threat

WASHINGTON—It's been pretty well concealed except to their close friends, but a smoldering, sometimes bitter feud has been raging between the two top mobilization executives of the nation—Charles E. Wilson and Eric Johnston.

Both men have been in the electrical business——Wilson as head of the Giant General Electric Corp., Johnston as owner of his own appliance factory in Spokane, Wash. Wilson has sometimes had rough sledding with his labor relations; Johnston has an employe Profit-sharing plan which makes his factory a model for the nation.

Wilson did a good job as government production executive during World War II; Johnston for years was a farsighted chairman of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce. Wilson was chairman of Truman's Committee on Civil Liberties and Tolerance; Johnston served as czar of the motion picture industry.

But, despite their vast and varied experience, the two men just don't seem to like each other.

The feud really began last winter shortly after Johnston was asked by Wilson to leave the motion picture industry to take on the headache-inspiring job of economic stabilizer. Johnston consented, provided he was given an executive order by the White House entrusting him with power to regulate prices, wages, credit, and other causes of inflation.

Johnston On Limb

Wilson agreed. And on the strength of his agreement, Johnston went out on a limb at a press conference and stated that the President would soon issue this executive order, in effect taking a big slice out of Wilson's mobilization empire.

Immediately thereafter, Johnston's legal staff drew up the executive order, but nothing happened.

Curious, Johnston found that the order was held up by Wilson himself, the man who had promised it. Wilson's alibi for the roadblock, was that his counsel, Herbert Bergson, and Peyton Fort, deputy attorney general, were opposed.

Johnston was burned up. However, he didn't go over Wilson's head to the President. Instead, he kept his mouth shut and played ball.

Meanwhile, Wilson had surrounded himself with the same type of idolaters as Harry Truman, some of them about as useful. The General Harry Vaughan of the Wilson idolaters is Sidney Weinberg, head of the giant Goldman-Sachs Investment Banking Company, who in Washington has been nicknamed head of the "Department of Devious Planning."

Weinberg is a suspicious gentleman who has been in charge of security. And one of his operators, apparently shadowing roly - poly Mike DiSalle, the ex-mayor of Toledo now price stabilizer, saw him lunching with Eddie Cheyfitz, former motion picture assistant to Eric Johnston.

Ex-Commie

So, out of the clear blue, Wilson called Johnston in. Tapping a sheaf of papers in his hand, Wilson glared at Johnston almost as if he were a witness before the House Un-American Activities Committee.

"Eric," he asked, "what about this friend of yours, Eddie Cheyfitz? Do you know that he was a member of the Communist party?"

"Certainly," replied Johnston, getting his dander up. "I've known Eddie Cheyfitz for years. And I know that 11 years ago, as a relative youngster, he was a member of the Communist party. I also know that ever since then he's been most helpful to the FBI in exposing the Communists.

"I know, for example," continued Johnston, getting warmer, "that he's fought Commies in Hollywood and in the labor unions. He has such an excellent record in this respect that he's addressed the Army War College on the subject of communism. He has also outlined the dangers of communism in speeches before the U.S. Chamber of Commerce and the Pennsylvania Manufacturers Association.

"I also know that in 1947, when Cheyfitz was under attack, Archbishop Karl Alter of Ohio came to his defense. That's what I know about Eddie Cheyfitz."

"Well, Eric," said Wilson, "I just didn't want to see you hurt by your association with Eddie Cheyfitz."

Johnston told Wilson that he did not desert his friends when he knew they were right, and left the room. He had the impression, however, that Wilson was trying to frighten him with an indirect Commie smear.

To this date the executive order promised to Johnston last January has not been signed.

NOTE—Cheyfitz was a member of the labor management committee of Toledo organized by Mike DiSalle, which has done so much to bring harmonious labor - management relations in once strike-ridden Toledo. In recent years, Cheyfitz has been working for Eric Johnston in the motion picture producers office in Washington and was instrumental in introducing Johnston to DiSalle.

Pastry Inflation

Congressman John Taber of New York, who has made a cut in government spending, recently was asked to cut a birthday cake for a young lady on his office staff.

However, as the New York Republican arrived for the ceremony, he found the honored guest in great distress. Somebody had loaded the cake with 45 candles, considerably in excess of her age.

"I'd like to know who put those extra 15 candles on this cake," she protested.

"Offhand, I'd say it's the work of some Democratic spy," guessed Taber. "This is a clear case of Truman inflation."

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

And Other Pressures

I came across a letter in a newspaper by Seba Eldridge, professor of sociology at the University of Kansas. What these professors say is only important because they influence the minds and characters of our children. The learned professor is interested in democratic collectivization — the sort of thing which they do over in England but which the British object to when it happens in Iran. The professor approves and says:

"With virtually no exceptions, the development of collective enterprise in the United States has been due to the pressure of consumer and public interests. Socialization has been a gradual, piecemeal, peaceful process in this country, not the kind of revolutionary action Karl Marx predicted.

"These processes and factors should be most encouraging to the American people. . . ."

I have been wondering what there is to be encouraged about in all this. Perhaps Professor Eldridge is thrilled over the fact that we are achieving Karl Marx's ends without employing Karl Marx's means, or perhaps the learned Seba Eldridge is cheered by socialism however it may be achieved. At any rate, the letter continues:

". . . . Violent overthrow of our institutions is ruled out. Instead, we are all involved in an orderly process of cooperation, often without realizing it, in making our institutions suit the changing needs of the people."

We may take great comfort that violence is ruled out. In a word, the American government is not to be overthrown by force and violence, but the American economic and social system is to be changed, "often without realizing it." The object of all this is to make changes to suit the needs of the people. But that is to be decided, not by the people themselves, who, to repeat, often do not realize what is being done to them, but by so-called experts, that is, by an elite such as Hitler and Mussolini favored and Plato before them.

How foisting upon our people a vast congregation of bureaucrats, payroll grubbers, do-nothing experts, researchers and petty officials who consume the earnings of the people by constantly forcing tax increases, improves them, is a little difficult to understand, but maybe a sociologist can even discover a justification for a government cultivated inflation and the checks to millions of citizens for doing nothing. The professor says:

"' ' The instrumentalities of effecting peaceful change are a great variety of promotional agencies together with the Democratic and Republican parties."

It would be interesting if the professor wrote a learned thesis on that "variety of promotional agencies" that is bringing socialism to America. It would be interesting to compare his data with the researchers of the Hoover Commission, which sought to effect economies and failed because Mr. Truman found them politically inexpedient.

Eldridge includes the Democratic and Republican parties among the agencies for socialization. Every Republican will admit that the Democrats are deserving of the insult, but in the present state of public opinion and on the approach to the 1952 campaign, few Democrats will be grateful to Professor Seba Eldridge for calling them Socialists. He, of course, uses a fancier term, collectivists, but that is only because he is a professor and has to make things complicated. In fact, the professors have raked the dictionary for words which confuse.

I should also like to give you Professor Eldridge's definitions of democracy and totalitarianism; or to put it more simply as affecting the difference between the United States and Soviet Russia. After you have read that, you might wonder what happened to that fine boy or girl you sent to college:

". . . The conflict throughout the world today is largely one between democratic and totalitarian regimes. In totalitarian countries, collectivization is imposed through force by a small minority; in democratic countries, on the other hand, collective enterprises are extended in accordance with the will of the people as expressed through votes and other pressures."

I wonder what other pressures the professor has in mind! Up here in New York, they are often employed by such fellows as Frank Costello and Joe Adonis. I wonder what they have in Kansas. Maybe, it is done by mink coats and such in his region.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — The United States has launched a psychological warfare campaign inside China which which could some day lead to a unification of all anti-Communist elements in that country and the overthrow of the Communist government at Peiping.

The American point of view, carefully developed after much planning at the Department of State, has just been broadcast through the "Voice of America" to the Chinese people. Similar broadcasts will continue to be made from now on.

This approach does not mean that the United States is attempting to tell the Chinese how to set up a free government or who shall head it up. That's a matter for the people of China to decide. But the all-important development is that the United States has abandoned any idea of dealing with the Communist regime and ,in effect, has served notice that, if a government representative of the wishes of the Chinese people arises, it will deserve diplomatic recognition from all countries in the free world. It could be an expanded Nationalist government or a government brought into being through Nationalist efforts. It could be the Nationalist government itself if it regains control of the mainland.

"Deal" Is Out

The American policy, which cuts the gordian knot and destroys any probability of a "deal" with the Communist Chinese, has attracted considerable attention since it was announced last Friday night by Dean Rusk, assistant secretary of state for Far Eastern affairs.

The Department itself, confronted with queries asking what change it has made in Far Eastern policies, has said the pronouncement was not new in the sense that it has been historic American policy. But the words of Dean Rusk—which, incidentally, were not widely published because their significance was not immediately appreciated—make it quite clear that all bets are off so far as the Red Chinese are concerned. He said in part:

"The independence of China is gravely threatened. In the Communist world there is room for only one master—a jealous and implacable master, whose price of friendship is complete submission. How many Chinese, in one community after another, are now being destroyed because they love China more than the Soviet Union? . . .

"The freedoms of the Chinese people are disappearing. Trial by mob, mass-slaughter, banishment as forced labor to Manchuria, Siberia or Sinkiang, the arbitrary seizure of property, the destruction of loyalties within the family, the suppression of free speech—these are the facts behind the parades and celebrations and the empty promises."

Maps Show Dismemberment

Dean Rusk added that the "territorial integrity of China is now an ironic phrase," and he pointed out that the maps of China now being published on the mainland show how China has been dismembered.

How does all this relate to Korea? The objective of the American government is to wake up the people of China to the fact that their sons are being slaughtered in a war directed by Soviet Russia. Mr. Rusk declared:

"Hundreds of thousands of Chinese youth are being sacrificed in a fiery furnace, pitting their waves of human flesh against the fire power of modern weapons— and without heavy equipment, adequate supply or the most elementary medical atention. Apart from Korea, the Chinese are being pressed to aggressive action in other areas—all calculated to divert the atention and energies of China away from the encroachments of Soviet imperialism upon China itself."

This is the kind of doctrine that should have long ago been disseminated, but it comes opportunely now just the same when the Red offensive in Korea is causing the death of tens of thousands of brave Chinese soldiers. The significant paragraph in the Rusk speech, which steers carefully away from any atempt to dictate what elements shall be welded together to fight communism, says:

"We cannot provide a formula to engage the unity of effort among all Chinese who love their country. But one thing we can say—as the Chinese people move to assert freedom and to work out their destiny in accordance with their own historical purposes, they can count upon tremendous support from free peoples in other parts of the world."

This is the kind of pronouncement which, if made also to the people of the satellite countries in Europe, would in time bring a profound change in the "cold war," especially if it breaks down the "will to fight" of Red China's armies—many of whose soldiers are already deserting in response to leaflets dropped on them from day to day promising food, shelter and freedom.

Candor Needed

By MARK SULLIVAN

The Senate committee investigating President Truman's dismissal of Gen. MacArthur gave thought last week to making a formal charge of contempt against the country's highest military officer, Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff Gen. Omar Bradley. This was based on Gen. Bradley's refusal to tell what was said at a conference which President Truman held with him and others. The committee decided, 18 to 8, not to take action.

But assertion of right on the part of the committee to demand testimony of high government officials continued and was expanded. On Saturday Republican Sen. Wiley of Wisconsin proposed that President Truman be summoned by subpoena to testify on his dismissal of Gen. MacArthur. The committee Chairman, Sen. Russell of Georgia, said the proposal was "completely unthinkable."

The exact words of conversations in which two high officials took part, "I said" and "He said," are not a present primary need of either the Senate committee or the country. Constitutional argument about the right of the committee to demand them and additional argument about the propriety of subpoenaing the President are a diversion from the committee's central function. What that central function had to be has evolved from the proceedings of the committee so far. The inquiry began as an investigation into President Truman's dismissal of Gen. MacArthur, the reasons and circumstances of it. But it was apparent that the reel need was inquiry into a thing that is inclusive and much broader, the Administration policies and course that have had a part in the fall of China to Russian communism.

Inquiry Has Progressed

This inquiry has made much progress. Secretary of Defense Marshall has testified fully about the Truman Administration policy that discouraged the then government of China under Chiang Kai-shek, and the encouragement given thereby and otherwise to the movement that became and now is the Communist government of China. There will be further testimony, among others by Secretary of State Acheson, and many besides; the investigation will need to range far.

For the origin of the Administration course and policy about China was broader than specific actions taken and beliefs held by a small number of individuals. The origin was a kind of atmosphere; the resultant of beliefs held by scores of individuals including persons outside official life. Their beliefs about China varied, perhaps the largest common denominator among them was belief that the Nationalist government of Chiang Kai-shek must fall and deserved to.

In the outgivings which attempted to justify discountenancing Chiang Kai-shek a frequent charge was that he and his government were "reactionary." Holding that belief the wish and expectation was that China should have a "liberal" government. That is what the Truman Administration supposed it was encouraging when it demanded that Chiang Kai-shek take into an "integrated government" the group that at the time was frequently called "liberal" or "agrarian reformers." But the government which this group set up was Communist. This the Administration had to accept, but it still hoped it could follow a policy which would prevent the new government from going under dominance of the Communist government of Russia. But presently the new government entered into alliance with the Russian Communists.

May Probe Deeper

All this, with much besides, composes the intricate mesh which the Senate committee needs to untangle. And after they have done this presumably they will go yet deeper. For it was not merely the Administration's policy about China that contributed to disaster, it was also the policies of the Truman Administration and the Roosevelt one which had made Russia strong.

Apparently the investigation will go on for months, it is obvious the committee is disposed to. It takes place during a period when the two parties are preparing for the Presidential campaign of next year. But likewise it takes place during a period when there is desperate need for national unity. If members of the Senate committee would conduct the hearings in a manner as free as practicable from acrimony, they would serve the public interest. An immense contribution that Mr. Truman could make would be utter candor and conciliation. When a President and his Administration have made mistakes that are glaringly apparent, a human disposition of some temperaments is to stiffen in defiance, and this trait is especially strong in Mr. Truman.

City Admission Tax Explained In Letter

Organizations are to be informed that the new city admission tax must be collected from patrons of recreation events.

The five-cent fee drew protests from bingo players and several organizations at Monday night's council session.

City Clerk Wallace G. Ullery drew up the letter yesterday. It reads:

"At the regular session of the Mayor and City Council on Monday, May 21, council directed me to notify all organizations conducting bingo games that it is mandatory that all persons attending bingo games must pay the admissions tax as set forth in Ordinance Nos. 1813, 1874 and 1902 respectively; in other words, the money collected from said admission taxes is the property of the City of Cumberland, and must not be used by the organizations and cannot be absorbed by the organizations."

The tax is earmarked for the recreation program.

Mrs. Honora Burkey will be in charge of the chuck wagon assisted by members of the North End Homemakers Club.

There will be no admission, Mrs. Mackert reported.

Gerhart Speaks On Army Life

Ways in which the government protects the rights of conscience in time of war were explained by Elder O. B. Gerhart during the Armed Forces Day service at the Cumberland Seventh Day Adventist Church.

"The non-combatancy principles of the Seventh Day Adventists, based on the teachings and example of Jesus Christ, are given recognition by our government," Elder Gerhart declared, adding "our men, classified 1-A, have the privilege of being channeled into the medical department of the Army where they may save life."

Pastor Gerhart stressed not only loyalty to government, but urged parents and relatives to give courage and inspiration to servicemen already in the armed services and those who will be called.

It was announced that two medical cadet training camps will be conducted this summer to provide preparation training to hundreds of young men. One will be at Grand Ledge, Mich. Dr. G. E. Hartle, Moorefield, W. Va. is sponsoring Hetzer Dove, who will attend the Michigan camp.

Arson Blamed In Strip Mine Fire

Arsonists visited a strip mine near Barton yesterday to burn a building and damage a Diesel bulldozer, the sheriff's office reported yesterday.

The mine, sub-leased by Robert Russell, Lonaconing, is located on Hampshire Hill, about one mile east of Barton.

The fire was discovered by Elmer Getson, a shovel operator. The building, used to house tools and repair equipment, was burned to the ground. Police said the fire started some time between Sunday midnight and yesterday at 7 p. m. when Getson made the discovery.

Getson reported to officers that rags had been placed in the fuel oil tank and set afire. A small booster gasoline tank had also been broken and set afire. Damage to the building was estimated at $1,000 and $1,500 to the bulldozer.

Deputy Sheriffs William Chappell and George Furstenberg went to the scene along with State Trooper Milton G. Hart.

Chappell said the strip mine is non-union. It had not operated for the past month and a half.

County Board 'Dunned' In Parking Violations

A letter was received yesterday by the Allegany County Board of Commissioners from the Cumberland Police Department concerning a number of parking tickets which had been placed on county-owned vehicles and not paid for.

The letter was signed by the records clerk at Police Headquarters and stated the parking tickets had been placed on the cars during recent months. The cars tagged are driven by county health nurses and county sanitary inspector.

Needless to say, the letter was not too well received by the board. There were comments by persons in the commissioners' office that the city is not billed for about $1,000 worth of tax transcripts which are prepared by the county board's office, and the "dunning" of the board for the parking tickets shows a lack of consideration on the part of City Police.

It was also pointed out that operators of county cars have difficulty finding space to park near City Hall Plaza.

To be a vision of delight, your wedding dress should dramatize your personality and harmonize with your kind of ceremony.

SECRETS OF CHARM

by JOHN ROBERT POWERS

From the first day that she hears the tale of Prince Charming, there is a dream of white satin discernable in every girl's eye. It's a dream that can easily be surpassed by reality. Any girl can be a "vision of delight" in her wedding dress.

The secret lies in dramatizing yourself in the loveliest and most fitting fashion. Your dress must reflect your personality. Are you a statuesque lovely or a lass with a delicate air? Do you appear at your best arrayed in splendor or does simplicity set off your beauty? These are most important considerations, but your dress must also be keyed to the degree of formality you chose for your wedding.

Take Your Choice

If the wedding is formal, you will find a bounty of traditional satin and lace gowns designed with modest necklines, long, pointed sleeves and billowing trains. If tradition holds no appeal for you, very correct formal dresses may be your choice in a contemporary fabric or design. At this season there are beautiful sheers available — mousseline, starched chiffon or lace, especially lovely in combination with any frosty fabric, made with brief sleeves, a decollete neckline and trailing skirt.

For a less formal wedding, let your imagination take the reins. Picture yourself in a ballerina dress of embroidered net over a pale mauve, taffeta slip, and let your mind dwell on maids in lilac organdy ballerinas . . . on all your heads, little caps to match your dresses; in all your hands, cascades of deep purple iris.

Planning a quiet ceremony? You have just as great an opportunity to make your suit or dress memorable. Consider the drama of a tulle "duster" worn over a champagne lace sheath, and accessorized with a color-matched tulle bonnet, satin slippers and tiny bronze orchids.

More and more brides are planning informal weddings to fit the schedules of a groom who wears a stripe as well as a heart on his sleeve. My hat's off to this girl of today who plans her wedding with her eye on time and expense. Formal or informal, a wedding dress may be just as lovely when designed with future occasions in mind. Enchantment is promised by a delicious confection with a bolero, capelet, stole or redingote to cover a glamorous dancing dress. Radiant bride — and another time, radiant lady-of-the-evening on his proud arm!

Washington Whirl

By AUSTINE

PARIS, FRANCE.—Paris is not a city—it is a world! That was first said when Washington was a wilderness well over 300 years ago, and it is just as true this spring . . . It's a wonderland world for me! . . . Not so much as the home of Dior, Picasso or Eisenhower, but rather as the place to meet Marie Antoinette, or Zola and Napoleon . . . More about meeting them later . . . For the present—What does it look like? . . . And how did I land here?

AUSTINE

In many ways our Washington, a copy of this capital, looks like her 2,000-year-old sister . . . Substitute our familiar muddy Potomac for the Seine . . . In spring, instead of Cherry blossoms, they admire the thousands of chestnut trees, massed with flowers like white candles . . . Instead of Rock Creek Park, it's the Bois de Boulogne where lovers crane at the brown steel Eiffel Tower . . . Instead of duPont Circle, it's the Place Vendome.

Another thing . . . You can drive past a building marked "American Embassy" . . . Then you realize—really feel—you've come a long, long ways from home!

Adventure and Lafayette here I come!

When you pack, of course, you do get a twinge of fear—imagine going to a place where you can't buy nylons, and you might catch smallpox, and people don't even speak English . . . Ghastly.

But the old pioneer blood boils up!

You make a little mental list of the stuff you will need . . . Bare necessities only.

"We'll have to cut down on weight," says husband or father or whoever you're traveling with at the moment. "Sixty-six pounds of baggage per person. Excess weight costs like diamonds. About a dollar and a half a pound!"

"Oh, I'll take only barest necessities," you promise.

I began to murmur to myself, "Let's see—only the barest necessities. Well, I'll need hats, purses, gloves, stockings, shoes, bedroom slippers, nightgowns, bathrobe, underwear, a sewing kit, handkerchiefs, a little clock, hair lacquer, hair brush and comb, eyebrow pencil, foundation cream, rouge, lipsticks, tooothbrush, toothpaste, vitamin pills, cleaning fluid, cotton, kleenex, aspirin, soap, suits, afternoon dresses, merthiolate, blouses, nail polish, bobbypins, hair nets, shower cap, perfume, nose drops,—"

"Goodness," says husband, "you're not opening a general store—just taking a trip. Where you think you're going—the Cape of Good Hope?"

• — • — •

Worldly-wise friends told conflicting stories every step of the way! . . . Some said, "By all means, lots of cocktail dresses. You'll be at cocktail parties every night."

But some body else would advise, "Don't take anything! Suits and ball dresses only. Don't waste time at cocktail parties."

Frankly, I compromised, and since I'm not planning to spend money and time buying clothes over here, it has worked out to be an excellent wardrobe:

Two suits . . . One dark wool and a grey flannel on my back (also useful if anybody invites us for Sunday luncheon in the country) because French women dress by day as plain as mice . . . Three cocktail dress costumes (two of them rather dinnerish) . . . Two evening dresses, one of them all-out ball . . . A warm travel coat, a little evening wrap of velvet . . . C'est tout . . . Which is French, and I can count up to 20 in French, and that's how many pounds I was overweight, in spite of sending my underwear and shoes ahead by Air Express!

• — • — •

Dean Acheson himself signed my passport . . . Down in the corner . . . But then his name appears on everybody's I found.

That handsome doctor gave me a slight case of typhoid and smallpox . . . Finally, I was ready!

• — • — •

Riding out to Long Island's Idlewild Airport didn't seem like starting for Paris . . . The Paradise to enrapture me! . . . The Paris of Rue de la Paix . . . Arc de Triomphe . . . The Louvre . . . Notre Dame . . . Haunted by Voltaire, Robespierre, Talleyrand, Bourbans, Bonapartes, and old Ben Franklin . . . On the way to the airport I kept thinking this felt the same as going to Toledo.

And when I boarded the TWA's spanking brand new DC-6 (it had only made one Trans-Atlantic flight before this) I still felt we must be going to Toledo.

A big roar . . . A short run . . . And boom up . . . The Constellation rose agile and light as a butterfly.

U. S. Guarantee To Ease Plight Of Red Refugees

By RICHARD K. O'MALLEY

FRANKFURT, Germany—(AP)—The people who flee Russia and her satellites need not fear any longer.

They will be given jobs in the west and they will not be returned home, no matter who asks for them.

U. S. High Commissioner John J. McCloy made this clear in a statement which for the first time outlined U. S. policy on political refugees in the U. S. zone of Germany.

McCloy said such refugees will be given jobs with wages equivalent to what they earned at home. Every effort will be made to help them emigrate to countries of their own choice.

In addition, he said, new experienced personnel has been added to deal with these refugees.

This is a big difference from the past. Until McCloy's statement, policy was not always clear.

Too often political refugees were given glad hand treatment when they arrived, milked dry of information, then left to shift for themselves.

Many who fled from behind the iron curtain found life in the west bewildering and hard. Not only did they suffer from a language barrier but the method of living was too great a departure from the regimentation of the east.

Of all the political refugees from the east, the Russians need the most assistance. American officials say the average Russian needs at least 12 months to accustom himself to life on the outside.

One former Russian officer was first welcomed gladly, then confined in a stockade, still later released, and then picked up a second time before U. S. authorities decided he could stay.

When they finally let him go he wandered for weeks through the U. S. zone seeking work. He finally found it, but he did it on his own.

This officer said bitter resentment has risen in the past because refugees who thought they would be helped were ignored.

"I know one or two," the former major said, "who say that if the Russians come they would probably be better off joining up with them than helping the west. They say they have been shrugged off by the very people they expected to help them."

The new policy should repair some of the damage.

When the news filters back behind the iron curtain, defections may increase, despite new and tougher security regulations by the Russians, Czechs and other Communists to prevent flights to the west.

Up to the end of 1950, Military Air Transport Service and allied services had flown without a fatality.

The Old Second Guesser

By JOHN N. WHEELER

The Farm Girl Who Made Good

One day last week, a tall, stylish, well-tailored, good-looking, blonde lady had lunch with me.

"Will you have a drink?" I asked as a polite host.

"No, I don't indulge at noon," she said. As I don't either, that matter was settled.

"What are you doing in New York?" I inquired.

"Going to shows and enjoying myself in the evening, and spending the days mostly in Wall Street extending our credit. We had $10,000,000, and I have now arranged for $20,000,000."

"Those sound like pretty fancy figures," I suggested. She agreed and explained modestly her business had expanded so rapidly, because of government orders and other demands, it was necessary to construct new buildings and get additional equipment.

My companion was Olive Ann Beech, head of the big Beechcraft Company in Wichita, Kas., and, as far as I know, the only woman to be the top executive of one of the large airplane corporations. Because of her husband's long illness, she had been for all practical purposes running the show for some time before he died. To prove she is always on the job, before we had finished lunch, she had tried to sell me a twin-motored ship. When I side-stepped, saying the price was pretty high, she countered with a remark they were palnning to build a smaller and cheaper vehicle, with two engines to cost about $50,000.

She was born on a farm in Waverly, Kas., and, although she told me the year, I am not cad enough to divulge it, because she looks about 35 or less—fresh, blonde, and pink as she should coming from the corn belt. After attending the American Business College in Wichita, she went to work for Travel Air, founded by Walter Beech, an old-time flier and pioneer in the industry. She became its bookkeeper and secretary, but doubled as a switchboard operator, receptionist, and general handy women around the shop and office. In 1930, she married the boss.

"Do you think that is the secret of your success?" I asked. "Should a girl get a job, and then polish up the handle of the big front door and try to catch the head man?"

"No, I don't agree that has anything to do with it," she replied. "I believe a girl can be successful in any business if she makes up her mind to it and is willing to work."

I looked across the table at this calm, assured, beautiful lady. And I may say she makes good airplanes, too. She once sent one to Kansas City to pick me up and fly me to Wichita so I could see the factory. The ship was fast, comfortable, and steady.

"Well, I suppose some day you will be getting married again," I suggested without even clearing my throat first.

She blushed a little and assured me there were no immediate prospects, and jokingly added,

"Do you know any good eligible bachelors?"

"No," I said. "All the worth-while ones get knocked off by first-class wing shots early. Now I should think you would have to be careful some guy doesn't want to marry you for your money."

"That's not very complimentary," she observed. "Do you figure this is my only attraction?" A truly feminine comeback and a very good retort. "I'll tell you what," she added, "before I decide, I'll ask you for advice."

I thought I detected a note of sarcasm in her reply, or perhaps she thinks I also write under the name of Dorothy Dix.

Speedy Bombers Encounter New Hazards To Life

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE

DENVER—(AP)—New hazards to life at the speed of sound at 40,000 feet altitude were reported to the Aero Medical Association today.

The hazards are met in our new jet bombers. They were told by one of the bomber builders, Engineering Vice-President Wellwood Beall, Boeing Aircraft Company, Seattle. His report was read in his absence.

He told what few persons have known, that jet bombers have much smaller crews. Where the B-29 had 11 men, he said the B-47 has three.

When the cover comes off the hatch through which men have to escape, the wind roars into the plane, with rapid-hammer blows, almost as loud as explosions. The blasts may prevent a man who is stooping from straightening up.

Sometimes men cannot move arms and legs against the blasts enough to place them in position on chairs on which crewmen are to be dropped or shot out of a crippled plane.

The gusts vibrate the men so strongly that they become dizzy, have difficulty in seeing and even inability to continue rational thinking. They may get seasick. Afterwards these troubles may last in slight degree for two or three days.

The friction of the gusts on clothing is so intense that the men say they sometimes feel the heat through the clothes.

Alterations in design are reducing these escape hazards. But Beall reported there is nothing yet available to permit bomber crews to escape at speeds above sound expected by 1950.

He said the crewmen of these jet bombers have to be a more mature type than in the old bombers. They have to be better selected, better trained, and better able to concentrate. They face greater anxiety and suffer more fatgue.

Yanks Find U. S. And Japanese Subways Alike

SENDAI, Japan (INS) — The United States and Japan are different — almost everywhere, that is, but on the subway.

At least, that is the claim of some New York strap-hangers, now serving with the 40th Infantry Division, who got their first taste this week of a Japanese commuter's special.

"Times Square or Sendai, it's all the same." Said Cpl. Allen Gitlin, Bronx, N. Y., "The women stand and the men sit. One change, though, the women here are faster. One almost beat me to an empty seat."

The trains rattle along as swiftly as their U. S. counterparts and stick closer to the correct time than a clockwatcher at 5 p. m.
our big town trains a thing or two;
"These Japanese jitneys can teach our big town trains a thing or two; no waiting, no stalling, every stop right on button," added Pfc. Thomas Bogard, Brooklyn. "Back home, I spent so much time at the station waiting for the Flatbush local, they wanted to charge me rent."

Fortieth Division soldiers, in Japan for training and to provide security for this important base for Korean operations, all agree on one point the two systems have in common — the number of riders that can be crammed into a single car.

The Japanese version of the rush hour ride makes Pfc. Sanford Rosenberg, Bronx, N. Y., nostalgic. He said:

"There I was on this train, when a little boy kicked me in the shins. My ears started to buzz and then two old ladies knocked me down running for a seat.

"I felt like I was home."

Insurance On County Vehicles Is Increased

Insurance coverage on 42 county-owned vehicles was ordered increased yesterday by the Allegany County Board of Commissioners.

A list of 38 County Roads Department vehicles showed they are covered now at the rate of $10,000 for property damage and $20,000 for personal injury. Under the order passed today the coverage has been increased to $50,000 in each category.

A survey by insurance men showed that for $3.15 per policy the various trucks, cars and road equipment could be placed under the higher coverage.

Members of the board said that the extra cost is so low that the county" would be foolish" not to increase the coverage in order to protect taxpayers in the event of serious accidents.

Cars operated by the sheriff's office and county-owned cars driven by public health nurses are included in the new insurance coverage plan.

It was also reported to the board yesterday morning that youths have torn the lock from a gate at the reservoir above the county farm property in North End, and that a drain pipe has been blocked so that the reservoir has filled with water.

The board, at considerable expense, had a wire fence erected around the reservoir and drained the pool to prevent any boys from meeting with mishap by swimming there. Due to the excellent type of masonry construction of the reservoir the county commissioners did not want to blow up part of the structure, but if the acts of vandalism and swimming continue this will have to be done.

SRC Will Inspect Road At Bloomington - Swanton

Upon the invitation of Horace P. Whitworth, Jr., a member of the Allegany county delegation to the legislature, members of the State Roads Commission are scheduled to inspect the Bloomington-Swanton road tomorrow to determine if the state will take over maintenance of the highway.

The Garrett county commissioners have requested the State Roads Commission to take over the road as the upkeep is too expensive for the county.

Whitworth said that a joint Senate-House resolution passed at the recent session of the legislature calls for the state to assume control of the road.

Russell H. McCain, chairman of the State Roads Commission, will head state officials on the inspection tour. He will meet with members of the Garrett county board to discuss the matter.

Plan Friday Meeting

Another meeting will be held here Friday at the office of G. Bates Chaires, district SRC engineer, for further discussion of the proposal.

Whitworth said that in the event the state agrees to take over the highway it could be widened and improved into a first-class road. He commented that with improvements the road would be used by persons driving from Oakland and West Virginia points to Cumberland, and that it would cut many miles from the routes now most frequently used.

The road is also important as an access road to the recreation areas of Garrett county, such as Deep Creek Lake, Swallow Falls, and the state forest areas.

May Discuss Bridge

Whitworth also said that some discussion may be held on the Allegany county proposal for the State Roads Commission to take over the Pinto bridge across the Potomac River. This bridge needs to be replaced and the cost would be prohibitive for the county.

The U. S. Navy is also interested in the bridge and roadway leading from Maryland to West Virginia. The Navy would prefer that the road be relocated about a mile upstream with a new bridge across the B. and O. and Western Maryland Railway tracks. This would take a portion of the highway away from the immediately vicinity of the Allegany Ballistics Laboratory and reduce the hazards due to the proximity of the road to the laboratory.

Legislation Sought To Urge New Industries In County

Members of the Allegany County Board of Commissioners took under advisement yesterday a proposal by the chairman of the Frostburg Industrial Development Corporation that the Legislative Council be requested to prepare a bill providing for a ten-year tax exemption on new buildings of any company in the county.

Harry G. Shupe, chairman of the Frostburg group, wrote the board that Rep. J. Glenn Beall has contacted State Senator Robert B. Kimble relative to legislation to exempt from taxation for 10 years new buildings of any company, if such buildings are to be used for the manufacture or fabrication of materials and will provide employment to Allegany county residents.

Shupe said he understands Senator Kimble has placed the matter before the Legislative Council, that Gov. McKeldin is in sympathy with efforts to secure employment and that such a bill could be introduced at the next session of the Legislature.

The Frostburger suggested that the county commissioners make a formal request of the council so that a new building in Frostburg for the M. Berkowitz Company could qualify.

A bill was passed at the recent session of the Legislature to grant tax exemptions of 10 years for all new industries which locate in the county. The new proposal would affect industries now located here and which wish to expand their plants.

Controls Target Of New Blasts

WASHINGTON, May 22 (AP)—New blasts against the administration's multiple controls program echoed against demands for even stiffer curbs over prices, wages and rents today.

Western cattle raisers, angered by the recent rollback on beef prices, predicted meat shortages and a revival of World War II black markets, with rationing by next spring.

Home builders forecast a serious housing shortage and a "depression" within a year. They contended the government should soften or scrap its present restrictions on building.

Eric Johnston, economic stabilization chief, told senators that if Congress approves the administration's request for stronger controls, the government will hold down wage boosts to less than 10 per cent a year.

Wages are now more or less "frozen" to 10 per cent above the levels of Jan. 15, 1950.

Even as Johnston spoke, an official of the Wage Stabilization Board disclosed that a new formula allowing higher wage boosts is in the works.

Harry Weiss, the board's acting executive officer, told the National Retail Dry Goods Association that the federal agency can be expected to set higher ceilings within the next few weeks.

Physician Given Jail, Fine For Tax Evasion

BALTIMORE, May 22 (AP) — Dr. Harold V. Harbold, whose tax evasion case the judge called "flagrant," was sentenced today to six months in prison and fined $5,000.

A federal court jury convicted him about two weeks ago of trying to short-change the government by $21,722 in taxes during the period 1944-46.

Chief Judge William C. Coleman deferred sentence then because the physician was reported ill in a hospital.

Four Men Are Killed When Ditch Caves In

ST. LOUIS, May 22 (INS)—Four men were killed today when they were buried under tons of dirt in a cave-in in a 20-foot ditch in St. Louis.

The ditch was being dug as part of a five-million dollar Lever Brothers building project.

Twenty rescue workers and two power shovels recovered the bodies of the men.

Easter To Rejoin Tribe Next Week

CLEVELAND, May 22 (AP) — Big Luke Easter should be back in the Cleveland Indians' lineup in a week, two doctors agreed today after examining his injured knee.

Luke himself had been talking about having an operation that would keep him out for the season. But Dr. Don Kelly said he saw no need for surgery.

Dr. W. H. McGaw, a Cleveland orthopedist, agreed.

Concedes War

simply ceasing to come down and attack our troops?"

Bradley replied: "That is a possibility which we have to consider. It petered out in Greece, and that is one way it could end here."

Prodded by Sen. Fulbright (D-Ark), Bradley reported that the Pentagon was "worried" last November over the way MacArthur split his 8th Army and 10th Corps in their drives toward the Manchurian border.

The General has been criticized for this maneuver on the grounds that he left a gap between the forces down which the Chinese Reds struck in their offensive which rolled the U. N. troops back. But MacArthur called such criticism "poppycock" and insisted he would use the same tactics if he had it to do again.

Bradley said from Washington it looked as though the flanks of both 8th Army and 10th Corps had been left exposed.

In the midst of this testimony, Sen. Tobey (R-NH) pleaded with his colleagues to "ring the curtain down" on the inquiry. He declared "I am impressed with the futility of much that is going on here xxx" and he also voiced concern the testimony is aiding the Russians.

Dope Addict Says He Got Habit In Md. Pen

BALTIMORE, May 22 (AP)—A dope addict declared in Criminal Court today he picked up the habit while a prisoner at Maryland Penitentiary.

Judge Joseph Sherbow said the disclosure was no less than shocking.

It came out as George Stamper, 26, was convicted of possessing heroin capsules when police arrested him April 29. He was on parole from the penitentiary after serving about five years of a ten-year sentence for robbery.

Stamper said 10 or 12 of the 60 prisoners in his dormitory used drugs. He declared two men had supplied him while he was in prison but he declined to name them. He said one of them had access to the prison hospital.

Truckers Strike Hits Western Pennsylvania

PITTSBURGH, May 22 (AP) — A surprise truckers strike hit Western Pennsylvania today.

The work stoppage by members of Local 249, AFL General Teamsters tied up freight shipments in a wide area centering around Pittsburgh.

About 2,400 drivers and helpers are involved in both the over-the-road and city freight industries.

The men began leaving their jobs shortly after they heard a proposed contract settlement.

A spokesman for the Pennsylvania Motor Carriers Association declared the strike came without warning. The local's contract does not expire until May 31. Rank and filers previously had authorized negotiators to call a strike after the contract expiration.

Madrid Transit SystemBoycotted

MADRID, May 22 (AP)—Madrid residents defied the government's display of force today and walked to work in droves as a protest against the high cost of living.

The boycott against the public transportation system was in response to half of an appeal, distributed in leaflets in recent days, for a demonstration against the high cost of living.

The other half of the appeal called for a general strike. But the government concentrated overwhelming army and police forces in the capital to discourage the strike.

Some observers said today's form of protest was more impressive than a strike. All classes, not just workers, walked to work.

Subway officials said receipts were 80 per cent below normal. Street cars and buses were only one-fourth full. Numbers of vehicles on the street were about a third of normal. No arrests or incidents were reported.

Retail food markets said their sales were off 60 to 80 per cent. Cafe trade was almost nothing. Newsdealers had piles of papers left on their hands.

Hagerstown To Honor Korea Veteran Today

HAGERSTOWN, Md., May 22 (AP)—It's Sgt. Hager's town tomorrow.

This Western Maryland city will loose its trappings to honor one of the first of its young men who was returned from the Korean front under the new rotation program.

Mayor Herman L. Mills has proclaimed tomorrow as "Sergeant Charles H. D. Hager Day."

"Sgt. Hager," the Mayor said, "was chosen as an appropriate symbol of our servicemen who, although by birth dedicated to peace and freedom, will fight any enemy and overcome any obstacle to protect and cherish that peace and freedom."

Ban Hits Reich Firms Trading With Reds

WASHINGTON, May 22 (AP)—The United States cracked down today on West German firms illegally trading through the iron curtain.

The State Department announced a ban on exports of strategic materials to such firms, the names of which are now being placed on a virtual black list.

The action followed protests on Capitol Hill against alleged illegal trading on a large scale between Germany and Communist countries. Sen. O'Conor (D-Md) said only Saturday that a Red Chinese purchasing mission was in Berlin trying to buy strategic materials from Western Germany.

Home Front Will Be War Front Next Time, PTA Told

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., May 22 (AP)—If another world war breaks out, there will be flaming atomic attacks right in America's backyard, Dr. Dwayne Orton, of the U. S Civil Defense Administration, said today.

Whether we stand or fall under these attacks, he told the national convention of the Congress of Parents and Teachers, depends upon whether civilians have the guts to take it.

Its hard for Americans to realize, Dr. Orton said, that the home front will be a war front the next time.

"We must face the fact," he said, "and generate the necessary fortitude to plan for efficient civil defense.

"Atomic attack will destroy property, but its greatest value will be in breaking the will of the people. A demoralized people are a defeated people.

"Can we take it?"

The former Stockton, Calif., college president, who is assistant administrator for training and education in the civil defense setup, said America was "really vulnerable" to aerial attack.

Grain-For-India Bill Supported By Rayburn

WASHINGTON, May 22 (AP)—Speaker Sam Rayburn made one of his rare House speeches today to urge passage of the grain-for-India bill, opposing Rep. Cox (D-Ga) who called the measure "a cheat and a swindle."

"In the Far East we need friends," the Speaker said, "and sometimes I wonder if some gentlemen have forgotten we need friends the world around.

"If we refuse to even consider this bread for the starving people of that great nation, I doubt if we'll have any friends in India in the next generation."

Rep. Ribicoff (R-Conn) a member of the Foreign Affairs Committee and a backer of the bill, joined Cox in criticism of the attitude taken by Indian officials toward this country and Russia but told the House that delay already has "greatly undercut the effectiveness of this legislation."

City Officials Approve Plan To Oil Streets

Program To Begin Early Next Month

The Mayor and Council Monday gave the Street Department the go ahead for a street oiling program early in June when it approved bids on oil for the project.

Approved at the suggestion of Mrs. Lucile Roeder, commissioner of streets and public property, was the Garland Norton Petroleum Company bid for oil in trailer tank roads at .1189 a gallon.

Mrs. Roeder said investigation disclosed that trailer load purchases will prove the best method of securing the necessary oil. Quality of the product has been approved by the State Roads Commission.

Schedule Arranged

The Street Department will not veer from the set schedule, Mrs. Roeder stated. Requests have been coming to the office at City Hall and the commissioner asked that they be directed to the warehouse, telephone 1134, where a full-time clerk is on duty.

These requests will not change the schedule, however. Mrs. Roeder said it would not be economical and mean wasted time if the oiling crews were kept on the move from one section of the city to another each day.

The schedule is aimed to expedite the program which will be completed in June and July.

Starts In Lindnerville

In a move to be fair to all sections, the program is to start at Lindnerville and follow through Frederick Street, etc., Mrs. Roeder said. Last year, the program started in the South End and Mapleside. By rotating the starting point each year, the department is maintaining its schedule balance.

Ten men will be employed on the oiling process alone, Martin M. Corrigan, street superintendent, said. The oiling involves grading the street, cleaning gutters, shaping, rolling, the actual oiling and in some places barricading.

Equipment necessary is the grader, roller, a 550-gallon oil distributor and two trucks.

Corrigan pointed out that by following a schedule, permanent relief for the summer can be effected.

Jury Upholds $7,500 Payment

A jury in Allegany County Circuit Court Monday ruled that Bertha A. Bell was totally dependent upon her nephew who died from burns sustained at a local greenhouse and thereby upheld the decision reached last fall by the State Industrial Accident Commission .

This was an appeal brought by the attorney for a local florist and an insurance company.

Raymond Beall, 39, of 711 Hill Top Drive, greenhouse caretaker, died in Allegany Hospital January 25, 1950, eight hours after his clothing became ignited from a boiler explosion at the Edward Habeeb greenhouse, 1922 Bedford Road. Beall suffered third and fourth degree burns over his entire body.

A hearing was held in Cumberland April 14, 1950, concerning payments to Beall's aunt, Bertha A. Beall, who contended that she had been totally dependent upon her nephew. Last October 24, Simon F. Reilly, commissioner for the State Industrial Accident Commission, ruled that Habeeb and the Employers Liability Assurance Corporation, the insurer, would have to pay $20 per week for 375 weeks, a total of $7,500, beginning January 25, and $300 toward his funeral expenses.

Attorney William A. Gunter appealed the decision on behalf of Habeeb and the insurance company. William H. Geppert was counsel for Miss Beall. Gunter said the sole point the jury in Circuit Court had been asked to rule on is whether Miss Beall was totally dependent upon her nephew.

New Police Officers To Receive Training

A training program for new police officers during their first week of duty has been ordered by Police and Fire Commissioner John J. Long.

Long, in a directive to Chief of Police R. Emmett Flynn, asked that the officers meet with the commissioner and also receive an instruction talk from Chief Flynn.

In addition to special instructions, the men will receive gun and inhalator practice under the direction of Sgt. John H. Newhouse, and an explanation of the Detective Bureau from Lt. E. L. Lilya, head of the bureau.

Cold Water Splits Town—Literally

HERMANNSREUTH, Germany (AP)—This little Bavarian town is literally torn in half by the Cold War.

Before the East and West began growling at each other like strange bulldogs, Hermannsreuthers didn't mind straddling the border. It was entertaining to stroll the length of the settlement and pass from Germany to Czechoslovakia. The frontier ran right through the middle of the town.

In 1945 these privileges were withdrawn and the Czechoslovakian Government confiscated land and homes on its side of the border. Germans living there were expelled across town into Bavaria. Neighbors took them in and they managed to eke out a living by working that section of their fields which still lay in Germany. Czech soldiers moved into their half of Hermannsreuth and began ripping down houses. Within a few weeks they had demolished everything but a church. Why they left it standing was never explained.

But the Hermannsreuthers aren't giving up. They are well on the way with a housing project to build 35 new two-family homes on the Bavarian side.

Worker Injured In Fall While Repairing Roof

William Goebel, 38, of 25 Centennial Street, Frostburg, is reported in "good condition" at Memorial Hospital where he was admitted Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock following a fall from a house roof while at work. He sufferd a fractured right arm. X-rays have been taken but hospital attaches last night did not know the full extent of his injuries.

Goebel, a former sheet metal worker at the Amcelle plant, was repairing a roof at a house on a corner of Cumberland and Carroll Streets. He apparently lost his footing and plunged about 25 feet to the sidewalk.

At noon today Alfred Mayo, stage manager of the Mazeppa company, and Harry Baer, assistant, were exercising the Arabian horse, "Lightning," on Baltimore street and in doing so allowed the horse to gallop at a pace beyond the legal limit. Police Officer Richard Growley knowing the fierce and fiery nature of the horse and fearing that he could not be held under control, placed Messrs. Allie Reynolds Hurls 4-Hitter, Beats Browns 6-1

Yankees Capture 13 Of 14 Home Games

NEW YORK, May 22 (AP)—The league-leading New York Yankees backed up Allie Reynolds' four-hit pitching today with an extra base barrage for a 6-1 victory over the St. Louis Browns.

Six of the nine hits exploded off Ned Garver, the Browns' ace, were for extra bases with first baseman Joe Collins blasting a triple and double. Bobby Brown contributed a triple and two singles. Yogi Berra hit his fifth home run.

The Yanks now have won 13 of 14 at the Yankee Stadium this year and six straight from the last place Brownies. Box:

Boston Red Sox Top Tigers, 6-3

BOSTON, May 22 (AP) — Catcher Les Moss, acquired only a week ago, broke the spell southpaw Ted Gray has cast on the Boston Red Sox today with a grandslam homer that overcame the Detroit Tigers, 6-3.

Gray, unbeaten by the Sockers since Aug. 5, 1949, dug his own grave in the seventh inning. Locked in a 2-2 tie, Gray passed two batters and saw the bases jammed because of an error. Then with two out, Moss homered over the left field screen.

Gray had faced the Red Sox seven times, three in relief, and had four decisions over them since they beat him two seasons ago.

Lefty Maury McDermott, reinstated as a starter only a few days ago, held the Tigers to seven hits. Box:

Coast Bookie Fined $3,500

Scroggins Convicted In Cage Bribe Case

LOS ANGELES, May 22 (AP) — Albert R. Scroggins, ex-jockey's agent with a record of 30 arrests on bookmaking charges, was fined $3,500 today for trying to fix a championship basketball game between Southern California and UCLA.

He was convicted of attempting to bribe USC forward Ken Flower to throw a southern division Pacific Coast Conference title game for $1,500 last March 3. Flower's team beat the University of California at Los Angles 43-41.

Today Superior Judge Philip H. Richards said that although he wanted to crack down on fixing of college games, no money passed between Scroggins, 31, ex-paratrooper, and Flower. So the jurist imposed only a fine. He could have been sentenced to five years in prison.

However, if Scroggins cannot pay he must serve out the sentence at the rate of a day in jail for each $10.

Originaly Scroggins pleaded innocent because of insanity. After his conviction he asked for probation.

The district attorney's office, which investigated the case, said it found no connection between Scroggins and the New York bribery scandal.

Homestead Grays, Famed Negro Team, Gives Up Baseball

PITTSBURGH, May 22 (AP)—The once fabulous Homestead Grays, oldest negro baseball team, quit today.

Seward Posey, business manager, gave financial setbacks and the egress of the best negro talent into organized baseball as the reasons.

Posey said an attempt might be made to reorganize the team next year. He said the club lost $10,000 in 1950.

Last season, the Grays played in the Negro American Association Baseball League. Before that they were members of the Negro National Baseball League.

The late Cum Posey organized the team in 1910 and built it into a national attraction. In 1935, Cum joined forces with Rufus Jackson, two years after the Grays entered the Negro National League. In that circuit, the Grays won 10 straight pennants and the world title six times.

The victory was the Beall left hander's 8th of the season and his 15th consecutive over a two-year span in the circuit without a single setback. His 14 strikeout victims yesterday up his season total to 99, an average of 12 per game.

Arnone had a no-run, no-hit game to his credit until the final frame when Kreigline beat out a bunt and scored on Minnick's double to center.

Leo Brady rapped a double and triple and George Miller smacked a double and single and drove in two of the Mountaineers' four runs.

Sloan's Homer Wins

LaSalle High School's Explorers broke into the win column for the first time in the triangular city series by knocking off Fort Hill at North End to the tune of 8-1.

A grand slam homer by Jack Sloan in the first inning decided the issue. Jack hit for four bases with Briner, Farrell and Byrnes aboard. Five runs were racked up by LaSalle in the big opening frame.

Doug Connolly, LaSalle twirler, retired in order the first ten men to face him, held the Sentinels to six hits and struck out 11. Null, the 11th batter to face Connolly, singled and Cage drove him home with a triple for Fort Hill's lone tally of the game in the 4th frame.

Bill Briner of LaSalle and Cage led the swatsmiths with a triple and single each. Mike Cunningham's one-handed stab of a line drive which he converted into an unassisted double play was the fielding highlight.

Barton Wallops Ball

Barton High School made its record 5-5 for the season by tagging Central High of Lonaconing with an 18-6 defeat in a game played at Barton.

Coach Johnny Thomas' Braves larruped the pellet for 14 safeties while "Tim" Clark was holding the visitors in check after the second stanza.

Bill Kirk led Barton's stickers with a double and two singles while Kenneth Burt, the losing pitcher slammed a homer, triple and double for the Tigers. Tommy Kelly's running catch of Arnold Tichnell's long drive to center field was the fielding gem.

Bobby Raines struck out 15 batsmen to send his season total soaring to the 100 mark as Bruce High School whipped Allegany High at Westernport, 5 to 4.

Raines won his own game in the 5th inning when he singled to drive in the tying and winning runs during a three-run rally. Raines and Ronnie Sisk, Allegany twirler, turned in four-hit performances.

Raines has won six games and lost one.

13 Americans Win Matches In Britain

Chapman, Urzetta, Stranahan Advance In Amateur Golf

By THOMAS C. WATSON

PORTHCAWL, South Wales, May 22—(INS)—Thirteen Americans — including defending champion Frank Stranahan — swept through second-round matches today in the U. S.—dominated British Amateur Golf Tournament.

There appeared nothing unlucky in the number of Yankee survivors, for they encompassed almost the entire contingent of top-drawer American amateurs.

Seven statesiders were eliminated in today's second-round play in a driving rain, two at the hands of fellow-Americans and two by default. But the only major loss was that of Walker Cupper Harold Paddock of Cleveland.

Paddock was defeated by Graham Packer of South Africa, 3 and 2.

Along with Stranahan, United States amateur champion Sam Urzetta of Rochester, N. Y.; Dick Chapman of Pinehurst, N. C., the 1950 British runner-up, and former U. S. and British titleholder Willie Turnesa of White Plains, N. Y., advanced without mishap.

So did their Walker Cup teammates Bill Campbell of Huntington, W. Va., Jim McHale of Philadelphia, Charles Coe of Oklahoma City and Bob Knowles of Boston.

Knowles Forces Stranahan

Either Stranahan or Knowles must be eliminated tomorrow, however, in the morning round of 32 matches, for they are paired against each other. Knowles defeated Graham Knipe of Wales, 3 and 2, today while Bill Ebert of San Francisco conceded to Stranahan with the latter dormie seven up.

Another American who may not last through third round play is Dr. Nicholas N. Nicholas of Owensboro, Ky., a 4-and-2 conqueror today of Welshman Francis Watt. Nicholas is paired tomorrow with Joe Carr, veteran Irish internationalist, who is Britain's chief hope to thwart Yankee domination of the tournament.

Both Carr and another British Walker cupper, Alex Kyle, galloped through their matches today.

Urzetta Is 3-2 Winner

Urzetta — hoping for a "little slam" of amateur titles — expressed dissatisfaction with his play although he disposed of England's Steve Tredinnick, 3 and 2. Chapman downed P. M. Kelly, 3 and 1, and Turnesa defeated Argentina's Rudolfo Bullrich, 6 and 5.

Campbell eliminated Henry Howell, 50-year-old Welsh internationalist, 5 and 3; McHale defeated K. G. Patrick of Scotland, 6 and 5, and Coe trounced his fellow Sooner, George Coleman of Miami, Okla., 6 and 5.

Other Americans to triumph were Walker Cup alternate Francis (BO) Wininger, Pleasantville, N. J., 4 and 3, over C. D. Lawrie; Harreld Kirkpatrick, Owensboro, Ky., one up, over Jackson Taggert; E. E. Lowery, San Francisco, 3 and 2, over H. H. Palmer, and USAF Maj. W. D. Henderson of New York, one up, over K. W. Walker.

W. P. Scott, Jr., of San Francisco lost to Ralph Duncan, 4 and 2; Wilbur Muirhead of Scotland defeated Ted Bassett of Rye, N. Y., 4 and 3, and both Richard Gibson of Los Angeles and T. R. Garlington of Atlanta, Ga., defaulted.

B. & O. BOWLING LEAGUE CHAMPIONS—Defeating the 11-7 Machinists by 200 pins and the Freight House by the margin of 140 sticks in the rolloffs, the Pipe Fitters, pictured above, won the championship of the Baltimore and Ohio CTP Bowling League for the 1950-51 season. The champs were honored at a recent banquet held at the Bowman's Addition Fire Hall. Members of the championship team, left to right, are: FIRST ROW—Gerald Athey, Joseph F. Screen and George D. Eury. SECOND ROW—A. E. Burner, John A. Bender and Jack Hill.

British Netmen Beat France, 3-2

Mottram's Singles Win Decides Series

LONDON, May 22 (AP) — Tony Mottam, England's veteran tennis ace, defeated France's Paul Remy, 6-2, 6-4, 6-4, today to give his country a 3-2 victory over France in the second round of the European zone Davis Cup competition.

Mottram's decisive triumph was scored in the first of the final two singles matches today. It gave England a 3-1 edge and reduced the final match to a formality.

England then substituted Paddy Roberts for Geoff Paish in the final match to give the youngster some cup experience. He put up a great battle before bowing to Bernard Destremau, a veteran Internationalist, in a five-set marathon, 7-5, 6-2, 6-8, 3-6, 6-3.

England will meet the crack Swedish team in the quarter-final round. That round must be completed by June 19.

Other quarter-final pairings:

Italy vs Poland; Germany vs Belgium; and the Philippines vs The Netherlands.

SPORTS GRILL

by Pat Robinson

International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK, May 22 (INS)—Ed Lopat, the Yanks' veteran lefthander who has already hung up seven straight victories without defeat, calls the Indians his cousins.

And, as you know, a cousin in baseball parlance, is a soft touch.

Ed's control over the Cleveland club is amazing. He has beaten the Indians eleven straight times and in the last eight years his record against them is 30 victories wth only six defeats.

Ed figures if he had only Cleveland to pitch against he might be a cinch to make the Hall of Fame. But he insists there is no mystery about his dominance over the Indians, and adds:

"At first I got a few good breaks in beating them. Then they probably began to worry and think they couldn't beat me and began pressing too hard. Meanwhile, my own confidence grew and, of course, I think I know how to pitch to them."

There have been scores of famous cousins in the game. One year when Babe Ruth was in his prime, Doc Pruett, an ordinary lefty with the Browns, fanned the mighty Babe 13 times in a row. It got to be quite a joke for everybody but Babe, especially when the pitcher would tell Babe he was going to fan him on a screwball and then make good on the promise.

But one day Babe hit that screwball out of the lot and that was the end of the jinx.

It works the other way, too. Doc Gautreau, one of the smallest players who ever made the majors, used to hit Dazzy Vance with the greatest of ease although he couldn't hit anybody else.

If Gautreau had nobody but Vance to hit against he would have set an all-time slugging record. The Gautreau jinx was never a mystery to Dazzy who explained it this way:

"He's so darn short I have to let up on my pitch to get the ball over and when I do he conks it."

The most famous of all jinxes was the one Carl Mays, the Red Sox and Yankee hurler, held over the Athletics. He trimmed them 21 straight times. And when he moved over to the National League his sway over the Phillies was almost as good.

Harry Coveleskie was only an ordinary pitcher against all clubs except the Giants but facing them he was a wonder. He once drove the late John McGraw into a rage by pitching out of turn to beat the Giants out of a pennant.

Carl Hubbell was a master lefty but he would never have made the Hall of Fame if he had to pitch always against the Dodgers who beat him with great regularity.

On the other hand, Freddy Fitzsimmons, now coaching the Giants, had only to toss in his glove and the Dodgers were licked.

Tommy Byrne, the Yanks' wild lefthander, has a tough time beating anybody except the Tigers against whom his over-all mark is 12 victories against four defeats.

These jinxes are often hard to explain. But they do exist. Any great hiter will tell you of some paluka pitcher he can't hit and any star pitcher can tell you of some .186 hitter he can't get out.

When Chicago White Sox rookie outfielder, Jim Busby, was in the Army he was selected as the most valuable player on the Camp Hood baseball team.

Governor's Veto

state agency would be ill-advised particularly at this time when a study of the State Government and its departments, bureaus and agencies is being launched by the Sobeloff Commission.

"I believe the proposed new agency would invade the realms of responsibility and duplicate much of the work of the state subdivisions, the public schools, the churches, the departments of recreation, the departments of public welfare, various private and semi-public organizations, and other agencies that are now functioning."

During the past year seven major projects had been developed for Youth Commission action. First of these was in immediate organized community effort to enable all children of ages 3, 7, 10 and 13 to receive the benfits of topical application of sodium fluoride as a proved measure for the partial prevention of dental decay. A second project was a concentrated effort toward development of resources for family counseling. Another was that testing and counseling facilities be expanded by the Employment Service Division of the Department of Employment Security to include youth 14 and 15 years of age.

Population Problem

Listed as another Youth Commission project was a campaign of information to have parents and citizens generally realize the extent of the unprecedented growth in school population facing the state in the next 10 to 15 years, calling for unusual effort to provide enough buildings and supply enough teachers to meet the need.

Cited as another program for the Youth Commission was special attention to the state-wide need for institutional care of children over 12 years old, now excluded from admission to many children's institutions.

Other recommendations were stimulated lay interest and participation in planning on a local level in order to establish services which will preserve family life and a need for continuation of the Recreation Committee of the State Youth Advisory Committee to stimulate and implement recreational programs by giving consideration to recreation as it affects the welfare of the people as a whole.

The Central Young Men's Christian Association asks you to become a sustaining member to help further the work among the youth of this community. Some of the Ways Your "Y" Builds a Foundation for Citizenship . . .

It trains young people in health and physical fitness
Health is a pre-requisite to good citizenship. Stalwart bodies kept in fine conditions are the result of YMCA training. In gymnasium, swimming pool and special exercise room this training goes on day after day throughout the year.

It gives young people the chance to belong to a group
The best training for democratic citizenship is practical experience in small self-governing groups. In Y clubs, committees and councils, youth learns to accept responsibility and assume leadership.

It provides wholesome social and recreational experience
Friendships and fun developed under right conditions are a powerful antidote for juvenile crime and resentment against society. Hundreds of young people have developed right habits of recreation and social skills to give them assurance and poise at the Y.

It provides clean, inexpensive housing for young men away from home
The Y dormitory has been a "home away from home" for thousands of men, among whom are some of our most prominent citizens. Nothing is more important to the future citizenship of the young stranger in town than the right place to stay.

It served in 1950 a total of 2,862 different members who participated regularly in the Y's year around program.
Of these members 247 youngsters received complimentary memberships.

It provides experience in sports and athletics
Many prominent athletes played on their first teams in YMCA's. The Y provides sports competition for many young people in their leisure time. The values of clean athletics carry over as these young people take their places in the games of life. The Y gave an outlet for that competitive urge.

It arranges forums, discussions and citizenship classes where young people may share ideas and learn responsibility
In Y club meetings, conferences, forums, citizenship classes and marriage classes, the opportunity to " have one's say" is encouraged. Young people are not only taught good principles of citizenship by leaders and speakers but they have a chance to raise questions and have them answered.

It provides facilities for the constructive use of leisure time for community groups
The 'Y' besides its own program, offers its facilities to many community groups.

It provides opportunity for practical citizenship in its Youth and Government program
The 1950 Boy-Governor of Maryland was John Diuguid of the Allegany Hi-Y Club. John was selected as an official delegate of the National YMCA to the Mid-Century White House Conference.

Blow At Fair Trade Laws Unlikely To Save Average Shopper Money

(By The Associated Press)

The U. S. Supreme Court's blow at fair trade laws in 45 states apparently won't save the average shopper any money—at least for some time to come.

There were hints of price wars in liquor and drugs in some areas. A liquor distributor in New Orleans commented:

"The lid's off. Here we go."

And the attorney general of Wisconsin, Vernon Thomson, said the court's decision will have a "tremendous effect" on business practices there. He didn't go into detail, however.

Most merchants didn't seem very concerned for a number of reasons.

The Supreme Court said a merchant who has not signed a fair trade agreement can charge what he wants to for what he sells.

But the decision apparently does not affect merchants who have signed fair trade agreements covering goods that are sold nationally. Nor, apparently, does it affect the sale under fair trade laws of goods that originate and are sold in one state only.

And if a merchant wants to start cutting prices on nationally advertised goods, what's to prevent the manufacturer from just refusing to supply him with products for cut price sale?

Moreover, trade sources also pointed out, merchants aren't anxious to start price wars these days, when most of them are under federal price control, or threatened with it.

By states, here are some of the first reactions to the Supreme Court decision:

Kentucky — One liquor dealer plans to "start cutting prices right away." But others don't think the court decision will have much effect.

Maryland—Hilllard Donner, a cutrate liquor dealer at Annapolis, says he's going back to selling at lower prices. He was fined $1,500 for doing just that under fair trade law.

ON THE LINE

By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK — (INS) — Leonard Lyons, the Broadway columnist, recently printed a number of items dealing with the Rosenbergs, convicted atomic spies, suggesting that they could still save themselves from the chair if they implicated now unknown confederates.

The accounts appeared at a time when the attorney for Mrs. Rosenberg was attempting to have her removed from the death house at Sing Sing, on the ground that it is inhuman to keep a convicted person there pending appeal.

The attorney saw fuel for his fire in Lyons' comments, and charged before Judge Knox in Federal Court that the items had been planted by government men seeking to break down the iron composure of the convicted spies.

Lyons was given an opportunity to appear in court to deny that he was serving as an agent of the government in this case. The Rosenberg attorney then asked that Lyons be directed by the court to reveal the source of his items.

The newspaperman refused, through his attorney, Rudolph Halley, late of the Kefauver committee, and Judge Knox took the matter under advisement — to ponder whether this constituted contempt. The judge's illness, and the government's reluctance to press for a contempt charge in a highly controversial matter, have caused a pigeonholing of the case for the time being.

• — • — •

Lyons, who is an attorney, tells me that he is willing to offer himself as the guinea pig in a showdown, though he is fully aware that by doing so he would risk a fine and imprisonment. This has caused some amusement in the lightweight field of letters, but Lyons himself is not joining in the merriment. It's a serious crusade with him.

The case has served to straighten out a widespread misconception of the law. It has been commonly believed for a long time that the Peter Zenger trial of Revolutionary times established for all time the rights of newsmen to shield their sources.

Zenger's case involved only the right and duty of a newspaper to print the truth, though it might hurt the politicos currently in power. The question of source-revealing played no role in that historic precedent.

Irving Saypol, the brilliant U. S. attorney who prosecuted the Rosenbergs and who would be called upon to prosecute his friend Lyons if the court held Lyons in contempt, informs me that there is no federal code excusing a newspaperman from identifying his informants in a contested story.

Three of the 48 states, Saypol says, have such laws—but none of the three in New York. In the absence of a New York state law, Lyons must rest his case on the federal government's immunity laws now extended only to clergymen, doctors and lawyers. Those are the only groups specifically entitled to shield the names of their confidants. The law upholds the anonymity of the confessional, that of patients, and of clients.

"I'm sorry the whole thing came up," Saypol told me. "But if I'm directed to go through with it, I will, of course. And like every other case I've worked on, I'll play it right down the middle."

Saypol denies that he or anyone in his office planted the teasers in Lyons' column.

In the meantime, Mrs. Rosenberg remains in the death house. And Lyons, unfairly introduced into the case for printing what must be apparent to all (the willingness of the government to commute the Rosenberg death sentence to long prison terms if they help it solve other phases of the atomic spying conspiracy) is dead game on the question of improving the position of the newsmen in court, though his liberty is at stake.

Headsville Man Is Seminary Graduate

Howard Ray Hall, Headsville, in Mineral County, W.Va., was one of 23 ministerial students who received degrees and diplomas yesterday at the 68th commencement exercises of Westminster Theological Seminary in Westminster.

The seminary is associated with but not actually a part of Western Maryland College. It is supported and administered by the Methodist Church. Bishop Lloyd C. Wicke, Methodist bishop of Pittsburgh, Pa., was the principal commencement speaker.

Westernport To Give Vacations To Employes

WESTERNPORT — The employes of the Town of Westernport will be given a vacation. Those employed by the town for one fiscal year will be given one week of vacation and those employed for five years of uninterrupted employment, two weeks.

In the provision passed by Mayor George P. Kight and Commissioners Monday night, an employe must have worked at least 250 days during the year.

It was ordered that a parking meter be placed opposite the Westernport post office. The meter sometime ago was removed, permitting 15 minutes free parking at the post office to transact business, but city officials decided that it has not aided the parking problem.

William Brashear conferred with city officials relative to purchase the new weighting scales the town has ordered or to buy and operate the old ones. After some discussion, it was decided he would inspect the old scales and buy them if they could agree on a price.

BLAWRENCE GOULD, Consulting Psychologist

Should divorce be a "punishment"?

Answer: o, says the Interprofessional Cmmission on Marriage and Divor Laws set up by the American r Association. "The philosophy guilt and punishment as applied divorce is unsound." For one tig, the partner who is divorced foupposed or actual misbehavior ually wants his or her freedom auch as the other and so is not ry punished at all. For another, rcourt can say positively that one rtner is wholly responsible for e failure of a marriage. Among ple who regard divorce as moral permissible, the approach should b a therapeutic one."

Will spitalization help a stutterer?

Answer: No, says a pamphlet issued by the National Hospital for Speech Disorders, New York. It does no good in the long run for a stutterer either to be under constant supervision or to associate only with people who understand and sympathize with his difficulties. He may find a temporary relief in such an "artificial environment" but it will not cure him. "Overcoming stuttering is essentially a matter of learning how to live out in the world and with other people, and this cannot be done in a cloister."

May being snubbed make a child delinquent?

Answer: Yes, for while the conflicts that drive a child to delinquency have their roots in his home life, they are certainly intensified by other experiences which strengthen his "first impressions." A child who has felt "rejected" by his parents may be driven to actual law-breaking by snubs from his schoolmates, or by exclusion from their social organizations on the basis of his racial or cultural background. In joining a "gang" of petty thieves, for instance, he at once gets even for the neglect he feels he has suffered and gains the sense of "belonging."

The French Language

PARIS

French is an eloquent language which must be seen to be fully understood or sometimes even to be comprehended at all. That is why the telephone has always defeated the French.

John Crosby

The shrugs, the gestures, the rolling eyes, the expressive hands are missing on le telephone which means the nuances—the essence of the message to be conveyed—are missing, too. Sometimes two Frenchmen can't understand each other on le telephone.

That means radio is not for the French. The machine talks, yes, but it doesn't really talk. About 30 per cent of the French language cannot be conveyed by a box which simply stands there motionless. The box has no soul. The French, therefore, have simply walked away from radio as we know it and employ it largely as an instrument for the diffusion—which is the French way of saying broadcasting—of music.

The three national French networks—Programme Nationale, Programme Parisienne, and Paris-Inter (Only God and the French know what Paris-Inter means)—sound to these untrained American ears pretty much like WNEW and WQXR in New York. You get a mixture of popular and classical music on all three, though Programme Nationale is likely to be a little heavier in density than the other two. Apart from news, you won't hear much talk which is all right with me.

Turn a radio on in a French hotel and you'll think you're home again. In comes Mademoiselle Judy Garland singing "I'm Tired of the City" dans cettel langue barbare, Anglais. American popular music is just as popular here as it is in America. Of course, it's not always sung in English. One of the most exquisite experiences I have yet had in Paris is listening to "Bewitched, Bothered and Bewildered" sung in French. (I'm going to learn how to sing "Bewitched, Bothered and Bewildered" in French if it kills me).

The great thing about "Bewitched, Bothered and Bewildered" sung in French is that the mood of the song is completely transformed. It becomes un chanson Parisien—haunting, delicate and somehow more elegant than the love song Rogers and Hart had in mind when they wrote it. I might add that this applies equally well to American songs sung in English—if sung by the French. A French chanteuse singing "The Lady Is A Tramp" in English—or what she thinks is English—is as French as the Rue de la Paix.

As for the Voice of America, it is, according to all evidence, not heard in Paris. That does not mean it is not broadcast in Paris. It is broadcast here but, as I say, not heard. An acquaintance of mine expressed it aptly: "You can always tell when the Voice of America is on the air by leaning out the windows. You'll hear the click of radios being turned off all over Paris."

The French simply don't understand what the hell the Voice of America is talking about. They find the Voice not only bewildering but faintly ludicrous. I'm inclined to agree. One program for example, is called "Ici New York" which is roughly comparable to "And now—we give you San Francisco." Or in this case, New York.

This is likely to start with some such vital message from the American people as this: "Nous voila au Stork Club. Monsieur Billingsley nous dit bon soir et puis voila une francaise. On l'a reconnait comme chic Parisienne do son chapeau. Je voius presente Morton Downey. Il est un fameux chanteur de ballades Irelandaises."

The average Parisian doesn't know what the Stork Club is and couldn't care less about Monsieur Sherman Billingsley. Much of the Voice's message here consists of records and the French complain bitterly about the quality of the records. They are very old records, many of them Negro spirituals. The French have a great fondness for our spirituals, know a great deal about them and feel strongly that the Voice's selections couldn't be worse. One Frenchwoman told me that every time she turned on the Voice, all she got was "Old Man River."

"As for the rest of it—discussion programs," she said. "A bunch of people sitting around a table discussing what goes on in Arkansas. You know, Monsieur Crosby, I don't care what goes on in Arkansas."

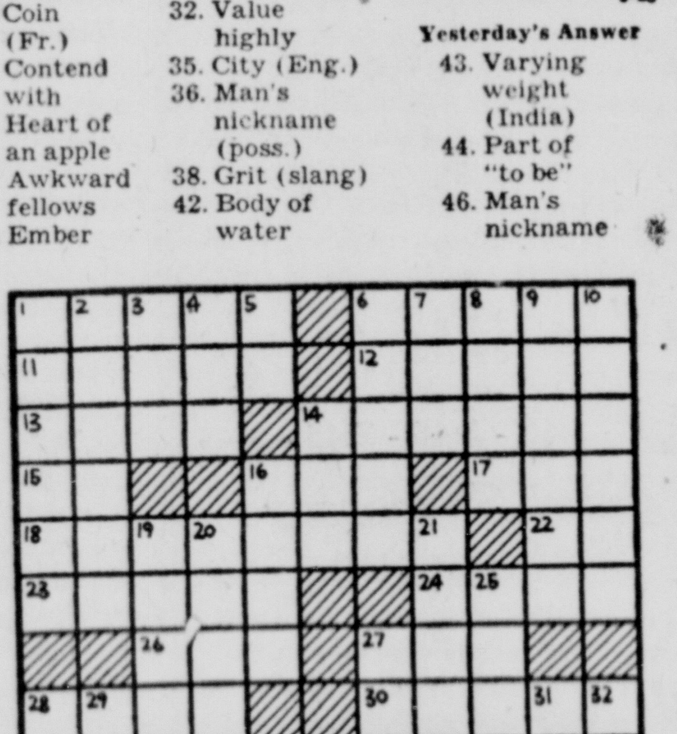
Yesterday's Answer



DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

A Cryptogram Quotation

T U S P F N T W A J C O F I F U I N P J W F
O K L W F N T W W J — A J N O F L.

Yesterday's Cryptoquote: NOR WAR, NOR BATTLE'S SOUND, WAS HEARD THE WORLD AROUND—MILTON.

A fellow sitting oposite us I doped out as a big cattle and oil man from "Deep in the Heart of" . . . His cream-colored, ten-gallon hat and high-heeled riding boots would cause quite a stir at Maxim's.

In the plane most of the other traveling males wore nylon shirts, indicating they planned to save on laundry . . . We all sighed and sank back on the new sponge rubber chairs to enjoy our cocktail before dinner . . . They actually served cocktails to the passengers but the stewardess said she knew where to draw the line. "When they've had too many they begin to walk around too much. And they want to tell me long stories."

"That's about the same on the ground," I commented, "I'll take a glass of sherry."

And the nice stewardess, Miss Mary Pertzborn, gave us miniature bottles of the best champagne with our steak for dinner.

I began to suspect we weren't flying to Toledo after all!

Market Backs Down Before Only Mild Selling Pressure

NEW YORK, May 22 (AP)—A timid stock market backed down today when confronted with only mild selling pressure.

This is the second straight decline and comes after last week's fall which was the greatest since the week ended July 2, 1950, when the United States intervened in Korea.

The fall was widely scattered through motors, rails, steels, and oils.

Hudson Motor Car highlighted motor industry difficulties with the announcement that it would suspend production today until June 11, affecting 10,000 workers, "in order to adjust inventories to balance with demand."

Hudson common closed off ¾ at 15¾.

Homestake Mining lost 2⅛ at 35¼ after directors declared a 50-cent dividend as against 75 cents previously paid quarterly.

In the list of most active issues, nearly two out of three were lower. The low-priced National Power & Light was the most active and closed unchanged at 75 cents.

Those following in order indicate the spread of the decline. New York Central was off ¼ at 18, General Motors off ¾ at 49¼, Socony Vacuum Oil off ¼ at 29¼, Canadian Pacific off ½ at 23⅛, and Chrysler off 1⅜ at 70⅜.

U. S. Steel manager to close ⅛ higher at 41⅞, eighth most active, and Radio Corp. made and held a gain of ⅜ at 18⅞ near the close, 11th most active.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks lost 40 cents at $91.90 with the industrial component off 40 cents, rails 50 cents, and utilities 10 cents.

The market contracted to 1,094 individual issues traded of which 304 advanced and 537 declined. Yesterday the total was 1,121 issues. There was only one new high for the year and 79 new lows.

Volume amounted to 1,440,000 shares as against 1,580,000 shares yesterday.

"The Authority on Authorities"

NOT OBVIOUS AT ALL

OFFHAND you would say that playing a particular suit the way that would give you the maximum number of tricks in it is obviously the winning procedure. If so, you may not consider that other factors could be more important. Perhaps it would be better to play that suit in a way that would give you one less trick in it, if by so doing you enable yourself to take two or more additional tricks in some other suit. That can well be the case when the alternative method develops a vital entry.

North and South were using Blackwood correctly. But that 5-No Trumps was no king-requester, as such a call never is unless preceded by 4-No Trumps. It was therefore a natural strength-shower, inviting South to bid slam if he had anything of value not yet shown. He had, so he bid the slam.

South failed to make that contract because he acted too promptly on the first trick. When West led the club 4, he "did the obvious" by playing low from dummy and letting the lead come up to his K-J, thereby assuring three tricks in the suit. His J took the 10, which he followed with two high spades, two top hearts, the club A and a spade given up to East. The latter refused to make the mistake of returning a club, which would have put South in with the K and enabled him to score winning hearts. Instead he picked the diamond Q. Unable to reach his own hand, South now had to lose a diamond to be down one.

All that South had to do, to make his contract, was be willing to take only two tricks in clubs. By winning the first trick with the A, he could have preserved the K as an entry for the heart Q and J. By next scoring two hearts, then giving up just the third spade trick, he would have made his slam contract a cinch.

Keyser Voters Favor Compton And Murray

General Election Comes On June 5

Chester J. Compton, candidate for mayor, and Raymon L. Murray, councilmanic candidate, received strong endorsements from the voters of Keyser, W. Va., in yesterday's primary election in the Mineral County seat.

Compton, an insurance salesman and former secretary of the Keyser-Mineral County Chamber of Commerce, received more than 56 per cent of the votes in the primary mayorality race against Councilman Lester H. Oates, who seeks to move into the mayor's post. Oates is employed by the Potomac Light and Power Company.

Murray, a former Keyser police chief, obtained more votes for council in yesterday election than his four opponents combined.

Complete Totals

Complete but unofficial totals:

For Mayor:

Chester J. Compton, 619.
Lester H. Oates, 486.

For Council:

Raymon L. Murray, 540.
Ellis M. Doll, 186.
James A. Jennings, 145.
Herman L. Rotruck, 108.
G. T. Martin, 92.

Ultimate winners of the two city posts will be determined in the Keyser general election Tuesday, June 5. Compton and Oates again will compete against each other and Doll will be the single opponent against Murray for council.

Carries All Three

In yesterday's voting Compton outpointing Oates at each of the three Keyser polling places. At the city clerk's office, where residents of the north and central section voted, Compton obtained his biggest margin, 240 to 146. At St. Mary's Hall, where West End residents cast their ballots, Compton had a margin of only four votes, 248 to 244. At the home of Mrs. H. W. Wolfe, 230 South Main Street, where South Siders cast ballots, Compton received 131 and Oates 96.

Murray topped his nearest opponent in each of the three polling places.

At the city clerk's office Murray had 203; Rotruck, 78; Doll, 36; Martin, 33, and Jennings, 29. At St. Mary's Hall the vote was Murray, 240; Jennings, 95; Doll, 82; Martin, 43, and Rotruck, 18. At the Wolfe residence the totals were Murray, 97; Doll, 68; Jennings, 21; Martin, 16, and Rotruck, 12.

Observers said yesterday's voting was extremely light. A total of about 3,000 voters usually turn out for a Keyser election.

Legion Auxiliary To Sponsor Poppy Day Program Saturday

Saturday is Poppy Day!

Fort Cumberland Post No. 13, American Legion Auxiliary, will join with all other Legion auxiliaries in the nation Saturday to help the sale of the crepe paper poppy in recognition of the heroic sacrifices of our disabled American veterans.

The sale of the poppy is conducted entirely by volunteer workers and the proceeds are used for the relief of disabled veterans and dependents of veterans who are dead or disabled.

The purpose of the auxiliary program is to place the symbol of the heroic sacrafice of war veterans before every American and at the same time give those disabled veterans a chance at employment making the tiny flower.

The resolution making the poppy the Legion's Memorial flower was adopted at the National Convention in Cleveland, Ohio, September, 1920. At first silk poppies made by French widows and orphans in France were used then the first American poppies were made by veterans in hospitals of Minnesota in 1922.

The crepe paper poppy was selected because it provided the maximum of work for the disabled men with low cost. Occupational therapy departments in the hospitals recognize the program as having high therapeutic value and the money earned helps the veterans keep their families and work their way to recovery more quickly.

Material for making the poppies is supplied by legion auxiliaries which also pays the wages of the disabled veterans throughout the manufacturing period.

Pasquino Editor Congratulated

Peggy Jo Davis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Davis, LaVale, is shown above being congratulated following the announcement of her appointment as 1951-52 editor-in-chief of the Pasquino, student newspeper of Potomac State College, Keyser, W. Va. The announcement was made last night by Dr. Elizabeth A. Atwater, faculty advisor, at the annual press banquet at Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club. Left to right are Eloise Oates, news editor, Miss Davis, Robert B. Sincell, advertising manager of Oakland Republican and guest speaker, Thomas Pendergast, graduating editor, and Dr. Atwater.

State Pension Plan Rejected By Firemen

Members of the Cumberland Fire Department this week rejected a proposal to join the State Retirement System.

The plan to abandon the present pension system in favor of joining the state plan was lost when members voted 22 for to 21 against the change. A three-fourth majority is required to make any change in the present plan.

Officials said there is a possibility of reconsideration of the action before July.

If the department should desire to enter the state plan, the action would have to be taken before the 1951 levy is set up, Arthur B. Gibson, city auditor, said yesterday.

He added that the city would be unable to accept the plan unless the budget included the cost of the accrued liability of members of the department.

All city employes except members of the Police and Fire Department are now members of the state system.

The Fire Department Pension Fund was set up in August, 1935, with members and the city each paying one per cent of the employes' salaries. In 1940, worker's contributions were upped to three per cent, with the city contributing five per cent.

Firemen said the fund will be overdrawn at the rate of $1,077 a month by June 1 and that the fund would be depleted in about 19 months at the present rate of pension payments.

The department also announced the election of a new Fire Department Pension Board. It includes Fire Chief J. T. Defibaugh, Harold Hipsley, of West Side Fire Company, and Herman Miller, of East Side Fire Company.

Oakland Newsman Cites Value Of College Degree

LaVale Student New Editor Of Pasquino

Completion of one's college education is an important factor in assuring the modern-day youth of a prosperous future" Robert B. Sincell, business manager of the Oakland Republican, told members of the Pasquino staff last night.

The occasion was the annual press banquet of the Potomac State College student publication held at Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club. Sincell pointed out that present day industry is inclined to rely more on the holder of a college degree for training in its particular field.

Stressing the importance of completing their college education Sincell told the students there are "few self made men nowadays" who work day and night in search for an education.

Sincell was editor of the Pasquino in 1947-48 in his Sophomore year. He graduated from West Virginia University's School of Journalism in 1950, where he served as business manager of the University newspaper, the Daily Athenaeum, in his senior year. Sincell's father, Donald R. Sincell, managing editor of the Oakland Republican was speaker at the press dinner in 1947.

Melvin McKenzie, graduating circulation manager of the college publication acted as toastmaster during the banquet. Announcement of Chief Staff Positions for 1951-52 was made by Dr. Elizabeth A. Atwater, faculty advisor, and a Cumberland student, Peggy Jo Davis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Davis, LaVale, will be editor-in-chief next year.

Ormond Knippenburg, Midland, will serve as news editor, Delores Smith, Fort Ashby, business manager, and Harry McCulloh, Piedmont, circulation manager.

Guests attending the banquet included Dr and Mrs. E. E. Church, Dean and Mrs. K. S. McKee, and Mrs. Robert B. Sincell.

Injured Chemist Remains Critical

Armand Joseph Collett, 25, formerly of Morgantown, W. Va., remained unconscious and in critical condition late last night at Miners' Hospital, Frostburg, as the result of injuries suffered in an accident Monday on Route 40, six miles west of Frostburg.

Collett has been employed at the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company plant here since April 30 as a chemist in the technical service section of the development department. He has been residing at the home of S. Hodge Smith, Braddock Road.

State Police learned yesterday that Collett left Morgantown two hours before his car crashed headon with a tractor-trailer. His father, Dr. A. R. Collett, is assistant dean of the West Virginia University College of Arts and Science.

Collett, who suffered a skull fracture, broken jaw and internal injuries, was returning to Cumberland when the accident occurred near Guntertown. A graduate chemist of West Virginia University, he is highly regarded by associates at the Kelly plant.

Robert E. Beal, 21, Route 1, Finksburg, Md., driver of the truck, and Frank Sealover, 21, Route 1 Westminister, riding with him, were also injured in the accident and admitted to Miners' Hospital for treatment. They were reported to be in satisfactory condition yesterday.

Trooper Glen D. Folk is withholding charges pending the outcome of Collett's injuries.

Equity Case Filed

An equity case was filed yesterday in Allegany County Circuit Court. The bill of complaint was titled Betty Walsh vs. Charles Walsh.

Battle-Weary Korea Veteran Recalls Past Year At Front

By CHARLES H. KELLY
News Staff Writer

"Being back in the United States just doesn't seem possible. It seems too good to be true." These words indicate the feeling of battle-weary M/Sgt. Richard Harper, 545 Fairview Street, who is home on furlough from Korea on the rotation plan.

The twice-wounded veteran of the Korean conflict received word of his trip back home while lying in a hospital bed on a Danish Hospital Ship the "Jutelindia" where he had been for 30 days.

Harper, a 27-year-old ruddy faced GI, had ben wounded for the second time in the Chungchong area on the 16th of March and got shell fragments in the back and legs. The first time he was hit was in August of last year in the Waejon campaign and this time he spent 50 days in a hospital in Japan.

Medics Act Quickly

He commented that due to quick action by the medics his life was saved. Harper enlisted in May, 1949, at Cumberland and after processing at Camp Stoneman, Calif., was made Pfc and shipped overseas to Japan with the 1st Cavalry Division.

In World War II he served three years in the CBI and was a member of the famed "Merrill's Marauders" which fought up through Burma. He commented on the "happy-go-lucky" outfit which really came through when the "chips were down." With the marauders he was a demolition specialist working with mines and bobby traps yet escaped injury throughout the three years.

When asked how he rose in rank so quickly the last year, he replied such a large turnover of men occured in the early Korean campaign he received his "stripes" in quick order. His enlistment is up in May of next year but he expects to "re-up" for an indefinite period.

Caught In Death Trap

He recalled being caught in one of the "death traps" in Korea and commented on how the outfit fought its way out. Harper remarked that the Chinese were fighting with anything and everything against the U. N. forces.

He holds high regard for the medics since he had occasion to benefit by their efforts on the field of battle. He smiled when commenting on PX rations and said the "Stars and Stripes" is keeping the soldier's well informed.

When asked what he thought of General MacArthur's ouster he said it was quite a blow to the boys on the front yet General Ridgway is a capable leader and well up on fighting tactics.

After his well earned rest at home M/Sgt Harper will report for reassignment at Fort George G. Meade, Md.

First Street Route Opened For Traffic

Construction work on the grading of First Street from South to Maple Street is nearing completion, Martin M. Corrigan, street superintendent, reported yesterday.

Still to be completed is the stabilization of the surface of the street, which will be done after the roadway has settled.

Only a temporary surfacing sufficient to stabilize the roadway is planned.

The street was opened for traffic this week.

Work on the 2,100-foot project, included grading a roadway and disposing of surplus materials.

The work, which was estimated to cost some $7,000, included several culverts and gutter drains. Construction began late last month.

The street will provide a new traffic artery from Mapleside to South Cumberland.

Furniture Bids On Mt. Savage School Received

One complete bid and 10 partial bids on furniture for the new Mt. Savage School were opened by the Allegany County Board of Education at its office on Washington Street yesterday afternoon but a decision was withheld pending a complete tabluation of the proposals.

Although none of the school officials made a complete tabulation yesterday afternoon, an informal check indicated the cost of students' desks, tables and chairs, science laboratory furniture, library teachers' desks and chairs, auditorium chairs, office furniture and filing cabinets would run above $40,000.

Analysis Planned

School Superintendent Charles L. Kopp said an item by item analysis would be made. He added that contracts will be awarded to low bidders providing quality meets minimum standards.

Concerned over the high cost of furniture, Kopp observed that prices on some of the items were three or four times what they were in the mid-1930s when furniture was bought for Fort Hill High School.

Present for the bid-opening besides Kopp were Edgar A. Dashiell, board chairman; Wilbur V. Wilson, board member; Richard T. Rizer, assistant superintendent of schools, and representatives of some of the bidding firms.

Bids were submitted by four Cumberland firms, three others from Baltimore, two from Pennsylvania and one each from Delaware and Virginia.

One Complete Bid

The only complete bid was presented by the Flowers School Equipment Company, Richmond, Va., which submitted proposals aggregating $42,260.87, according to an unofficial tabulation.

Partial bidders included The Marquis Company, 128 Bedford Street; Ankeney Company, 27 North Centre Street; B. Beneman and Sons, 41 North Mechanic Street; Cumberland Office Supply Company, 17 North Liberty Street; James T. Vernay & Sons Company, Baltimore; Kurtz Brothers, Clearfield, Pa.; Bradley Distributing Company, Middletown, Del.; Edward L. Rieha Company, Baltimore; William H. Blohm, Jr., Baltimore, and Gaylord Company, Philadelphia.

Park Pool To Open May 30

Final plans for opening Constitution Park pool are being completed, Edmund F. Hoey, city recreation director, announced yesterday.

The pool will formally open May 30, Decoration Day, and remain open until Labor Day.

Thomas Hopwood, pool manager, is supervising re-calking of the pool and floors of the bath house and all benches are being painted in preparation for opening the season.

The Mayor and Council on Monday confirmed appointment of a 14-member staff for the swim center.

Hoey said student admissions will be 16 cents, which includes 13 cent admission and three cents federal tax. Adult tickets will cost 30 cents, which includes 21 cents admission, four cents federal tax and the new five cent tax on adult admissions earmarked for the recreation program.

Judge Rules Insurance Firm Is Not Liable

Says Insured Did Not Cooperate

An opinion and decree which cited that the Fidelity and Casualty Company of New York is not liable on a certain automobile liability insurance policy because the insured failed to abide by the cooperation clause were filed yesterday in Allegany County Circuit Court by Associate Judge George Henderson.

In his decree, Judge Henderson wrote that the insurance company, is not liable under its automobile insurance policy which was issued on or about May 1, 1949, to George Franklin Shuck and Florence C. Shuck, his wife, or to Nellie M. Shuck, his mother, for injuries suffered by Nellie M. Shuck on or about June 17, 1949, while a passenger in a car driven by her son.

Equity Suit

This decree was entered in an equity suit which was filed in Allegany County Circuit Court by the Fidelity and Casualty Company of New York against George Franklin Shuck, Florence C. Shuck and Nellie M. Shuck.

Judge Henderson's decree also referred to a $5,000 damage suit brought by Nellie M. Shuck against her son, George Franklin Shuck. He decreed that the order passed November 22, 1949, enjoining Nellie M. Shuck from taking further proceedings in the suit by her against her son be continued pending any appeal. Should no appeal be taken, the injunction is dissolved as of the 31st day after the date of the decree.

In his lengthy opinion, Judge Henderson observes Mrs. Nellie M. Shuck was injured on June 17, 1949, while riding in her son's automobile, which he was driving, collided with a truck in Baltimore. At the time, George and Florence Shuck, his wife, were living in Silver Spring. Mrs. Nellie Shuck returned to her home in Frostburg about three days after the accident.

Sold Business

About July 1, 1949, Shuck sold a jewelry business which he operated in Silver Spring and his home there and sent his household furniture to his wife's parents in Cumberland.

The equity case was filed in November, 1949, based on his failure to comply with the cooperation clause of his policy. This states: "The insured shall cooperate with the company and, upon the company's request, shall attend hearings and trials and shall assist in effecting settlements, securing and giving evidence, obtaining the attendance of witnesses and in the conduct of suits.

In the opinion, Judge Henderson cites that Shuck arranged with G. Gregg Everngam, Silver Spring attorney, to represent his mother. However, Everngam never saw Mrs. Shuck. Everngam subsequently wrote to the insurer offering to settle the claim for $500. The insurer offered only $350.

A few days before Shuck left for Florida, where he intended to stay, in November, 1949, he took his wife to the office of Edward J. Ryan, local attorney, and advised the attorney that he was leaving November 18. Suit was filed November 17, 1949, by Ryan on behalf of Nellie M. Shuck. The next day the son went to the sheriff's office here, accepted service of the summons and immediately left for Florida.

Judge Henderson's opinion concludes:

"From the foregoing it will be seen that Shuck's conduct went far beyond mere failure to cooperate. He was not only assisting his mother to make claim; he was actually directing the prosecution of it.

"Had the mother recovered a judgment in the suit against the son, and thereafter sued the insurer, upon the facts being proved which have been proved in this case, it would be the duty of the court to direct a verdict for the insurer."

In this equity case the insurance company was represented by Attorneys W. Earle Cobey and C. William Gilchrist. George Franklin Shuck and Florence C. Shuck were represented by Attorney Harold E. Naughton. Nellie M. Shuck was represented by Attorney Ryan.

Court House Vestibule Painting Starts

Two painters yesterday began interior painting in the Allegany County Court House.

Clyde S. Kuhns, Narrows Park, last Friday was awarded the contract to paint the vestibule and first-floor men's rest room at the Court House by the Allegany County Board of Commissioners on a bid of $60.

Governor's Veto Also Ends County Youth Commission

Governor McKeldin's veto of the bill to create a Maryland Youth Commission also has written finis to the Allegany County Youth Commission, which had been functioning locally in cooperation with the state agency, according to Homer S. Higgins, who had been serving as county chairman.

Higgins said yesterday that he will send individual letters to all of the approximately 30 persons in this county who served with him on the County Youth Commission. Local members were appointed by the Allegany County Board of Commissioners.

His letter reads in part:

"I want to take this opportunity to thank all of you who participated in what we believe was one of the greatest projects ever undertaken to pull together material on the resources and needs in relation to youth and children. More than 30 persons took part in the work. Especially do I want to thank the public and private agencies and individuals who gave so unstintingly of their time."

The Maryland Youth Commission was set up originally by former Governor Herbert R. O'Conor and reactivated by former Governor William Preston Lane. It had two paid staff members — an assistant to the director and a stenographer. The former will leave June 1 and the latter sometime during June. This will liquidate the State Commission.

Sees Duplication

In his veto message Governor McKeldin wrote concerning the Commission:

"I believe the creation of a new

ALLIES POUND RED BREAKTHROUGH

Bradley Says Probe Harms Security

Concedes War In Korea Might Just Peter Out

Sen. Tobey Pleads For End To Inquiry

WASHINGTON, May 22 (AP)—Gen. Omar Bradley warned senators today the inquiry into Gen. Douglas MacArthur's ouster may incite Russia to war but he also hinted peace may come to Korea if the Allies smash the big Red offensive now underway.

The five-star General conceded the possibility the Korean fighting might just peter out without a negotiated peace or that the Chinese might agree to peace terms with or without Russia's approval.

Bradley gave these mixed views to the Senate Armed Services and Foreign Relations Committees on the 15th day of hearings into the reasons behind the dismissal of Gen. MacArthur.

Bradley said of the inquiry: "I think it is very harmful to our security and to our country and to our future security to have to pass on to Russia all of our intentions, all of our thoughts, all of our capabilities."

Probe "Demanded By People"

Sen. Cain (R-Wash) suggested the hearings are informing Russia that the free nations will resist aggression "only to a point short of risking war with Russia." And he asked if this might not encourage Russia to start "limited but very destructive aggression" in areas other than Korea.

Bradley replied: "I think that what you say is probably very true, that we are unnecessarily inciting Russia to war—maybe not unnecessarily—but it becomes necessary because of the nature of these hearings x x x.

"I am sorry we have had to do this, but since it is demanded by the people, and is inherent in our form of government, here it is and I just hope it doesn't cause too much trouble in the future."

Bradley declared the present U. N. objective is not to drive the Chinese and North Korean Red armies "clear out of North Korea" although the long range political aim still is a free and unified Korea.

He added: "As far as the military, immediate military objective, is concerned, I think we would consider it a victory with something less than that."

Tobey Urges End To Inquiry

Sen. Long (D-La) drew from Bradley his views on the possible endings to the Korean conflict.

Long said: "Do you think there is some possibility of this war simply petering out around the 38th parallel even without negotiating a peace? In other words, our forces getting back to the 38th parallel, a little below, and the Communists

Demonstrating Iranians Assail U. S. And Britain

Death Of Mossadegh Demanded By Leftists

TEHRAN, Iran, May 22 (AP)—About 30,000 Iranians, waving Moslem religious banners, booed the United States and Britain today at a demonstration threatening a holy war if necessary to nationalize oil.

Sweating under the sun, the crowd went into a frenzy when the black-bearded, black-turbaned Chams Ghanatabadi, leader of the militant Mujaheddin Islam (Fighters for Islam) declared:

"All loyal Moslems will throw the British bandits into the Persian Gulf if they do not leave the country."

Another speaker, Hossein Makki, declared a recent statement by the U. S. Department which the Iranians regard as backing the British stand against nationalization, was "a stab in the back of the Iranian nation."

At an earlier rally, leftists called for the death of Premier Mohammed Mossadegh, who has locked himself in his parliament building chambers since May 14. The leftists engaged in a flurry of fist fights with Mossadegh supporters.

There was an air of crisis in the capital. Police and army officials were on 24-hour alert. Flying squads of truck-borne police and mounted police patrolled the streets. A dozen tanks rumbled into the city this morning.

The mass meeting called by Moslem leaders and Mossadegh's national bloc cheered a resolution which declared "strong hatred" of the United States and Britain.

Britain Drops Immediate Threat Of Using Force

LONDON, May 22 (AP)—Under pressure from the United States, Britain has dropped any immediate threat of using force in the Anglo-Iranian oil dispute.

Informed sources said tonight Britain also has promised to consult fully with the United States before deciding to send troops to Iran even to protect British lives and property.

The change in tactics was made after Anglo-American talks here and in Washington.

Music Teacher Gets Life Term For Slaying

LONG BEACH, Calif., May 22 (AP)—Violet John Berling, 33, was sentenced to life imprisonment today for the torture-murder of her 10-year-old accordion student, Kay Frances Erickson.

Miss Berling, her eyes swollen shut for days by an allergy, sagged as she heard the sentence. She did not faint, as she did many times while testifying during the trial which began last Jan. 3.

U.S. Battleship, Destroyer Hit By Shore Fire

Two Sailors Killed And Dozen Wounded

WASHINGTON, March 22 (AP)—Communist artillery fire from the Korean shore hit the battleship New Jersey and the destroyer Brinkley Bass, killing two men and wounding 12, the Navy said today.

A spokesman added that in the 24 hours since the battleship was hit there has been almost a constant duel between American ships offshore and Red batteries on the land.

One shell hit each vessel, the Navy said, with "no material damage" to the New Jersey and only "minor damage" to the Bass.

The hits were scored on the New Jersey yesterday (Korean time) and on the destroyer Sunday. Both were at anchor bombarding the Red-held port of Wonsan on the Korean east coast when the shells struck. Both slipped anchor and got out of range but the shelling was soon resumed.

The spokesman said that fire from the enemy shore, heretofore rare, has been on the increase for the last five days.

He said the shell which actually hit the New Jersey was not the one which caused the casualties there—one dead and three slightly wounded. He attributed the casualties to a near miss, saying the direct hit was absorbed by the heavily armored No. 1 turret of the battleship's 16-inch battery.

The hit on the destroyer left one dead and nine wounded.

Among the injured aboard the Bass the Navy said one was critically hurt, one seriously wounded, and the other seven only slightly hurt.

The Navy spokesman said ships firing in support of ground forces in Korea usually keep moving. But when the target is a fixed one such as the nine rail and road junctions in the Wonsan area, he said, they sometimes anchor where they have the best field of fire.

The Navy later announced the names of the two killed and nine of the 12 wounded. The names of three men who suffered only minor wounds aboard the battleship were not listed.

Among the wounded was Seaman Clarence S. Godfrey of Baltimore.

2nd Class Mail Rate Hike OK'd

WASHINGTON, May 22 (AP)—A 60 per cent increase in second class mail rates was approved today by the House Post Office Committee. The administration had asked a 100 per cent increase.

Second class mail consists mainly of newspapers and other publications.

The committee action, tentative in that it was in connection with an overall bill on which final action has not been taken, would spread the 60 per cent hike over three years.

The increase would be 20 per cent annually above existing rates until the total 60 per cent boost is attained.

Committee members estimated that the raise would bring in around $8,000,000 the first year, $16,000,000 the second and $24,000,000 in the third and following years. Those figures are based on current revenues of $42,000,000 annually from second class mail.

3 Children Die In Fire

WOOD RIVER, Ill., May 22 (AP)—Three children died today when fire destroyed their trailer home.

The mother, Mrs. J. M. Warren, St. Joseph, Ky., saw the blaze as she was returning from making a telephone call. She suffered a cut wrist trying to break through a window to reach the children.

Tennessee's Sen. Kefauver Is Namd "Father Of Year"

NEW YORK, May 22 (INS)—Sen. Estes Kefauver (D) Tenn., former chairman of the Senate Crime Committee, was named "father of the year" today by the National Father's Day Committee in New York.

The Tennessee Democrat in accepting the award at a Waldorf-Astoria luncheon told the assembled fathers his committee had found that "shipwrecked lives" had led to crime. He said broken homes had been responsible for the shipwrecked lives.

Kefauver, 47, also declared that many underworld figures, including witnesses who had appeared before the crime committee, might have been model citizens.

He said:

"Many of these men, channeled right, would have made great contributions to society. We found they were victims of their own heredity and environment."

Mrs. Kefauver in a brief speech pictured her husband as a "wonder father."

He was presented with a huge chocolate cake which bore the inscription "Dad."

The Kefauvers have four children, Eleanor, 9, David, 5, Diane Carey, 3, and Gail Estes, seven months.

Mother's Prayers Are In Vain

Mrs. Novella Shaddock lifts her hands in prayer for the life of her only child, Tommy, 2, who fell into a fish pond near their Los Angeles home yesterday. But it was to no avail; the lad had already been pronounced dead. Comforting her are Mrs. Aretha Shelton (left), her landlady who recently gave permission to fill in pond and make it a sandbox for Tommy, and Mrs. Jewel Davidson, a neighbor.

Four Lose Lives As Flash Flood Strikes Hays, Kas.

HAYS, Kas., May 22 (AP)—A flash flood swirled into this Northwest Kansas town of 8,000 today, taking at least four lives and driving about half the city's population from their homes.

Several other persons were missing as the roaring waters from Big Creek, a normally docile stream, burst into houses and inundated 75 city blocks at 1:15 a. m. (CST). Workers were searching for more bodies.

Water 10 To 15 Feet Deep

The water was reported 10 to 15 feet deep at one time in the south part of town as hastily organized rescue squads fought against Hays' worst flood. The creek, normally only a foot or two deep in its meandering course at the edge of the city, spread to a mile wide from cloudburst rains before it began to recede. Hays is about 125 miles northwest of Wichita, Kas.

Many persons, clad only in night clothing, fled their homes. Others climbed to second stories or roof tops as Red Cross workers, firemen, volunteer and National Guardsmen manned more than 50 boats to rescue hundreds.

Rescues Dime A Dozen

Heroic rescues were a dime a dozen, City Editor Pat Taylor of the Hays News, reported. One boat loaded with 11 children overturned but all were saved. Two night police patrolmen were credited with saving the lives of dozens of frightened persons.

Fort Hays College, located in the low part of the city, was in the deepest water and the Red Cross reported 120 students marooned in a women's dormitory on the campus. Water was still eight feet deep in some places.

Two persons drowned in the basements of their homes when the walls collapsed.

There was danger of fire as 7,000 gallons of gasoline from a filling station west of the city floated into town on the broiling water.

"Radio Free Europe" Activities Protested

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, May 22 (AP)—Czechoslovakia has protested to the U. S. Embassy here that "hostile activities" have been carried on against the Czechoslovak government by Americans, particularly those responsible for broadcasts of "Radio Free Europe."

The government radio, announcing this today, also charged that a group of "six or seven armed American soldiers in two motor cars" crossed the border from Bavaria into Czechoslovakia, and looked around with field glasses.

(Radio Free Europe is operated by a group of private American citizens. It beams anti-Communist programs to Czechoslovakia in the Czech language.)

Exiled King Peter, Queen Will Work As Press Agents

NEW YORK, May 22 (AP)—Exiled King Peter and his Yugoslav queen are going to work as press agents.

"They are not going to work for a weekly salary or anything like that," explained Roy De Groot, head of a public relations firm here, in announcing today that the royal couple are joining his outfit.

"They will be available on a contract basis for assignments which can utilize their special qualities.

"King Peter has had much experience in mass psychology and in dealing with large numbers of people and his experience can be very useful."

Move To Delay Tax Bill Is Afoot

WASHINGTON, May 22 (AP)—Senate Democratic leaders started a drive today for a summer recess of Congress which would defer until autumn final action on a proposed huge increase in taxes.

Sen. McFarland (D-Ariz), chairman of the Democratic Policy Committee, said decision on such a move would be left, however, to the tax-writing Senate Finance Committee.

He had in mind, he said, a recess from about August 1 to sometime early in October, with the idea of completing action on the measure before the first of the year. He made the announcement after a closed-door meeting with the policy committee.

The House Ways and Means Committee, with which tax bills must originate, is working on a measure which would boost taxes between $6,000,000,000 and $7,000,000,000 a year, in contrast to a $10,000,000,000 increase requested by the administration. The House committee is working toward an increase in personal income taxes effective as of September 1, and a retroactive increase in corporation tax rates.

Israel To Halt Work On Drainage Project

TEL AVIV, May 22. (AP)—Israel will halt work on the drainage project in the disputed Huleh swamp area along the Syrian-Israeli border. Foreign Minister Moshe Sharret so informed Maj. Gen. William Riley, United Nations chief of staff, tonight.

Sharrett's letter followed receipt by the Israeli cabinet today of the U. N. Security Council resolution ordering suspension of the project until Israel and Syria can reach a settlement of their dispute over the demilitarized zone.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 22 (AP)—The transport General William E. Mitchell brought 1,485 Army combat veterans home from the Korean war today.

Ferrer Denies Any Red Taint; Was "Careless"

WASHINGTON, May 22 (AP)—Actor Jose Ferrer today confessed himself a "careless" man with his name around Communist-front movements, but vehemently denied he was either a Communist or a Communist sympathizer.

The 39-year-old Puerto Rican-born actor told the House Un-American Activities Committee that many of his publicized associations with red fronts were completely unauthorized, or the result of his political "ignorance."

Won Movie "Oscar"

In most cases, he told the committee, he became associated with alleged subversive groups "through plain stupid carelessness or misuse of my name."

Ferrer said he never publicly repudiated some unsought offices in various front groups "because I didn't know it was bad to be that."

The actor, winner of the latest movie "Oscar," testified in the committee's investigation of Communist influences in Hollywood.

Ferrer spent a full day in the witness chair before being excused to catch a plane back to New York in time to go on stage tonight in his current play "Twentieth Century."

Schulberg To Testify

He was ordered to return for further questioning Friday morning.

Tomorrow, the committee will hear Budd Schulberg, best-seller author of "The Disenchanted" and the early success "What Makes Sammy Run."

Schulberg appears as a voluntary witness after being identified as a one-time Communist Party member in Hollywood by a previous witness.

Explaining how he happened to allow his name to be used as a sponsor of various movements, Ferrer said repeatedly:

"If I had known it was Communist activity, I would never have authorized use of my name."

Folks Of GOP Town Don't Want Truman Impeached

WAKEFIELD, N. H., May 22 (AP)—The folks of this 177-year-old rural community — 1,256 residents — don't want President Truman impeached.

They made their views known at a special town meeting called tonight to vote on the question:

"Should Harry Truman be impeached?"

The answer was 48 against; 17 in favor; 35 not voting.

Only 100 of the town's 795 voters showed up for the unusual meeting called in town hall by a petition circulated by a former Army captain, William N. Sparhawk, Jr., 32-year-old chicken farmer.

Ten signatures were necessary to call the meeting. Sparhawk said 50 residents signed the petition.

The town is Republican by a wide margin.

The vote came after speeches by Sparhawk and an opponent, Edwin P. Geauque, merchandising consultant.

Sparhawk supported his opinion that Truman should be impeached on the charge that "the ship of state is being scuttled and the President is pursuing a policy of appeasement." He said the administration is "rampant with corruption."

Geauque told the attentive audience that the "world has its eyes on our town tonight. The answer to this question depends on whether we will be called screwball or thoughtful people."

Sawyer Wins Stay In Battle For Ship Line

WASHINGTON, May 22 (AP)—Secretary of Commerce Sawyer and eight associates — all held in contempt of court — won an eleventh hour stay today in their fight to retain government control of a $68,000,000 steamship line.

They had been given until 2 p. m. (EST) Thursday to turn over effective control of the American President Lines Ltd., to R. Stanley Dollar and his associates.

If they failed to meet the deadline, the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals here said, they would go to jail for contempt.

Vinson Steps Into Fight

Late today Chief Justice Vinson of the Supreme Court ordered action held up until the government can appeal the contempt convictions. All other proceedings in the intricate case are also stayed pending the Supreme Court review. Attorney General McGrath obtained the order.

Justice Vinson said he intervened because compliance with the Circuit Court of Appeals order would preclude Supreme Court review of the issues.

The Justice Department claims full title to the stock for the government, arguing it was surrendered in return for financial help to the Dollar interests in 1938.

Truman Interested In Case

The Dollar group contends that the stock was put up as collateral, that the government loan has been repaid and they are entitled to return of the stock.

The Court of Appeals ruled for the Dollar interests and the contempt proceedings arose from efforts to enforce its ruling.

President Truman has interested himself in the case. Last Nov. 30 he wrote Sawyer a letter directing him to continue to hold 92 per cent of the line's voting stock. This was before the contempt proceedings.

160 Tons Of TNT Set Off In Utah

DUGWAY, Utah, May 22 (AP)—Army engineers touched off 160 tons of TNT today, the most powerful explosion ever to occur without the use of atomic energy.

The blast sent a cloud of smoke and dust mushrooming into the brilliantly clear sky over desolate Western Utah. Several hundred spectators watched as the cloud billowed up, black in color, then faded to a grey.

"It was beautiful," said L. E. Christensen, resident inspector for the Corps of Army Engineers.

"Everything went off as scheduled. There were no accidents and conditions were ideal."

The explosion was part of the engineers' series of tests to determine the effect of underground blasts on various types of installations.

Engineers refused to say, specifically, what types of installations were tested. Suggestions have been made that structures simulating underground factories and warehouses were used.

The 160 tons of TNT was buried at a depth intended to be approximately the same as the hole that would be made if a bomb, of similar capacity, were dropped.

D'Alesandro Takes Oath

BALTIMORE, May 22 (AP)—Today was inauguration day in Baltimore, but the holiday atmosphere of four years ago was missing.

Thomas D'Alesandro took the oath for his second four-year term as mayor in War Memorial Plaza, opposite City Hall.

Inauguration day in 1947 was a gala one. The city's Italian community set the pace in paying tribute to D'Alesandro.

Enemy Attacks In East Korea, Flees In West

U. N. Tank Column Seizes Changgong

TOKYO, Wednesday, May 23 (AP)—Allied tanks rammed retreating Reds from a strategic city on the Western Korean front late Tuesday while big guns and warplanes pounded a Communist breakthrough in the east.

An armored column captured Changgong, 25 miles northeast of Seoul in the broad Pukhan River velley. Field dispatches reported battalion-sized Red groups were scattered along the west bank of the stream.

Thus United Nations forces hounded the heels of Communists pulling back all along the western and west-central fronts. But U. S. Eighth Army officers cautioned against calling it a rout.

There have been no current instances of U. N. forces overrunning Red manned positions or seizing sizeable amounts of war booty or prisoners, as occurs during a rout, these officers said.

Eighth Army kept a wary eye on Reds trying to exploit gains made through a hole in Allied lines between Soksa and Pungnam, some 18 air miles inland from Korea's east coast.

Time Believed Ripe For New Peace Effort

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., May 22 (AP)—Some United Nations diplomats and officials believe that Communist Chinese military reverses in Korea have created a new situation more favorable for peace talks.

They feel the time is ripe for new attempts at peace negotiations with Peiping and the Soviet Union to halt the fighting along the 38th parallel.

These UN. people, who will not talk for attribution, said today the big problem is to find someone who will start the ball rolling and produce a plan which will save face both for the Communists and for the U.N. forces.

Reinforcements Rushed Up

Reinforcements were rushed up to plug the hole on the right flank of the U. S. Second Division, which shattered the initial phase of the Chinese and Korean Red second spring offensive last week.

The Second Division hurled back several Chinese attacks Tuesday. Some were attempted during predawn darkness. Red losses, already reckoned in the tens of thousands in that sector alone, again were reported heavy.

Eighth Army headquarters estimated between 50,000 and 60,000 Communist casualties were inflicted between May 16, the outset of the second Red offensive, and Tuesday.

Two other attempts by Chinese Communist forces to blast through U. S. Second Division positions about 75 miles northeast of Seoul were bloodily repulsed. B-29 Superforts bombing within 300-yards of American foxhole positions and devastating artillery fire wiped out at least 1,000 attacking Reds. This was about 17 air miles northwest of the scene of the Reds' end-run attempt near Soksa.

Reds Group For New Strikes

With the failure of these jabs at the Second Division, the main body of Chinese broke contact for the time being and pulled back out of range of the deadly American artillery.

Associated Press Correspondent William C. Barnard, however, warned that an estimated 130,000 Communists were being grouped for new strikes along the critical east-central front. They were assembling from Chunchon, 45 miles northeast of Seoul, eastward to Inje, where one week ago the Reds hurled their heaviest concentrated attack of the war. That attack cost the Reds 60,000 or more casualties in five days without winning a decisive breakthrough.

Along the rest of the front—from the Pukhan valley northeast of Seoul on west to Munsan, 22 miles northwest of Seoul—the Reds slowly pulled back for the second straight day.

American, British and South Korean troops hammered hard at the retreating Chinese and gained up to five and one-half miles.

Air Maneuvers Open

PARIS, May 22 (AP)—About 500 warplanes of six Allied air forces open their biggest postwar maneuvers tomorrow to test West Europe's defenses against aerial attack.

Bradley Says Probe Harms Security

Concedes War In Korea Might Just Peter Out

Sen. Tobey Pleads For End To Inquiry

WASHINGTON, May 22 (AP)—Gen. Omar Bradley warned senators today the inquiry into Gen. Douglas MacArthur's ouster may incite Russia to war but he also hinted peace may come to Korea if the Allies smash the big Red offensive now underway.

The five-star General conceded the possibility the Korean fighting might just peter out without a negotiated peace or that the Chinese might agree to peace terms with or without Russia's approval.

Bradley gave these mixed views to the Senate Armed Services and Foreign Relations Committees on the 15th day of hearings into the reasons behind the dismissal of Gen. MacArthur.

Bradley said of the inquiry: "I think it is very harmful to our security and to our country and to our future security to have to pass on to Russia all of our intentions, all of our thoughts, all of our capabilities."

Probe "Demanded By People"

Sen. Cain (R-Wash) suggested the hearings are informing Russia that the free nations will resist aggression "only to a point short of risking war with Russia." And he asked if this might not encourage Russia to start "limited but very destructive aggression" in areas other than Korea.

Bradley replied: "I think that what you say is probably very true, that we are unnecessarily inciting Russia to war—maybe not unnecessarily—but it becomes necessary because of the nature of these hearings x x x.

"I am sorry we have had to do this, but since it is demanded by the people, and is inherent in our form of government, here it is and I just hope it doesn't cause too much trouble in the future."

Bradley declared the present U. N. objective is not to drive the Chinese and North Korean Red armies "clear out of North Korea" although the long range political aim still is a free and unified Korea.

He added: "As far as the military, immediate military objective, is concerned, I think we would consider it a victory with something less than that."

Tobey Urges End To Inquiry

Sen. Long (D-La) drew from Bradley his views on the possible endings to the Korean conflict.

Long said: "Do you think there is some possibility of this war simply petering out around the 38th parallel even without negotiating a peace? In other words, our forces getting back to the 38th parallel, a little below, and the Communists

Demonstrating Iranians Assail U. S. And Britain

Death Of Mossadegh Demanded By Leftists

TEHRAN, Iran, May 22 (AP)—About 30,000 Iranians, waving Moslem religious banners, booed the United States and Britain today at a demonstration threatening a holy war if necessary to nationalize oil.

Sweating under the sun, the crowd went into a frenzy when the black - bearded, black - turbaned Chams Ghanatabadi, leader of the militant Mujaheddin Islam (Fighters for Islam) declared:

"All loyal Moslems will throw the British bandits into the Persian Gulf if they do not leave the country."

Another speaker, Hossein Makki, declared a recent statement by the U. S. Department which the Iranians regard as backing the British stand against nationalization, was "a stab in the back of the Iranian nation."

At an earlier rally, leftists called for the death of Premier Mohammed Mossadegh, who has locked himself in his parliament building chambers since May 14. The leftists engaged in a flurry of fist fights with Mossadegh supporters.

There was an air of crisis in the capital. Police and army officials were on 24-hour alert. Flying squads of truck-borne police and mounted police patrolled the streets. A dozen tanks rumbled into the city this morning.

The mass meeting called by Moslem leaders and Mossadegh's national bloc cheered a resolution which declared "strong hatred" of the United States and Britain.

Britain Drops Immediate Threat Of Using Force

LONDON, May 22 (AP)—Under pressure from the United States, Britain has dropped any immediate threat of using force in the Anglo-Iranian oil dispute.

Informed sources said tonight Britain also has promised to consult fully with the United States before deciding to send troops to Iran even to protect British lives and property.

The change in tactics was made after Anglo-American talks here and in Washington.

Music Teacher Gets Life Term For Slaying

LONG BEACH, Calif., May 22 (AP)—Violet John Berling, 33, was sentenced to life imprisonment today for the torture-murder of her 10-year-old accordion student, Kay Frances Erickson.

Miss Berling, her eyes swollen shut for days by an allergy, sagged as she heard the sentence. She did not faint, as she did many times while testifying during the trial which began last Jan. 3.

U.S. Battleship, Destroyer Hit By Shore Fire

Two Sailors Killed And Dozen Wounded

WASHINGTON, March 22 (AP)—Communist artillery fire from the Korean shore hit the battleship New Jersey and the destroyer Brinkley Bass, killing two men and wounding 12, the Navy said today.

A spokesman added that in the 24 hours since the battleship was hit there has been almost a constant duel between American ships offshore and Red batteries on the land.

One shell hit each vessel, the Navy said, with "no material damage" to the New Jersey and only "minor damage" to the Bass.

The hits were scored on the New Jersey yesterday (Korean time) and on the destroyer Sunday. Both were at anchor bombarding the Red-held port of Wonsan on the Korean east coast when the shells struck. Both slipped anchor and got out of range but the shelling was soon resumed.

The spokesman said that fire from the enemy shore, heretofore rare, has been on the increase for the last five days.

He said the shell which actually hit the New Jersey was not the one which caused the casualties there—one dead and three slightly wounded. He attributed the casualties to a near miss, saying the direct hit was absorbed by the heavily armored No. 1 turret of the battleship's 16-inch battery.

The hit on the destroyer left one dead and nine wounded.

Among the injured aboard the Bass the Navy said one was critically hurt, one seriously wounded, and the other seven only slightly hurt.

The Navy spokesman said ships firing in support of ground forces in Korea usually keep moving. But when the target is a fixed one such as the nine rail and road junctions in the Wonsan area, he said, they sometimes anchor where they have the best field of fire.

The Navy later announced the names of the two killed and nine of the 12 wounded. The names of three men who suffered only minor wounds aboard the battleship were not listed.

Among the wounded was Seaman Clarence S. Godfrey of Baltimore.

2nd Class Mail Rate Hike OK'd

WASHINGTON, May 22 (AP)—A 60 per cent increase in second class mail rates was approved today by the House Post Office Committee. The administration had asked a 100 per cent increase.

Second class mail consists mainly of newspapers and other publications.

The committee action, tentative in that it was in connection with an overall bill on which final action has not been taken, would spread the 60 per cent hike over three years.

The increase would be 20 per cent annually above existing rates until the total 60 per cent boost is attained.

Committee members estimated that the raise would bring in around $8,000,000 the first year, $16,000,000 the second and $24,000,000 in the third and following years. Those figures are based on current revenues of $42,000,000 annually from second class mail.

3 Children Die In Fire

WOOD RIVER, Ill., May 22 (AP)—Three children died today when fire destroyed their trailer home.

The mother, Mrs. J. M. Warren, St. Joseph, Ky., saw the blaze as she was returning from making a telephone call. She suffered a cut wrist trying to break through a window to reach the children.

Tennessee's Sen. Kefauver Is Namd "Father Of Year"

NEW YORK, May 22 (INS)—Sen. Estes Kefauver (D) Tenn., former chairman of the Senate Crime Committee, was named "father of the year" today by the National Father's Day Committee in New York.

The Tennessee Democrat in accepting the award at a Waldorf-Astoria luncheon told the assembled fathers his committee had found that "shipwrecked lives" had led to crime. He said broken homes had been responsible for the shipwrecked lives.

Kefauver, 47, also declared that many underworld figures, including witnesses who had appeared before the crime committee, might have been model citizens.

He said:

"Many of these men, channeled right, would have made great contributions to society. We found they were victims of their own heredity and environment."

Mrs. Kefauver in a brief speech pictured her husband as a "wonder father."

He was presented with a huge chocolate cake which bore the inscription "Dad."

The Kefauvers have four children, Eleanor, 9, David, 5, Diane Carey, 3, and Gail Estes, seven months.

Mother's Prayers Are In Vain

Mrs. Novella Shaddock lifts her hands in prayer for the life of her only child, Tommy, 2, who fell into a fish pond near their Los Angeles home yesterday. But it was to no avail; the lad had already been pronounced dead. Comforting her are Mrs. Aretha Shelton (left), her landlady who recently gave permission to fill in pond and make it a sandbox for Tommy, and Mrs. Jewel Davidson, a neighbor.

Four Lose Lives As Flash Flood Strikes Hays, Kas.

HAYS, Kas., May 22 (AP)—A flash flood swirled into this Northwest Kansas town of 8,000 today, taking at least four lives and driving about half the city's population from their homes.

Several other persons were missing as the roaring waters from Big Creek, a normally docile stream, burst into houses and inundated 75 city blocks at 1:15 a. m. (CST). Workers were searching for more bodies.

Water 10 To 15 Feet Deep

The water was reported 10 to 15 feet deep at one time in the south part of town as hastily organized rescue squads fought against Hays' worst flood. The creek, normally only a foot or two deep in its meandering course at the edge of the city, spread to a mile wide from cloudburst rains before it began to recede. Hays is about 125 miles northwest of Wichita, Kas.

Many persons, clad only in night clothing, fled their homes. Others climbed to second stories or roof tops as Red Cross workers, firemen, volunteer and National Guardsmen manned more than 50 boats to rescue hundreds.

Rescues Dime A Dozen

Heroic rescues were a dime a dozen, City Editor Pat Taylor of the Hays News, reported. One boat loaded with 11 children overturned but all were saved. Two night police patrolmen were credited with saving the lives of dozens of frightened persons.

Fort Hays College, located in the low part of the city, was in the deepest water and the Red Cross reported 120 students marooned in a women's dormitory on the campus. Water was still eight feet deep in some places.

Two persons drowned in the basements of their homes when the walls collapsed.

There was danger of fire as 7,000 gallons of gasoline from a filling station west of the city floated into town on the broiling water.

Inauguration day in 1947 was a gala one. The city's Italian community set the pace in paying tribute to D'Alesandro.

Enemy Attacks In East Korea, Flees In West

U. N. Tank Column Seizes Changgong

TOKYO, Wednesday, May 23 (AP)—Allied tanks rammed retreating Reds from a strategic city on the Western Korean front late Tuesday while big guns and warplanes pounded a Communist breakthrough in the east.

An armored column captured Changgong, 25 miles northeast of Seoul in the broad Pukhan River velley. Field dispatches reported battalion-sized Red groups were scattered along the west bank of the stream.

Thus United Nations forces hounded the heels of Communists pulling back all along the western and west-central fronts. But U. S. Eighth Army officers cautioned against calling it a rout.

There have been no current instances of U. N. forces overrunning Red manned positions or seizing sizeable amounts of war booty or prisoners, as occurs during a rout, these officers said.

Eighth Army kept a wary eye on Reds trying to exploit gains made through a hole in Allied lines between Soksa and Pungnam, some 18 air miles inland from Korea's east coast.

Reinforcements Rushed Up

Reinforcements were rushed up to plug the hole on the right flank of the U. S. Second Division, which shattered the initial phase of the Chinese and Korean Red second spring offensive last week.

The Second Division hurled back several Chinese attacks Tuesday. Some were attempted during pre-dawn darkness. Red losses, already reckoned in the tens of thousands in that sector alone, again were reported heavy.

Eighth Army headquarters estimated between 50,000 and 60,000 Communist casualties were inflicted between May 16, the outset of the second Red offensive, and Tuesday.

Two other attempts by Chinese Communist forces to blast through U. S. Second Division positions about 75 miles northeast of Seoul were bloodily repulsed. B-29 Superforts bombing within 300-yards of American foxhole positions and devastating artillery fire wiped out at least 1,000 attacking Reds. This was about 17 air miles northwest of the scene of the Reds' end-run attempt near Soksa.

Reds Group For New Strikes

With the failure of these jabs at the Second Division, the main body of Chinese broke contact for the time being and pulled back out of range of the deadly American artillery.

Associated Press Correspondent William C. Barnard, however, warned that an estimated 130,000 Communists were being grouped for new strikes along the critical east-central front. They were assembling from Chunchon, 45 miles northeast of Seoul, eastward to Inje, where one week ago the Reds hurled their heaviest concentrated attack of the war. That attack cost the Reds 60,000 or more casualties in five days without winning a decisive breakthrough.

Along the rest of the front—from the Pukhan valley northeast of Seoul on west to Munsan, 22 miles northwest of Seoul—the Reds slowly pulled back for the second straight day.

American, British and South Korean troops hammered hard at the retreating Chinese and gained up to five and one-half miles.

Time Believed Ripe For New Peace Effort

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., May 22 (AP)—Some United Nations diplomats and officials believe that Communist Chinese military reverses in Korea have created a new situation more favorable for peace talks.

Bradley Says Probe Harms Security

Concedes War In Korea Might Just Peter Out

Sen. Tobey Pleads For End To Inquiry

WASHINGTON, May 22 (AP)—Gen. Omar Bradley warned senators today the inquiry into Gen. Douglas MacArthur's ouster may incite Russia to war but he also hinted peace may come to Korea if the Allies smash the big Red offensive now underway.

The five-star General conceded the possibility the Korean fighting might just peter out without a negotiated peace or that the Chinese might agree to peace terms with or without Russia's approval.

Bradley gave these mixed views to the Senate Armed Services and Foreign Relations Committees on the 15th day of hearings into the reasons behind the dismissal of Gen. MacArthur.

Bradley said of the inquiry: "I think it is very harmful to our security and to our country and to our future security to have to pass on to Russia all of our intentions, all of our thoughts, all of our capabilities."

Probe "Demanded By People"

Sen. Cain (R-Wash) suggested the hearings are informing Russia that the free nations will resist aggression "only to a point short of risking war with Russia." And he asked if this might not encourage Russia to start "limited but very destructive aggression" in areas other than Korea.

Bradley replied: "I think that what you say is probably very true, that we are unnecessarily inciting Russia to war—maybe not unnecessarily—but it becomes necessary because of the nature of these hearings x x x.

"I am sorry we have had to do this, but since it is demanded by the people, and is inherent in our form of government, here it is and I just hope it doesn't cause too much trouble in the future."

Bradley declared the present U. N. objective is not to drive the Chinese and North Korean Red armies "clear out of North Korea" although the long range political aim still is a free and unified Korea.

He added: "As far as the military, immediate military objective, is concerned, I think we would consider it a victory with something less than that."

Tobey Urges End To Inquiry

Sen. Long (D-La) drew from Bradley his views on the possible endings to the Korean conflict.

Long said: "Do you think there is some possibility of this war simply petering out around the 38th parallel even without negotiating a peace? In other words, our forces getting back to the 38th parallel, a little below, and the Communists

Demonstrating Iranians Assail U. S. And Britain

Death Of Mossadegh Demanded By Leftists

TEHRAN, Iran, May 22 (AP)—About 30,000 Iranians, waving Moslem religious banners, booed the United States and Britain today at a demonstration threatening a holy war if necessary to nationalize oil.

Sweating under the sun, the crowd went into a frenzy when the black-bearded, black-turbaned Chams Ghanatabadi, leader of the militant Mujaheddin Islam (Fighters for Islam) declared:

"All loyal Moslems will throw the British bandits into the Persian Gulf if they do not leave the country."

Another speaker, Hossein Makki, declared a recent statement by the U. S. Department which the Iranians regard as backing the British stand against nationalization, was "a stab in the back of the Iranian nation."

At an earlier rally, leftists called for the death of Premier Mohammed Mossadegh, who has locked himself in his parliament building chambers since May 14. The leftists engaged in a flurry of fist fights with Mossadegh supporters.

There was an air of crisis in the capital. Police and army officials were on 24-hour alert. Flying squads of truck-borne police and mounted police patrolled the streets. A dozen tanks rumbled into the city this morning.

The mass meeting called by Moslem leaders and Mossadegh's national bloc cheered a resolution which declared "strong hatred" of the United States and Britain.

Britain Drops Immediate Threat Of Using Force

LONDON, May 22 (AP)—Under pressure from the United States, Britain has dropped any immediate threat of using force in the Anglo-Iranian oil dispute.

Informed sources said tonight Britain also has promised to consult fully with the United States before deciding to send troops to Iran even to protect British lives and property.

The change in tactics was made after Anglo-American talks here and in Washington.

Music Teacher Gets Life Term For Slaying

LONG BEACH, Calif., May 22 (AP)—Violet John Berling, 33, was sentenced to life imprisonment today for the torture-murder of her 10-year-old accordion student, Kay Frances Erickson.

Miss Berling, her eyes swollen shut for days by an allergy, sagged as she heard the sentence. She did not faint, as she did many times while testifying during the trial which began last Jan. 3.

U.S. Battleship, Destroyer Hit By Shore Fire

Two Sailors Killed And Dozen Wounded

WASHINGTON, March 22 (AP)—Communist artillery fire from the Korean shore hit the battleship New Jersey and the destroyer Brinkley Bass, killing two men and wounding 12, the Navy said today.

A spokesman added that in the 24 hours since the battleship was hit there has been almost a constant duel between American ships offshore and Red batteries on the land.

One shell hit each vessel, the Navy said, with "no material damage" to the New Jersey and only "minor damage" to the Bass.

The hits were scored on the New Jersey yesterday (Korean time) and on the destroyer Sunday. Both were at anchor bombarding the Red-held port of Wonsan on the Korean east coast when the shells struck. Both slipped anchor and got out of range but the shelling was soon resumed.

The spokesman said that fire from the enemy shore, heretofore rare, has been on the increase for the last five days.

He said the shell which actually hit the New Jersey was not the one which caused the casualties there—one dead and three slightly wounded. He attributed the casualties to a near miss, saying the direct hit was absorbed by the heavily armored No. 1 turret of the battleship's 16-inch battery.

The hit on the destroyer left one dead and nine wounded.

Among the injured aboard the Bass the Navy said one was critically hurt, one seriously wounded, and the other seven only slightly hurt.

The Navy spokesman said ships firing in support of ground forces in Korea usually keep moving. But when the target is a fixed one such as the nine rail and road junctions in the Wonsan area, he said, they sometimes anchor where they have the best field of fire.

The Navy later announced the names of the two killed and nine of the 12 wounded. The names of three men who suffered only minor wounds aboard the battleship were not listed.

Among the wounded was Seaman Clarence S. Godfrey of Baltimore.

2nd Class Mail Rate Hike OK'd

WASHINGTON, May 22 (AP)—A 60 per cent increase in second class mail rates was approved today by the House Post Office Committee. The administration had asked a 100 per cent increase.

Second class mail consists mainly of newspapers and other publications.

The committee action, tentative in that it was in connection with an overall bill on which final action has not been taken, would spread the 60 per cent hike over three years.

The increase would be 20 per cent annually above existing rates until the total 60 per cent boost is attained.

Committee members estimated that the raise would bring in around $8,000,000 the first year, $16,000,000 the second and $24,000,000 in the third and following years. Those figures are based on current revenues of $42,000,000 annually from second class mail.

3 Children Die In Fire

WOOD RIVER, Ill., May 22 (AP)—Three children died today when fire destroyed their trailer home.

The mother, Mrs. J. M. Warren, St. Joseph, Ky., saw the blaze as she was returning from making a telephone call. She suffered a cut wrist trying to break through a window to reach the children.

Tennessee's Sen. Kefauver Is Namd "Father Of Year"

NEW YORK, May 22 (INS)—Sen. Estes Kefauver (D) Tenn., former chairman of the Senate Crime Committee, was named "father of the year" today by the National Father's Day Committee in New York.

The Tennessee Democrat in accepting the award at a Waldorf-Astoria luncheon told the assembled fathers his committee had found that "shipwrecked lives" had led to crime. He said broken homes had been responsible for the shipwrecked lives.

Kefauver, 47, also declared that many underworld figures, including witnesses who had appeared before the crime committee, might have been model citizens.

He said:

"Many of these men, channeled right, would have made great contributions to society. We found they were victims of their own heredity and environment."

Mrs. Kefauver in a brief speech pictured her husband as a "wonder father."

He was presented with a huge chocolate cake which bore the inscription "Dad."

The Kefauvers have four children, Eleanor, 9, David, 5, Diane Carey, 3, and Gail Estes, seven months.

Comforting her are Mrs. Aretha Shelton (left), her landlady who recently gave permission to fill in pond and make it a sandbox for Tommy, and Mrs. Jewel Davidson, a neighbor.

Four Lose Lives As Flash Flood Strikes Hays, Kas.

HAYS, Kas., May 22 (AP)—A flash flood swirled into this Northwest Kansas town of 8,000 today, taking at least four lives and driving about half the city's population from their homes.

Several other persons were missing as the roaring waters from Big Creek, a normally docile stream, burst into houses and inundated 75 city blocks at 1:15 a. m. (CST). Workers were searching for more bodies.

Water 10 To 15 Feet Deep

The water was reported 10 to 15 feet deep at one time in the south part of town as hastily organized rescue squads fought against Hays' worst flood. The creek, normally only a foot or two deep in its meandering course at the edge of the city, spread to a mile wide from cloudburst rains before it began to recede. Hays is about 125 miles northwest of Wichita, Kas.

Many persons, clad only in night clothing, fled their homes. Others climbed to second stories or roof tops as Red Cross workers, firemen, volunteer and National Guardsmen manned more than 50 boats to rescue hundreds.

Rescues Dime A Dozen

Heroic rescues were a dime a dozen, City Editor Pat Taylor of the Hays News, reported. One boat loaded with 11 children overturned but all were saved. Two night police patrolmen were credited with saving the lives of dozens of frightened persons.

Fort Hays College, located in the low part of the city, was in the deepest water and the Red Cross reported 120 students marooned in a women's dormitory on the campus. Water was still eight feet deep in some places.

Two persons drowned in the basements of their homes when the walls collapsed.

There was danger of fire as 7,000 gallons of gasoline from a filling station west of the city floated into town on the broiling water.

"Radio Free Europe" Activities Protested

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, May 22 (AP)—Czechoslovakia has protested to the U. S. Embassy here that "hostile activities" have been carried on against the Czechoslovak government by Americans, particularly those responsible for broadcasts of "Radio Free Europe."

The government radio, announcing this today, also charged that a group of "six or seven armed American soldiers in two motor cars" crossed the border from Bavaria into Czechoslovakia, and looked around with field glasses.

(Radio Free Europe is operated by a group of private American citizens. It beams anti-Communist programs to Czechoslovakia in the Czech language.)

Exiled King Peter, Queen Will Work As Press Agents

NEW YORK, May 22 (AP)—Exiled King Peter and his Yugoslav queen are going to work as press agents.

"They are not going to work for a weekly salary or anything like that," explained Roy De Groot, head of a public relations firm here, in announcing today that the royal couple are joining his outfit.

"They will be available on a contract basis for assignments which can utilize their special qualities.

"King Peter has had much experience in mass psychology and in dealing with large numbers of people and his experience can be very useful."

Move To Delay Tax Bill Is Afoot

WASHINGTON, May 22 (AP)—Senate Democratic leaders started a drive today for a summer recess of Congress which would defer until autumn final action on a proposed huge increase in taxes.

Sen. McFarland (D-Ariz), chairman of the Democratic Policy Committee, said decision on such a move would be left, however, to the tax-writing Senate Finance Committee.

He had in mind, he said, a recess from about August 1 to sometime early in October, with the idea of completing action on the measure before the first of the year. He made the announcement after a closed-door meeting with the policy committee.

The House Ways and Means Committee, with which tax bills must originate, is working on a measure which would boost taxes between $6,000,000,000 and $7,000,000,000 a year, in contrast to a $10,000,000,000 increase requested by the administration. The House committee is working toward an increase in personal income taxes effective as of September 1, and a retroactive increase in corporation tax rates.

Israel To Halt Work On Drainage Project

TEL AVIV, May 22. (AP)—Israel will halt work on the drainage project in the disputed Huleh swamp area along the Syrian-Israeli border. Foreign Minister Moshe Sharret so informed Maj. Gen. William Riley, United Nations chief of staff, tonight.

Sharrett's letter followed receipt by the Israeli cabinet today of the U. N. Security Council resolution ordering suspension of the project until Israel and Syria can reach a settlement of their dispute over the demilitarized zone.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 22 (AP)—The transport General William E. Mitchell brought 1,485 Army combat veterans home from the Korean war today.

Ferrer Denies Any Red Taint; Was "Careless"

WASHINGTON, May 22 (AP) — Actor Jose Ferrer today confessed himself a "careless" man with his name around Communist-front movements, but vehemently denied he was either a Communist or a Communist sympathizer.

The 39-year-old Puerto Rican-born actor told the House Un-American Activities Committee that many of his publicized associations with red fronts were completely unauthorized, or the result of his political "ignorance."

Won Movie "Oscar"

In most cases, he told the committee, he became associated with alleged subversive groups "through plain stupid carelessness or misuse of my name."

Ferrer said he never publicly repudiated some unsought offices in various front groups "because I didn't know it was bad to be that."

The actor, winner of the latest movie "Oscar," testified in the committee's investigation of Communist influences in Hollywood.

Ferrer spent a full day in the witness chair before being excused to catch a plane back to New York in time to go on stage tonight in his current play "Twentieth Century."

Schulberg To Testify

He was ordered to return for further questioning Friday morning.

Tomorrow, the committee will hear Budd Schulberg, best-seller author of "The Disenchanted" and the early success "What Makes Sammy Run."

Schulberg appears as a voluntary witness after being identified as a one-time Communist Party member in Hollywood by a previous witness.

Explaining how he happened to allow his name to be used as a sponsor of various movements, Ferrer said repeatedly:

"If I had known it was Communist activity, I would never have authorized use of my name."

Folks Of GOP Town Don't Want Truman Impeached

WAKEFIELD, N. H., May 22 (AP)—The folks of this 177-year-old rural community—1,256 residents—don't want President Truman impeached.

They made their views known at a special town meeting called tonight to vote on the question:

"Should Harry Truman be impeached?"

The answer was 48 against; 17 in favor; 35 not voting.

Only 100 of the town's 795 voters showed up for the unusual meeting called in town hall by a petition circulated by a former Army captain, William N. Sparhawk, Jr., 32-year-old chicken farmer.

Ten signatures were necessary to call the meeting. Sparhawk said 50 residents signed the petition.

The town is Republican by a wide margin.

The vote came after speeches by Sparhawk and an opponent, Edwin P. Geauque, merchandising consultant.

Sparhawk supported his opinion that Truman should be impeached on the charge that "the ship of state is being scuttled and the President is pursuing a policy of appeasement." He said the administration is "rampant with corruption."

Geauque told the attentive audience that the "world has its eyes on our town tonight. The answer to this question depends on whether we will be called screwball or thoughtful people."

Sawyer Wins Stay In Battle For Ship Line

WASHINGTON, May 22 (AP)—Secretary of Commerce Sawyer and eight associates — all held in contempt of court — won an eleventh hour stay today in their fight to retain government control of a $68,000,000 steamship line.

They had been given until 2 p. m. (EST) Thursday to turn over effective control of the American President Lines Ltd., to R. Stanley Dollar and his associates.

If they failed to meet the deadline, the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals here said, they would go to jail for contempt.

Vinson Steps Into Fight

Late today Chief Justice Vinson of the Supreme Court ordered action held up until the government can appeal the contempt convictions. All other proceedings in the intricate case are also stayed pending the Supreme Court review. Attorney General McGrath obtained the order.

Justice Vinson said he intervened because compliance with the Circuit Court of Appeals order would preclude Supreme Court review of the issues.

The Justice Department claims full title to the stock for the government, arguing it was surrendered in return for financial help to the Dollar interests in 1938.

Truman Interested In Case

The Dollar group contends that the stock was put up as collateral, that the government loan has been repaid and they are entitled to return of the stock.

The Court of Appeals ruled for the Dollar interests and the contempt proceedings arose from efforts to enforce its ruling.

President Truman has interested himself in the case. Last Nov. 30 he wrote Sawyer a letter directing him to continue to hold 92 per cent of the line's voting stock. This was before the contempt proceedings.

160 Tons Of TNT Set Off In Utah

DUGWAY, Utah, May 22 (AP)—Army engineers touched off 160 tons of TNT today, the most powerful explosion ever to occur without the use of atomic energy.

The blast sent a cloud of smoke and dust mushrooming into the brilliantly clear sky over desolate Western Utah. Several hundred spectators watched as the cloud billowed up, black in color, then faded to a grey.

"It was beautiful," said L. E. Christensen, resident inspector for the Corps of Army Engineers.

"Everything went off as scheduled. There were no accidents and conditions were ideal."

The explosion was part of the engineers' series of tests to determine the effect of underground blasts on various types of installations.

Engineers refused to say, specifically, what types of installations were tested. Suggestions have been made that structures simulating underground factories and warehouses were used.

Jones Terms Coal Bill Veto By McKeldin As Lame 'Alibi'

For the second time in a week, John T. Jones, president of District 16, United Mine Workers, charged Governor McKeldin with violating a campaign promise in refusing to sign a bill that would allow only Maryland mined coal in state institutions.

Today Jones, head of the local UMW district, termed the Governor's reply to his initial charge as a "lame alibi."

Governor McKeldin's answer last Thursday was that he refused to sign the coal bill because it discriminated against 42 miners of Crellin who work across the state line in a West Virginia pit.

Jones' letter follows:

"My Dear Governor:

"I have no desire to engage in a controversy with you over the purchase of Maryland coal for use in Maryland institutions. You made a promise, you broke your promise, and the men who mine coal in the state of Maryland are the victims of your duplicity. But surely you do not expect the people of Maryland who believed you once, to accept your lame alibi, that to be more than fair to 42 Maryland citizens, who mine coal in West Virginia, you must be more than unfair to 1,600 citizens who mine coal in Maryland. You are asking too much, I assure you.

"Of course we know that politics plays a part in your role as the great equalizer, but how pray tell, could a bill be written providing for the sale of Maryland coal alone or use in Maryland institutions and still provide for the 42 citizens who mine coal in West Virginia. Could it be that a slight brokerage fee of say 25 cents to certain Maryland brokers on every ton of coal purchased had anything to do with the statesman-like decision you reached? If so, I suggest there is no necessity for any fee payment for any purchase of coal in Maryland.

"Could the fact that West Virginia miners work for less money than Maryland miners have anything to do with your Solomon-like decision; does not the fact that Georges Creek and other Maryland coal is much more efficient and has less ash content than does the West Virginia coal purchased, carry no weight in the terrific argument you must have waged with yourself in this momentous and world shaking decision.

"We coal miners don't know these things, Governor, and we are asking. We are a simple people who still believe that to a good American his word is his bond. Be yet politician, businessman or laborer, I suggest that you tell the public the real reason why you double-crossed the coal miners of Maryland."

Spare Parts Autos Help Meet Demand

LONDON (AP) — "New" cars built from spare parts are causing headaches for British auto makers. The patch-up job are done so well that it is frequently hard to tell them from the real thing.

ject to strict rules regarding the re-

British auto sales are still sub-sale of new cars, which also carry high purchase tax.

But there is no purchase tax on spare parts, and so shrewd operators can pick up a chassis in Newcastle, an engine in Liverpool and keep on travelling until they have all the ingredients of what looks like a new car.

Unwary buyers willingly lay out more than the list price in order to avoid a wait of several years for a new car on the regular market.

Real-Life Superman Is Singapore Cop

SINGAPORE (AP)—The Singapore police force claims to have a "Superman" on its staff. He is Corporal Abdullah bin Ahmad, of the special constabulary.

Abdullah is 28. He is famed for his feats of strength. He is credited with pulling a carload of eight persons with his teeth for a distance of 100 yards with ease. He also lets 14 men—seven on each side—pull a rope tied with a thumb-knot around his neck, has been pictured lifting a load of 320 pounds with his teeth, and pulling out nails hammered six inches deep in wood.

His other reputed feats: Bending iron rods around his neck and arm; breaking an iron chain tied round his body; lying on broken glass and letting a granite be placed on his chest, then hammered to bits.

Jones Terms Coal Bill Veto By McKeldin As Lame 'Alibi'

For the second time in a week, John T. Jones, president of District 16, United Mine Workers, charged Governor McKeldin with violating a campaign promise in refusing to sign a bill that would allow only Maryland mined coal in state institutions.

Today Jones, head of the local UMW district, termed the Governor's reply to his initial charge as a "lame alibi."

Governor McKeldin's answer last Thursday was that he refused to sign the coal bill because it discriminated against 42 miners of Crellin who work across the state line in a West Virginia pit.

Jones' letter follows:

"My Dear Governor:

"I have no desire to engage in a controversy with you over the purchase of Maryland coal for use in Maryland institutions. You made a promise, you broke your promise, and the men who mine coal in the state of Maryland are the victims of your duplicity. But surely you do not expect the people of Maryland who believed you once, to accept your lame alibi, that to be more than fair to 42 Maryland citizens, who mine coal in West Virginia, you must be more than unfair to 1,600 citizens who mine coal in Maryland. You are asking too much, I assure you.

"Of course we know that politics plays a part in your role as the great equalizer, but how pray tell, could a bill be written providing for the sale of Maryland coal alone or use in Maryland institutions and still provide for the 42 citizens who mine coal in West Virginia. Could it be that a slight brokerage fee of say 25 cents to certain Maryland brokers on every ton of coal purchased had anything to do with the statesman-like decision you reached? If so, I suggest there is no necessity for any fee payment for any purchase of coal in Maryland.

"Could the fact that West Virginia miners work for less money than Maryland miners have anything to do with your Solomon-like decision; does not the fact that Georges Creek and other Maryland coal is much more efficient and has less ash content than does the West Virginia coal purchased, carry no weight in the terrific argument you must have waged with yourself in this momentous and world shaking decision.

"We coal miners don't know these things, Governor, and we are asking. We are a simple people who still believe that to a good American his word is his bond. Be yet politician, businessman or laborer, I suggest that you tell the public the real reason why you double-crossed the coal miners of Maryland."

AP's Gilmore, Back In Soviet Capital, Describes Changes

(This is how Moscow looks to the AP's Eddy Gilmore, back in the Soviet Union after eight months in the United States and France. Gilmore left Moscow last October for a vacation in the United States and then went to work in the Paris bureau of the AP while waiting for the Russians to grant his return visa to Moscow. The visa was granted early this month. A native of Selma, Ala., Gilmore has been stationed in Moscow since 1941. This dispatch was subject to the usual Soviet censorship.)

MOSCOW. —(AP)— Eight months has made a difference in 800-year-old Moscow. The skyline has shot up closer to the heavens. The city is greener and the lights on some streets definitely brighter.

The day's burning topic still seems to be football. The first question a Russian taxi driver asked me as I returned to the Soviet capital after nearly eight months in the United States and Paris was: "Did you hear today's football score?"

There seems to be more interest in football (soccer) than ever before. The season begins May 2 and continues to the first snows of autumn.

The cold war also is a topic. The conference of foreign ministers deputies in Paris, American rearmament, the Atlantic alliance, President Truman, Secretary of State Acheson, the U. S. Congress and the Korean war come in for lively comment.

But certainly there seems to be no war scare here, or among the few Russians with whom I talked at the Leningrad airport.

At the moment, people are making extensive plans for summer vacations. Families are renting dachas (summer cottages) for the season and children are looking forward to the end of the month, when school closes.

There is keen interest in next year's Olympic Games, in which the U. S. S. R. will be a big competitor. (It is the first time for the Soviet Union.)

Each time one returns to the Soviet Union, one cannot help be impressed by the age-old kindness of the Russian people. Customs officials in Leningrad were considerate and quick. When they asked if I did not want a glass of tea in the airport restaurant, I replied that I had no Soviet money in my pockets, and was told: "Oh, that's all right, you can pay for that some other time."

I flew into Moscow under a full moon, in a new silver-colored, twin-engined transport plane. There were constant queries from the co-pilot whether it was too hot or too cold. When we neared the capital, the co-pilot announced: "You'll see Moscow in a few moments just off there. I'll turn off the lights so you can see it better."

My first impression was how the city had grown up in eight months, for now a section of Moscow University is hoisting itself 32 stories into the sky above the Lenin hills; a big office building on Smolensk Boulevard now is almost complete; a 20-odd story apartment building along the Moscow River is going up.

Linden and lime trees which the authorities have been planting here since the war are in full leaf, giving the downtown section and main boulevards an emerald tinge. The Alexandrovsky Gardens beside the Kremlin are as green as Ireland, and Sverdlovsk Square and Pushkin Square look lovely with their central parks.

The huge, rosy stars atop the ancient but refurbished Kremlin towers gleam brightly as ever over the traffic, which is heavier than any time in Moscow's history. The face of the traffic is changing, for the new Zim automobile has taken its place alongside the sleek Zis cars. Zim's name comes from the abbreviation of the Molotov factory, Zis' name from the abbreviation of the name of the Stalin factory.

Of course there are many other changes in the capital. Prices are somewhat lower. There has been much painting and cleaning of buildings.

Beautiful load Bananas 2 lbs. 25c. 10 lb. basket 98c. Basket free. Good supply for the holiday. Hager's at Lovers Leap.

"Jersey Highball" Favored Says Innkeeper

CAMBRIDGE SPRINGS, Pa. (AP)—With one who knows, it's a Jersey highball two-to-one over other drinks—at least at the Riverside Inn.

"I always have a Jersey highball before I go to bed," says the Inn owner, Francis Parke.

That comes from a native New Yorker and an Army veteran since the days of the Mexican border clashes. Five years ago Parke was retired from active service and came to western Pennsylvania.

Ten years ago he would have asked the recipe for a Jersey highball, which is just a glass of pure rich milk—straight—from a Jersey cow, but Parke found out the hard way when he purchased the 56-year-old inn and became head herdsman for 55 cows thrown into the deal. Incidentally, the Riverside Inn also has a hard liquor bar.

Clue In Ancient Pacific Mystery

WELLINGTON, N. Z. (AP)—Another clue that may some day lead to the clearing up of the mystery of Easter Island, and possibly link the Maoris of New Zealand with the American continent, has been found in a forest near Wellington.

It is an ancient canoe prow of a special type. On the back of the figurehead are carved chevrons similar to those found on the stone statues of Easter Island. Experts here believe the find is of utmost importance.

The significance of the find lies in the support it gives to that group of ethnologists who believe that the original settlers of Polynesia made their way into the Pacific from the American continent and were carried by the Humbolt Current to the islands to the west and south.

A 220-pound aquamarine is the largest gem ever found, says the National Geographic Society.

Better ways to make better products

Every day in the year Celanese Corporation of America puts thousands of dollars into research projects designed to develop new products and processes, to improve manufacturing methods and equipment, and to give better control of quality.

This research is important to every employee and to the communities of which we are a part, for a company can't rest on its laurels and expect to keep ahead of the parade.

Celanese was founded on research which has been carried on ever since. Research activities are now centered at Summit, New Jersey, and at Clarkwood, Texas, but a considerable amount of research and development work is done at various Celanese plants.

At Amcelle, for instance, we're working on a number of important projects, but we don't talk too much about them for the same reason a baseball catcher doesn't tell the batter what pitch he's calling for. We're also doing the "pilot plant" work of expanding laboratory developments into plant production projects.

The money that pays for the Celanese research program comes out of company income. It represents dollars invested in better products for better values, which means security for all. Management recognizes the value of a strong research program, realizing that if you want to keep a company operating you have to continue offering customers a better product for prices they are willing to pay.

Jobs come from customers, and customers are always looking for the best buy. We've got to give it to them—or see orders and paychecks go to competitors that will.

AP's Gilmore, Back In Soviet Capital, Describes Changes

(This is how Moscow looks to the AP's Eddy Gilmore, back in the Soviet Union after eight months in the United States and France. Gilmore left Moscow last October for a vacation in the United States and then went to work in the Paris bureau of the AP while waiting for the Russians to grant his return visa to Moscow. The visa was granted early this month. A native of Selma, Ala., Gilmore has been stationed in Moscow since 1941. This dispatch was subject to the usual Soviet censorship.)

MOSCOW. —(AP)— Eight months has made a difference in 800-year-old Moscow. The skyline has shot up closer to the heavens. The city is greener and the lights on some streets definitely brighter.

The day's burning topic still seems to be football. The first question a Russian taxi driver asked me as I returned to the Soviet capital after nearly eight months in the United States and Paris was: "Did you hear today's football score?"

There seems to be more interest in football (soccer) than ever before. The season begins May 2 and continues to the first snows of autumn.

The cold war also is a topic. The conference of foreign ministers deputies in Paris, American rearmament, the Atlantic alliance, President Truman, Secretary of State Acheson, the U. S. Congress and the Korean war come in for lively comment.

But certainly there seems to be no war scare here, or among the few Russians with whom I talked at the Leningrad airport.

At the moment, people are making extensive plans for summer vacations. Families are renting dachas (summer cottages) for the season and children are looking forward to the end of the month, when school closes.

There is keen interest in next year's Olympic Games, in which the U. S. S. R. will be a big competitor. (It is the first time for the Soviet Union.)

Each time one returns to the Soviet Union, one cannot help be impressed by the age-old kindness of the Russian people. Customs officials in Leningrad were considerate and quick. When they asked if I did not want a glass of tea in the airport restaurant, I replied that I had no Soviet money in my pockets, and was told: "Oh, that's all right, you can pay for that some other time."

I flew into Moscow under a full moon, in a new silver-colored, twin-engined transport plane. There were constant queries from the co-pilot whether it was too hot or too cold. When we neared the capital, the co-pilot announced: "You'll see Moscow in a few moments just off there. I'll turn off the lights so you can see it better."

My first impression was how the city had grown up in eight months, for now a section of Moscow University is hoisting itself 32 stories into the sky above the Lenin hills; a big office building on Smolensk Boulevard now is almost complete; a 20-odd story apartment building along the Moscow River is going up.

Linden and lime trees which the authorities have been planting here since the war are in full leaf, giving the downtown section and main boulevards an emerald tinge. The Alexandrovsky Gardens beside the Kremlin are as green as Ireland, and Sverdlovsk Square and Pushkin Square look lovely with their central parks.

The huge, rosy stars atop the ancient but refurbished Kremlin towers gleam brightly as ever over the traffic, which is heavier than any time in Moscow's history. The face of the traffic is changing, for the new Zim automobile has taken its place alongside the sleek Zis cars. Zim's name comes from the abbreviation of the Molotov factory, Zis' name from the abbreviation of the name of the Stalin factory.

Of course there are many other changes in the capital. Prices are somewhat lower. There has been much painting and cleaning of buildings.

"Jersey Highball" Favored Says Innkeeper

CAMBRIDGE SPRINGS, Pa. (AP)—With one who knows, it's a Jersey highball two-to-one over other drinks—at least at the Riverside Inn.

"I always have a Jersey highball before I go to bed," says the Inn owner, Francis Parke.

That comes from a native New Yorker and an Army veteran since the days of the Mexican border clashes. Five years ago Parke was retired from active service and came to western Pennsylvania.

Ten years ago he would have asked the recipe for a Jersey highball, which is just a glass of pure rich milk—straight—from a Jersey cow, but Parke found out the hard way when he purchased the 56-year-old inn and became head herdsman for 55 cows thrown into the deal. Incidentally, the Riverside Inn also has a hard liquor bar.

Clue In Ancient Pacific Mystery

WELLINGTON, N. Z. (AP)—Another clue that may some day lead to the clearing up of the mystery of Easter Island, and possibly link the Maoris of New Zealand with the American continent, has been found in a forest near Wellington.

It is an ancient canoe prow of a special type. On the back of the figurehead are carved chevrons similar to those found on the stone statues of Easter Island. Experts here believe the find is of utmost importance.

The significance of the find lies in the support it gives to that group of ethnologists who believe that the original settlers of Polynesia made their way into the Pacific from the American continent and were carried by the Humbolt Current to the islands to the west and south.

A 220-pound aquamarine is the largest gem ever found, says the National Geographic Society.

Baseball's Well-Paid Peons

Organized baseball's contentious "reserve clause" will get a thorough looking-over next month, when a House subcommittee headed by Rep. Celler holds hearings on the monopoly status of the national pastime. Celler says the inquiry will be a "friendly" one.

Baseball's most recent tangle with the law ended in a draw. Suspended from baseball for life because of jumping his contract in 1946 to play in Mexico, Danny Gardella, formerly of the New York Giants, sued baseball's big shots for $300,000 for violation of the federal anti-trust laws.

The district court ruled it had no jurisdiction, but the Court of Appeals of the Second Circuit (New York), in a split decision on February 9, 1949, ordered the district court to rule on Gardella's allegations. These were that: 1) the "reserve clause" turns organized baseball into a monopoly; 2) baseball's revenues from radio and television make it interstate commerce and hence subject to anti-trust laws. Judge Jerome Frank said for the Court:

"We have here a monopoly, which, in its effect on ball-players like the plaintiff, possesses characteristics shockingly repugnant to moral principles that, at least since the War Between the States, have been basic in America. . . . For the "reserve clause," as has been observed, results in something resembling peonage of the baseball player."

But in October 1949 Gardella signed a $5,000 contract with the St. Louis Cardinals and settled his suit out of court for a reported $25,000. In June, 1950, the Cardinals made Gardella a free agent.

Baseball's national agreement, covering professional clubs in the U. S., Canada, Cuba, Puerto Rico, Mexico, renders players ineligible on violation of the so-called "uniform contract." In this, a player signing for one season gives his club an option over him for the next season. The following year's contract will carry the same provision, so the player has really signed for the duration of his baseball life. The club, however, can terminate the contract and release the player unconditionally on 10 days' notice.

The District Court in dismissing Gardella's suit had cited the Supreme Court in 1922 on the case of the Federal (League) Base Ball Club of Baltimore against the National League. Justice Holmes said for the Court:

"The business is giving exhibitions of base ball, which are purely state affairs. It is true that in order to attain for these exhibitions the great popularity that they have achieved, competitions must be arranged between clubs from different cities and states. But the fact that in order to give the exhibitions the leagues must induce free persons to cross state lines and must arrange to pay for their doing so is not enough to change the character of the business."

The "Yale Law Journal" declared in its issue of June, 1937:

"Some courts have called 'organized baseball' a monopoly. The uniform contract has been assailed as against public policy and in restraint of trade, and as too indefinite or too one-sided to be enforced in equity. The National Agreement's provisions on ineligibility and trading are in apparent conflict with the anti-blacklisting statutes of several states, and with the traditional common-law doctrine that contracts for personal services are non-assignable."

But: "The prevailing order makes for closer pennant races, better ball games, greater public interest and greater consumer satisfaction. And more fun for the fans means more money for the magnates."

Money Trouble For Colleges

The row at Rollins College in Florida is unusual in that the youthful president, Paul A. Wagner, refused to accept as valid the decision of the trustees, by a majority of one, to replace him. But the situation behind the row at Rollins is confronting practically all other private institutions of higher learning. The situation—fewer students, lower income, higher costs.

Students will be somewhat fewer next year because of the demands of Selective Service. However, they will not be so few as had been feared some months ago. For one thing, the local draft boards are to wait until some time in August, when the results of the forthcoming intelligence tests will be known, to begin to induct students who had been deferred for the present college year.

The draft age is to be lowered to 18½, not to 18. More veterans are expected to enroll under the GI bill of rights in colleges before the deadline date of July 25, 1951. Many students not being graduated this year are veterans immune from the draft, and deferment will probably be continued for students in the ROTC.

When it comes to college income, however, the outlook is still full of gloom. Colleges and universities are receiving fewer and smaller donations as higher taxes afflict the wealthy. There is very definitely a limit on how much tuition fees can be increased. Endowment fund returns are lower; they provided 23 per cent of total revenues of private colleges in 1940, only 12 per cent in 1948.

As for higher costs in education, they have nearly doubled over a decade. The abler members of college faculties can hardly be retained unless their salaries are raised enough to keep their families above the penury level in these high-cost-of-living days. And no college is better than its faculty.

Near East Hot Spot

The Iranian oil dispute continues to sizzle. The London government would like to have Uncle Sam's help in saving their oil concession in that hot spot, or, failing that, to line up guaranties that Britain and Europe will continue to get the Iranian oil which they need to keep their industries going.

If Britain and Europe are deprived of the oil, it will go to Russia. There are fears Moscow has the situation sewed up now. If Russia gets the oil, the U. S. will be called upon to divert some of its none too ample supplies to Europe. Gasoline rationing in this country could be the result.

London complains that Washington remained silent while the Persians were taking over the field. They point out that the same thing could happen to American oil concessions elsewhere in Asia. It was an ironic twist that the nationalizing British were outraged when they became victims of nationalization elsewhere. But as a development of the menacing program of Russian pressure it cannot be regarded lightly.

It is up to the British to take the lead in solving their Iranian difficulty. It remains to be seen whether they will be more successful in the Near East than the U. S. has been in the Far East.

How To Keep Well

Weakened Muscles

Myasthenia is an unusual disease. It produces weakness in various muscles yet neither the muscles nor nerves are at fault. The trouble centers about a chemical that is formed at the places where the nerves and muscles begin. Appropriate antidotes are available to help the majority of victims.

All sufferers tell a typical story. Without warning they begin to have difficulty keeping the eyelids open, not in the first part of the morning but as the day goes on. With a short rest, strength returns and the individual continues until the cycle repeats itself. It becomes a matter of work, fatigue, rest, and work.

More than one group of muscles are likely to be involved. Those of the face, jaws, and swallowing apparatus are most susceptible. Cross-eye may develop when the muscles that turn the eyes are affected. The problem becomes more complicated if the structures concerned with talking and swallowing become fatigued. The person may be engaged in conversation when without warning he is unable to continue until recuperation of the muscles takes place. A somewhat similar condition exists when swallowing or chewing. Should the muscles of the arms or legs become affected walking is difficult, especially upstairs. The housewife may be unable to beat eggs, brush her hair, or play cards.

There are many remedies such as ephedrine and potassium. But in 1934 neostigmine bromide was discovered and this drug surpassed all others. It can be taken in tablet form and is so effective it is used occasionally as a test in this disease. The physician is inclined to make a diagnosis of myasthenia gravis when a test dose of neostigmine relieves the patient's symptoms.

More recently a new chemical, octamethyl pyrophosphoramide, was introduced. According to a group of University of Chicago physicians, the preparation can be administered alone or in combination with neostigmine. They were able to help some individuals in whom the usual remedies had failed. One woman, for example, had been bothered with double vision for five years, along with drooping of the eyelids as well as distress in chewing, swallowing, and speaking. In addition, she was having trouble with her arms and legs and in the course of her illness has lost 32 pounds.

So far this new compound has been tried on only six patients. Four preferred its action to neostigmine. In half the series, return of strength was better than with the older remedy. The two failures in the group had not responded previously to neostigmine. As yet we do not know whether the latest drug will be added to the list of "has beens" in this disease. We must watch and wait.

PUFFY ANKLES

Mrs. H. writes: Could overweight make the ankles swell?

REPLY

Yes, if the added poundage is caused by accumulated water in the tissues. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on dropsy of the legs and feet.

STARCH HABIT STICKS

Mrs. W. writes: I have been eating laundry starch for years but I crave more and more. I'm now up to three boxes a week. Will this do any harm?

REPLY

The habit cannot be recommended but to my knowledge there is no scientific evidence that it produces harm. Let me know if it stiffens your stomach.

KIDNEY GRAFT

Mrs. L. writes: Do the kidney grafts we read about in the newspapers really work?

REPLY

Some have taken; others have not. To my knowledge there is some question as to how much time must elapse before it will be known whether or not the grafted kidney will begin to work.

MOVABLE KIDNEY

V.G.T. writes: Could floating kidney cause pain under the ribs?

REPLY

No. The trouble with floating kidneys is that they sink when the owner stands. If pain occurs, it usually is in the loin or in front over the kidney. A complicating kinking of a ureter producers back pain.

LID CLOSURE

M. T. writes: My right eyelid has taken to closing and I can't open it for a moment or two. My vision is perfect. What could be wrong?

REPLY

If you mean that the upper and lower lids stick together, there may be an eyelid infection with some crusting. If you refer to a temporary ptosis, the chances are that a nerve lesion is not responsible but examination by a capable eye man would be necessary to determine the cause.

BLIND SPOT

M. R. writes: What is a blind spot in the eye?

REPLY

An area where the optic nerve pierces the retina. The lesions are so tiny they do not disrupt normal vision.

Defense Boss Reneges On Promise To Eric Johnston; Top Mobilizers Clash Over Executive Order; Wilson Hints Commie Smear Threat

WASHINGTON—It's been pretty well concealed except to their close friends, but a smoldering, sometimes bitter feud has been raging between the two top mobilization executives of the nation—Charles E. Wilson and Eric Johnston.

Both men have been in the electrical business——Wilson as head of the Giant General Electric Corp., Johnston as owner of his own appliance factory in Spokane, Wash. Wilson has sometimes had rough sledding with his labor relations; Johnston has an employe Profit-sharing plan which makes his factory a model for the nation.

Wilson did a good job as government production executive during World War II; Johnston for years was a farsighted chairman of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce. Wilson was chairman of Truman's Committee on Civil Liberties and Tolerance; Johnston served as czar of the motion picture industry.

But, despite their vast and varied experience, the two men just don't seem to like each other.

The feud really began last winter shortly after Johnston was asked by Wilson to leave the motion picture industry to take on the headache-inspiring job of economic stabilizer. Johnston consented, provided he was given an executive order by the White House entrusting him with power to regulate prices, wages, credit, and other causes of inflation.

Johnston On Limb

Wilson agreed. And on the strength of his agreement, Johnston went out on a limb at a press conference and stated that the President would soon issue this executive order, in effect taking a big slice out of Wilson's mobilization empire.

Immediately thereafter, Johnston's legal staff drew up the executive order, but nothing happened.

Curious, Johnston found that the order was held up by Wilson himself, the man who had promised it. Wilson's alibi for the roadblock, was that his counsel, Herbert Bergson, and Peyton Fort, deputy attorney general, were opposed.

Johnston was burned up. However, he didn't go over Wilson's head to the President. Instead, he kept his mouth shut and played ball.

Meanwhile, Wilson had surrounded himself with the same type of idolaters as Harry Truman, some of them about as useful. The General Harry Vaughan of the Wilson idolaters is Sidney Weinberg, head of the giant Goldman-Sachs Investment Banking Company, who in Washington has been nicknamed head of the "Department of Devious Planning."

Weinberg is a suspicious gentleman who has been in charge of security. And one of his operators, apparently shadowing roly-poly Mike DiSalle, the ex-mayor of Toledo now price stabilizer, saw him lunching with Eddie Cheyfitz, former motion picture assistant to Eric Johnston.

Ex-Commie

So, out of the clear blue, Wilson called Johnston in. Tapping a sheaf of papers in his hand, Wilson glared at Johnston almost as if he were a witness before the House Un-American Activities Committee.

"Eric," he asked, "what about this friend of yours, Eddie Cheyfitz? Do you know that he was a member of the Communist party?"

"Certainly," replied Johnston, getting his dander up. "I've known Eddie Cheyfitz for years. And I know that 11 years ago, as a relative youngster, he was a member of the Communist party. I also know that ever since then he's been most helpful to the FBI in exposing the Communists.

"I know, for example," continued Johnston, getting warmer, "that he's fought Commies in Hollywood and in the labor unions. He has such an excellent record in this respect that he's addressed the Army War College on the subject of communism. He has also outlined the dangers of communism in speeches before the U.S. Chamber of Commerce and the Pennsylvania Manufacturers Association.

"I also know that in 1947, when Cheyfitz was under attack, Archbishop Karl Alter of Ohio came to his defense. That's what I know about Eddie Cheyfitz."

"Well, Eric," said Wilson, "I just didn't want to see you hurt by your association with Eddie Cheyfitz."

Johnston told Wilson that he did not desert his friends when he knew they were right, and left the room. He had the impression, however, that Wilson was trying to frighten him with an indirect Commie smear.

To this date the executive order promised to Johnston last January has not been signed.

NOTE—Cheyfitz was a member of the labor management committee of Toledo organized by Mike DiSalle, which has done so much to bring harmonious labor-management relations in once strike-ridden Toledo. In recent years, Cheyfitz has been working for Eric Johnston in the motion picture producers office in Washington and was instrumental in introducing Johnston to DiSalle.

Pastry Inflation

Congressman John Taber of New York, who has made a cut in government spending, recently was asked to cut a birthday cake for a young lady on his office staff.

However, as the New York Republican arrived for the ceremony, he found the honored guest in great distress. Somebody had loaded the cake with 45 candles, considerably in excess of her age.

"I'd like to know who put those extra 15 candles on this cake," she protested.

"Offhand, I'd say it's the work of some Democratic spy," guessed Taber. "This is a clear case of Truman inflation."

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

And Other Pressures

I came across a letter in a newspaper by Seba Eldridge, professor of sociology at the University of Kansas. What these professors say is only important because they influence the minds and characters of our children. The learned professor is interested in democratic collectivization — the sort of thing which they do over in England but which the British object to when it happens in Iran. The professor approves and says:

"With virtually no exceptions, the development of collective enterprise in the United States has been due to the pressure of consumer and public interests. Socialization has been a gradual, piecemeal, peaceful process in this country, not the kind of revolutionary action Karl Marx predicted.

"These processes and factors should be most encouraging to the American people. . . ."

I have been wondering what there is to be encouraged about in all this. Perhaps Professor Eldridge is thrilled over the fact that we are achieving Karl Marx's ends without employing Karl Marx's means, or perhaps the learned Seba Eldridge is cheered by socialism however it may be achieved. At any rate, the letter continues:

". . . Violent overthrow of our institutions is ruled out. Instead, we are all involved in an orderly process of cooperation, often without realizing it, in making our institutions suit the changing needs of the people."

We may take great comfort that violence is ruled out. In a word, the American government is not to be overthrown by force and violence, but the American economic and social system is to be changed, "often without realizing it." The object of all this is to make changes to suit the needs of the people. But that is to be decided, not by the people themselves, who, to repeat, often do not realize what is being done to them, but by so-called experts, that is, by an elite such as Hitler and Mussolini favored and Plato before them.

How foisting upon our people a vast congregation of bureaucrats, payroll grubbers, do-nothing experts, researchers and petty officials who consume the earnings of the people by constantly forcing tax increases, improves them, is a little difficult to understand, but maybe a sociologist can even discover a justification for a government cultivated inflation and the checks to millions of citizens for doing nothing. The professor says:

"' ' The instrumentalities of effecting peaceful change are a great variety of promotional agencies together with the Democratic and Republican parties."

It would be interesting if the professor wrote a learned thesis on that "variety of promotional agencies" that is bringing socialism to America. It would be interesting to compare his data with the researchers of the Hoover Commission, which sought to effect economies and failed because Mr. Truman found them politically inexpedient.

Eldridge includes the Democratic and Republican parties among the agencies for socialization. Every Republican will admit that the Democrats are deserving of the insult, but in the present state of public opinion and on the approach to the 1952 campaign, few Democrats will be grateful to Professor Seba Eldridge for calling them Socialists. He, of course, uses a fancier term, collectivists, but that is only because he is a professor and has to make things complicated. In fact, the professors have raked the dictionary for words which confuse.

I should also like to give you Professor Eldridge's definitions of democracy and totalitarianism; or to put it more simply as affecting the difference between the United States and Soviet Russia. After you have read that, you might wonder what happened to that fine boy or girl you sent to college:

". . . The conflict throughout the world today is largely one between democratic and totalitarian regimes. In totalitarian countries, collectivization is imposed through force by a small minority; in democratic countries, on the other hand, collective enterprises are extended in accordance with the will of the people as expressed through votes and other pressures."

I wonder what other pressures the professor has in mind! Up here in New York, they are often employed by such fellows as Frank Costello and Joe Adonis. I wonder what they have in Kansas. Maybe, it is done by mink coats and such in his region.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — The United States has launched a psychological warfare campaign inside China which which could some day lead to a unification of all anti-Communist elements in that country and the overthrow of the Communist government at Peiping.

The American point of view, carefully developed after much planning at the Department of State, has just been broadcast through the "Voice of America" to the Chinese people. Similar broadcasts will continue to be made from now on.

This approach does not mean that the United States is attempting to tell the Chinese how to set up a free government or who shall head it up. That's a matter for the people of China to decide. But the all-important development is that the United States has abandoned any idea of dealing with the Communist regime and ,in effect, has served notice that, if a government representative of the wishes of the Chinese people arises, it will deserve diplomatic recognition from all countries in the free world. It could be an expanded Nationalist government or a government brought into being through Nationalist efforts. It could be the Nationalist government itself if it regains control of the mainland.

"Deal" Is Out

The American policy, which cuts the gordian knot and destroys any probability of a "deal" with the Communist Chinese, has attracted considerable attention since it was announced last Friday night by Dean Rusk, assistant secretary of state for Far Eastern affairs.

The Department itself, confronted with queries asking what change it has made in Far Eastern policies, has said the pronouncement was not new in the sense that it has been historic American policy. But the words of Dean Rusk—which, incidentally, were not widely published because their significance was not immediately appreciated—make it quite clear that all bets are off so far as the Red Chinese are concerned. He said in part:

"The independence of China is gravely threatened. In the Communist world there is room for only one master—a jealous and implacable master, whose price of friendship is complete submission. How many Chinese, in one community after another, are now being destroyed because they love China more than the Soviet Union? . . .

"The freedoms of the Chinese people are disappearing. Trial by mob, mass-slaughter, banishment as forced labor to Manchuria, Siberia or Sinkiang, the arbitrary seizure of property, the destruction of loyalties within the family, the suppression of free speech—these are the facts behind the parades and celebrations and the empty promises."

Maps Show Dismemberment

Dean Rusk added that the "territorial integrity of China is now an ironic phrase," and he pointed out that the maps of China now being published on the mainland show how China has been dismembered.

How does all this relate to Korea? The objective of the American government is to wake up the people of China to the fact that their sons are being slaughtered in a war directed by Soviet Russia. Mr. Rusk declared:

"Hundreds of thousands of Chinese youth are being sacrificed in a fiery furnace, pitting their waves of human flesh against the fire power of modern weapons— and without heavy equipment, adequate supply or the most elementary medical atention. Apart from Korea, the Chinese are being pressed to aggressive action in other areas—all calculated to divert the atention and energies of China away from the encroachments of Soviet imperialism upon China itself."

This is the kind of doctrine that should have long ago been disseminated, but it comes opportunely now just the same when the Red offensive in Korea is causing the death of tens of thousands of brave Chinese soldiers. The significant paragraph in the Rusk speech, which steers carefully away from any atempt to dictate what elements shall be welded together to fight communism, says:

"We cannot provide a formula to engage the unity of effort among all Chinese who love their country. But one thing we can say—as the Chinese people move to assert freedom and to work out their destiny in accordance with their own historical purposes, they can count upon tremendous support from free peoples in other parts of the world."

This is the kind of pronouncement which, if made also to the people of the satellite countries in Europe, would in time bring a profound change in the "cold war," especially if it breaks down the "will to fight" of Red China's armies—many of whose soldiers are already deserting in response to leaflets dropped on them from day to day promising food, shelter and freedom.

Candor Needed

By MARK SULLIVAN

The Senate committee investigating President Truman's dismissal of Gen. MacArthur gave thought last week to making a formal charge of contempt against the country's highest military officer, Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff Gen. Omar Bradley. This was based on Gen. Bradley's refusal to tell what was said at a conference which President Truman held with him and others. The committee decided, 18 to 8, not to take action.

But assertion of right on the part of the committee to demand testimony of high government officials continued and was expanded. On Saturday Republican Sen. Wiley of Wisconsin proposed that President Truman be summoned by subpoena to testify on his dismissal of Gen. MacArthur. The committee Chairman, Sen. Russell of Georgia, said the proposal was "completely unthinkable."

The exact words of conversations in which two high officials took part, "I said" and "He said," are not a present primary need of either the Senate committee or the country. Constitutional argument about the right of the committee to demand them and additional argument about the propriety of subpoenaing the President are a diversion from the committee's central function. What that central function had to be has evolved from the proceedings of the committee so far. The inquiry began as an investigation into President Truman's dismissal of Gen. MacArthur, the reasons and circumstances of it. But it was apparent that the reel need was inquiry into a thing that is inclusive and much broader, the Administration policies and course that have had a part in the fall of China to Russian communism.

Inquiry Has Progressed

This inquiry has made much progress. Secretary of Defense Marshall has testified fully about the Truman Administration policy that discouraged the then government of China under Chiang Kai-shek, and the encouragement given thereby and otherwise to the movement that became and now is the Communist government of China. There will be further testimony, among others by Secretary of State Acheson, and many besides; the investigation will need to range far.

For the origin of the Administration course and policy about China was broader than specific actions taken and beliefs held by a small number of individuals. The origin was a kind of atmosphere; the resultant of beliefs held by scores of individuals including persons outside official life. Their beliefs about China varied, perhaps the largest common denominator among them was belief that the Nationalist government of Chiang Kai-shek must fall and deserved to.

In the outgivings which attempted to justify discountenancing Chiang Kai-shek a frequent charge was that he and his government were "reactionary." Holding that belief the wish and expectation was that China should have a "liberal" government. That is what the Truman Administration supposed it was encouraging when it demanded that Chiang Kai-shek take into an "integrated government" the group that at the time was frequently called "liberal" or "agrarian reformers." But the government which this group set up was Communist. This the Administration had to accept, but it still hoped it could follow a policy which would prevent the new government from going under dominance of the Communist government of Russia. But presently the new government entered into alliance with the Russian Communists.

May Probe Deeper

All this, with much besides, composes the intricate mesh which the Senate committee needs to untangle. And after they have done this presumably they will go yet deeper. For it was not merely the Administration's policy about China that contributed to disaster, it was also the policies of the Truman Administration and the Roosevelt one which had made Russia strong.

Apparently the investigation will go on for months, it is obvious the committee is disposed to. It takes place during a period when the two parties are preparing for the Presidential campaign of next year. But likewise it takes place during a period when there is desperate need for national unity. If members of the Senate committee would conduct the hearings in a manner as free as practicable from acrimony, they would serve the public interest. An immense contribution that Mr. Truman could make would be utter candor and conciliation. When a President and his Administration have made mistakes that are glaringly apparent, a human disposition of some temperaments is to stiffen in defiance, and this trait is especially strong in Mr. Truman.

Baseball's Well-Paid Peons

Organized baseball's contentious "reserve clause" will get a thorough looking-over next month, when a House subcommittee headed by Rep. Celler holds hearings on the monopoly status of the national pastime. Celler says the inquiry will be a "friendly" one.

Baseball's most recent tangle with the law ended in a draw. Suspended from baseball for life because of jumping his contract in 1946 to play in Mexico, Danny Gardella, formerly of the New York Giants, sued baseball's big shots for $300,000 for violation of the federal anti-trust laws.

The district court ruled it had no jurisdiction, but the Court of Appeals of the Second Circuit (New York), in a split decision on February 9, 1949, ordered the district court to rule on Gardella's allegations. These were that: 1) the "reserve clause" turns organized baseball into a monopoly; 2) baseball's revenues from radio and television make it interstate commerce and hence subject to anti-trust laws. Judge Jerome Frank said for the Court:

"We have here a monopoly, which, in its effect on ball-players like the plaintiff, possesses characteristics shockingly repugnant to moral principles that, at least since the War Between the States, have been basic in America. . . . For the "reserve clause," as has been observed, results in something resembling peonage of the baseball player."

But in October 1949 Gardella signed a $5,000 contract with the St. Louis Cardinals and settled his suit out of court for a reported $25,000. In June, 1950, the Cardinals made Gardella a free agent.

Baseball's national agreement, covering professional clubs in the U. S., Canada, Cuba, Puerto Rico, Mexico, renders players ineligible on violation of the so-called "uniform contract." In this, a player signing for one season gives his club an option over him for the next season. The following year's contract will carry the same provision, so the player has really signed for the duration of his baseball life. The club, however, can terminate the contract and release the player unconditionally on 10 days' notice.

The District Court in dismissing Gardella's suit had cited the Supreme Court in 1922 on the case of the Federal (League) Base Ball Club of Baltimore against the National League. Justice Holmes said for the Court:

"The business is giving exhibitions of base ball, which are purely state affairs. It is true that in order to attain for these exhibitions the great popularity that they have achieved, competitions must be arranged between clubs from different cities and states. But the fact that in order to give the exhibitions the leagues must induce free persons to cross state lines and must arrange to pay for their doing so is not enough to change the character of the business."

The "Yale Law Journal" declared in its issue of June, 1937:

"Some courts have called 'organized baseball' a monopoly. The uniform contract has been assailed as against public policy and in restraint of trade, and as too indefinite or too one-sided to be enforced in equity. The National Agreement's provisions on ineligibility and trading are in apparent conflict with the anti-blacklisting statutes of several states, and with the traditional common-law doctrine that contracts for personal services are non-assignable."

But: "The prevailing order makes for closer pennant races, better ball games, greater public interest and greater consumer satisfaction. And more fun for the fans means more money for the magnates."

Money Trouble For Colleges

The row at Rollins College in Florida is unusual in that the youthful president, Paul A. Wagner, refused to accept as valid the decision of the trustees, by a majority of one, to replace him. But the situation behind the row at Rollins is confronting practically all other private institutions of higher learning. The situation—fewer students, lower income, higher costs.

Students will be somewhat fewer next year because of the demands of Selective Service. However, they will not be so few as had been feared some months ago. For one thing, the local draft boards are to wait until some time in August, when the results of the forthcoming intelligence tests will be known, to begin to induct students who had been deferred for the present college year.

The draft age is to be lowered to 18½, not to 18. More veterans are expected to enroll under the GI bill of rights in colleges before the deadline date of July 25, 1951. Many students not being graduated this year are veterans immune from the draft, and deferment will probably be continued for students in the ROTC.

When it comes to college income, however, the outlook is still full of gloom. Colleges and universities are receiving fewer and smaller donations as higher taxes afflict the wealthy. There is very definitely a limit on how much tuition fees can be increased. Endowment fund returns are lower; they provided 23 per cent of total revenues of private colleges in 1940, only 12 per cent in 1948.

As for higher costs in education, they have nearly doubled over a decade. The abler members of college faculties can hardly be retained unless their salaries are raised enough to keep their families above the penury level in these high-cost-of-living days. And no college is better than its faculty.

Near East Hot Spot

The Iranian oil dispute continues to sizzle. The London government would like to have Uncle Sam's help in saving their oil concession in that hot spot, or, failing that, to line up guaranties that Britain and Europe will continue to get the Iranian oil which they need to keep their industries going.

If Britain and Europe are deprived of the oil, it will go to Russia. There are fears Moscow has the situation sewed up now. If Russia gets the oil, the U. S. will be called upon to divert some of its none too ample supplies to Europe. Gasoline rationing in this country could be the result.

London complains that Washington remained silent while the Persians were taking over the field. They point out that the same thing could happen to American oil concessions elsewhere in Asia. It was an ironic twist that the nationalizing British were outraged when they became victims of nationalization elsewhere. But as a development of the menacing program of Russian pressure it cannot be regarded lightly.

It is up to the British to take the lead in solving their Iranian difficulty. It remains to be seen whether they will be more successful in the Near East than the U. S. has been in the Far East.

How To Keep Well

By DR. T. R. VAN DELLEN

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases.

Weakened Muscles

Myasthenia is an unusual disease. It produces weakness in various muscles yet neither the muscles nor nerves are at fault. The trouble centers about a chemical that is formed at the places where the nerves and muscles begin. Appropriate antidotes are available to help the majority of victims.

All sufferers tell a typical story. Without warning they begin to have difficulty keeping the eyelids open, not in the first part of the morning but as the day goes on. With a short rest, strength returns and the individual continues until the cycle repeats itself. It becomes a matter of work, fatigue, rest, and work.

More than one group of muscles are likely to be involved. Those of the face, jaws, and swallowing apparatus are most susceptible. Cross-eye may develop when the muscles that turn the eyes are affected. The problem becomes more complicated if the structures concerned with talking and swallowing become fatigued. The person may be engaged in conversation when without warning he is unable to continue until recuperation of the muscles takes place. A somewhat similar condition exists when swallowing or chewing. Should the muscles of the arms or legs become affected walking is difficult, especially upstairs. The housewife may be unable to beat eggs, brush her hair, or play cards.

There are many remedies such as ephedrine and potassium. But in 1934 neostigmine bromide was discovered and this drug surpassed all others. It can be taken in tablet form and is so effective it is used occasionally as a test in this disease. The physician is inclined to make a diagnosis of myasthenia gravis when a test dose of neostigmine relieves the patient's symptoms.

More recently a new chemical, octamethyl pyrophosphoramide, was introduced. According to a group of University of Chicago physicians, the preparation can be administered alone or in combination with neostigmine. They were able to help some individuals in whom the usual remedies had failed. One woman, for example, had been bothered with double vision for five years, along with drooping of the eyelids as well as distress in chewing, swallowing, and speaking. In addition, she was having trouble with her arms and legs and in the course of her illness has lost 32 pounds.

So far this new compound has been tried on only six patients. Four preferred its action to neostigmine. In half the series, return of strength was better than with the older remedy. The two failures in the group had not responded previously to neostigmine. As yet we do not know whether the latest drug will be added to the list of "has beens" in this disease. We must watch and wait.

KIDNEY GRAFT

MOVABLE KIDNEY

V.G.T. writes: Could floating kidney cause pain under the ribs?

No. The trouble with floating kidneys is that they sink when the owner stands. If pain occurs, it usually is in the loin or in front over the kidney. A complicating kinking of a ureter producers back pain.

M. T. writes: My right eyelid has taken to closing and I can't open it for a moment or two. My vision is perfect. What could be wrong?

If you mean that the upper and lower lids stick together, there may be an eyelid infection with some crusting. If you refer to a temporary ptosis, the chances are that a nerve lesion is not responsible but examination by a capable eye man would be necessary to determine the cause.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Defense Boss Reneges On Promise To Eric Johnston; Top Mobilizers Clash Over Executive Order; Wilson Hints Commie Smear Threat

WASHINGTON—It's been pretty well concealed except to their close friends, but a smoldering, sometimes bitter feud has been raging between the two top mobilization executives of the nation—Charles E. Wilson and Eric Johnston.

Both men have been in the electrical business——Wilson as head of the Giant General Electric Corp., Johnston as owner of his own appliance factory in Spokane, Wash. Wilson has sometimes had rough sledding with his labor relations; Johnston has an employe Profit-sharing plan which makes his factory a model for the nation.

Wilson did a good job as government production executive during World War II; Johnston for years was a farsighted chairman of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce. Wilson was chairman of Truman's Committee on Civil Liberties and Tolerance; Johnston served as czar of the motion picture industry.

But, despite their vast and varied experience, the two men just don't seem to like each other.

The feud really began last winter shortly after Johnston was asked by Wilson to leave the motion picture industry to take on the headache-inspiring job of economic stabilizer. Johnston consented, provided he was given an executive order by the White House entrusting him with' power to regulate prices, wages, credit, and other causes of inflation.

Johnston On Limb

Wilson agreed. And on the strength of his agreement, Johnston went out on a limb at a press conference and stated that the President would soon issue this executive order, in effect taking a big slice out of Wilson's mobilization empire.

Immediately thereafter, Johnston's legal staff drew up the executive order, but nothing happened.

Curious, Johnston found that the order was held up by Wilson himself, the man who had promised it.

Wilson's alibi for the roadblock, was that his counsel, Herbert Bergson, and Peyton Fort, deputy attorney general, were opposed.

Johnston was burned up. However, he didn't go over Wilson's head to the President. Instead, he kept his mouth shut and played ball.

Meanwhile, Wilson had surrounded himself with the same type of idolaters as Harry Truman, some of them about as useful. The General Harry Vaughan of the Wilson idolaters is Sidney Weinberg, head of the giant Goldman-Sachs Investment Banking Company, who in Washington has been nicknamed head of the "Department of Devious Planning."

Weinberg is a suspicious gentleman who has been in charge of security. And one of his operators, apparently shadowing roly - poly Mike DiSalle, the ex-mayor of Toledo now price stabilizer, saw him lunching with Eddie Cheyfitz, former motion picture assistant to Eric Johnston.

Ex-Commie

So, out of the clear blue, Wilson called Johnston in. Tapping a sheaf of papers in his hand, Wilson glared at Johnston almost as if he were a witness before the House Un-American Activities Committee.

"Eric," he asked, "what about this friend of yours, Eddie Cheyfitz? Do you know that he was a member of the Communist party?"

"Certainly," replied Johnston, getting his dander up. "I've known Eddie Cheyfitz for years. And I know that 11 years ago, as a relative youngster, he was a member of the Communist party. I also know that ever since then he's been most helpful to the FBI in exposing the Communists.

"I know, for example," continued Johnston, getting warmer, "that he's fought Commies in Hollywood and in the labor unions. He has such an excellent record in this respect that he's addressed the Army War College on the subject of communism. He has also outlined the dangers of communism in speeches before the U.S. Chamber of Commerce and the Pennsylvania Manufacturers Association.

"I also know that in 1947, when Cheyfitz was under attack, Archbishop Karl Alter of Ohio came to his defense. That's what I know about Eddie Cheyfitz."

"Well, Eric," said Wilson, "I just didn't want to see you hurt by your association with Eddie Cheyfitz."

Johnston told Wilson that he did not desert his friends when he knew they were right, and left the room. He had the impression, however, that Wilson was trying to frighten him with an indirect Commie smear.

To this date the executive order promised to Johnston last January has not been signed.

NOTE—Cheyfitz was a member of the labor management committee of Toledo organized by Mike DiSalle, which has done so much to bring harmonious labor - management relations in once strike-ridden Toledo. In recent years, Cheyfitz has been working for Eric Johnston in the motion picture producers office in Washington and was instrumental in introducing Johnston to DiSalle.

Pastry Inflation

Congressman John Taber of New York, who has made a cut in government spending, recently was asked to cut a birthday cake for a young lady on his office staff.

However, as the New York Republican arrived for the ceremony, he found the honored guest in great distress. Somebody had loaded the cake with 45 candles, considerably in excess of her age.

"I'd like to know who put those extra 15 candles on this cake," she protested.

"Offhand, I'd say it's the work of some Democratic spy," guessed Taber. "This is a clear case of Truman inflation."

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

And Other Pressures

I came across a letter in a newspaper by Seba Eldridge, professor of sociology at the University of Kansas. What these professors say is only important because they influence the minds and characters of our children. The learned professor is interested in democratic collectivization — the sort of thing which they do over in England but which the British object to when it happens in Iran. The professor approves and says:

"With virtually no exceptions, the development of collective enterprise in the United States has been due to the pressure of consumer and public interests. Socialization has been a gradual, piecemeal, peaceful process in this country, not the kind of revolutionary action Karl Marx predicted.

"These processes and factors should be most encouraging to the American people. . . ."

I have been wondering what there is to be encouraged about in all this. Perhaps Professor Eldridge is thrilled over the fact that we are achieving Karl Marx's ends without employing Karl Marx's means, or perhaps the learned Seba Eldridge is cheered by socialism however it may be achieved. At any rate, the letter continues:

". . . . Violent overthrow of our institutions is ruled out. Instead, we are all involved in an orderly process of cooperation, often without realizing it, in making our institutions suit the changing needs of the people."

We may take great comfort that violence is ruled out. In a word, the American government is not to be overthrown by force and violence, but the American economic and social system is to be changed, "often without realizing it." The object of all this is to make changes to suit the needs of the people. But that is to be decided, not by the people themselves, who, to repeat, often do not realize what is being done to them, but by so-called experts, that is, by an elite such as Hitler and Mussolini favored and Plato before them.

How foisting upon our people a vast congregation of bureaucrats, payroll grubbers, do-nothing experts, researchers and petty officials who consume the earnings of the people by constantly forcing tax increases, improves them, is a little difficult to understand, but maybe a sociologist can even discover a justification for a government cultivated inflation and the checks to millions of citizens for doing nothing. The professor says:

' ' ' The instrumentalities of effecting peaceful change are a great variety of promotional agencies together with the Democratic and Republican parties."

It would be interesting if the professor wrote a learned thesis on that "variety of promotional agencies" that is bringing socialism to America. It would be interesting to compare his data with the researchers of the Hoover Commission, which sought to effect economies and failed because Mr. Truman found them politically inexpedient.

Eldridge includes the Democratic and Republican parties among the agencies for socialization. Every Republican will admit that the Democrats are deserving of the insult, but in the present state of public opinion and on the approach to the 1952 campaign, few Democrats will be grateful to Professor Seba Eldridge for calling them Socialists. He, of course, uses a fancier term, collectivists, but that is only because he is a professor and has to make things complicated. In fact, the professors have raked the dictionary for words which confuse.

I should also like to give you Professor Eldridge's definitions of democracy and totalitarianism; or to put it more simply as affecting the difference between the United States and Soviet Russia. After you have read that, you might wonder what happened to that fine boy or girl you sent to college:

". . . The conflict throughout the world today is largely one between democratic and totalitarian regimes. In totalitarian countries, collectivization is imposed through force by a small minority; in democratic countries, on the other hand, collective enterprises are extended in accordance with the will of the people as expressed through votes and other pressures."

I wonder what other pressures the professor has in mind! Up here in New York, they are often employed by such fellows as Frank Costello and Joe Adonis. I wonder what they have in Kansas. Maybe, it is done by mink coats and such in his region.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — The United States has launched a psychological warfare campaign inside China which which could some day lead to a unification of all anti-Communist elements in that country and the overthrow of the Communist government at Peiping.

The American point of view, carefully developed after much planning at the Department of State, has just been broadcast through the "Voice of America" to the Chinese people. Similar broadcasts will continue to be made from now on.

This approach does not mean that the United States is attempting to tell the Chinese how to set up a free government or who shall head it up. That's a matter for the people of China to decide. But the all-important development is that the United States has abandoned any idea of dealing with the Communist regime and in effect, has served notice that, if a government representative of the wishes of the Chinese people arises, it will deserve diplomatic recognition from all countries in the free world. It could be an expanded Nationalist government or a government brought into being through Nationalist efforts. It could be the Nationalist government itself if it regains control of the mainland.

"Deal" Is Out

The American policy, which cuts the gordian knot and destroys any probability of a "deal" with the Communist Chinese, has attracted considerable attention since it was announced last Friday night by Dean Rusk, assistant secretary of state for Far Eastern affairs.

The Department itself, confronted with queries asking what change it has made in Far Eastern policies, has said the pronouncement was not new in the sense that it has been historic American policy. But the words of Dean Rusk—which, incidentally, were not widely published because their significance was not immediately appreciated—make it quite clear that all bets are off so far as the Red Chinese are concerned. He said in part:

"The independence of China is gravely threatened. In the Communist world there is room for only one master—a jealous and implacable master, whose price of friendship is complete submission. How many Chinese, in one community after another, are now being destroyed because they love China more than the Soviet Union? . . .

"The freedoms of the Chinese people are disappearing. Trial by mob, mass-slaughter, banishment as forced labor to Manchuria, Siberia or Sinkiang, the arbitrary seizure of property, the destruction of loyalties within the family, the suppression of free speech—these are the facts behind the parades and celebrations and the empty promises."

Maps Show Dismemberment

Dean Rusk added that the "territorial integrity of China is now an ironic phrase," and he pointed out that the maps of China now being published on the mainland show how China has been dismembered.

How does all this relate to Korea? The objective of the American government is to wake up the people of China to the fact that their sons are being slaughtered in a war directed by Soviet Russia. Mr. Rusk declared:

"Hundreds of thousands of Chinese youth are being sacrificed in a fiery furnace, pitting their waves of human flesh against the fire power of modern weapons— and without heavy equipment, adequate supply or the most elementary medical atention. Apart from Korea, the Chinese are being pressed to aggressive action in other areas—all calculated to divert the atention and energies of China away from the encroachments of Soviet imperialism upon China itself."

This is the kind of doctrine that should have long ago been disseminated, but it comes opportunely now just the same when the Red offensive in Korea is causing the death of tens of thousands of brave Chinese soldiers. The significant paragraph in the Rusk speech, which steers carefully away from any atempt to dictate what elements shall be welded together to fight communism, says:

"We cannot provide a formula to engage the unity of effort among all Chinese who love their country. But one thing we can say—as the Chinese people move to assert freedom and to work out their destiny in accordance with their own historical purposes, they can count upon tremendous support from free peoples in other parts of the world."

This is the kind of pronouncement which, if made also to the people of the satellite countries in Europe, would in time bring a profound change in the "cold war," especially if it breaks down the "will to fight" of Red China's armies—many of whose soldiers are already deserting in response to leaflets dropped on them from day to day promising food, shelter and freedom.

Candor Needed

By MARK SULLIVAN

The Senate committee investigating President Truman's dismissal of Gen. MacArthur gave thought last week to making a formal charge of contempt against the country's highest military officer, Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff Gen. Omar Bradley. This was based on Gen. Bradley's refusal to tell what was said at a conference which President Truman held with him and others. The committee decided, 18 to 8, not to take action.

But assertion of right on the part of the committee to demand testimony of high government officials continued and was expanded. On Saturday Republican Sen. Wiley of Wisconsin proposed that President Truman be summoned by subpoena to testify on his dismissal of Gen. MacArthur. The committee Chairman, Sen. Russell of Georgia, said the proposal was "completely unthinkable."

The exact words of conversations in which two high officials took part, "I said" and "He said," are not a present primary need of either the Senate committee or the country. Constitutional argument about the right of the committee to demand them and additional argument about the propriety of subpoenaing the President are a diversion from the committee's central function. What that central function had to be has evolved from the proceedings of the committee so far. The inquiry began as an investigation into President Truman's dismissal of Gen. MacArthur, the reasons and circumstances of it. But it was apparent that the reel need was inquiry into a thing that is inclusive and much broader, the Administration policies and course that have had a part in the fall of China to Russian communism.

Inquiry Has Progressed

This inquiry has made much progress. Secretary of Defense Marshall has testified fully about the Truman Administration policy that discouraged the then government of China under Chiang Kai-shek, and the encouragement given thereby and otherwise to the movement that became and now is the Communist government of China. There will be further testimony, among others by Secretary of State Acheson, and many besides; the investigation will need to range far.

For the origin of the Administration course and policy about China was broader than specific actions taken and beliefs held by a small number of individuals. The origin was a kind of atmosphere; the resultant of beliefs held by scores of individuals including persons outside official life. Their beliefs about China varied, perhaps the largest common denominator among them was belief that the Nationalist government of Chiang Kai-shek must fall and deserved to.

In the outgivings which attempted to justify discountenancing Chiang Kai-shek a frequent charge was that he and his government were "reactionary." Holding that belief the wish and expectation was that China should have a "liberal" government. That is what the Truman Administration supposed it was encouraging when it demanded that Chiang Kai-shek take into an "integrated government" the group that at the time was frequently called "liberal" or "agrarian reformers." But the government which this group set up was Communist. This the Administration had to accept, but it still hoped it could follow a policy which would prevent the new government from going under dominance of the Communist government of Russia. But presently the new government entered into alliance with the Russian Communists.

May Probe Deeper

All this, with much besides, composes the intricate mesh which the Senate committee needs to untangle. And after they have done this presumably they will go yet deeper. For it was not merely the Administration's policy about China that contributed to disaster, it was also the policies of the Truman Administration and the Roosevelt one which made Russia strong.

Apparently the investigation will go on for months, it is obvious the committee is disposed to. It takes place during a period when the two parties are preparing for the Presidential campaign of next year. But likewise it takes place during a period when there is desperate need for national unity. If members of the Senate committee would conduct the hearings in a manner as free as practicable from acrimony, they would serve the public interest. An immense contribution that Mr. Truman could make would be utter candor and conciliation. When a President and his Administration have made mistakes that are glaringly apparent, a human disposition of some temperaments is to stiffen in defiance, and this trait is especially strong in Mr. Truman.

Baseball's Well-Paid Peons

Organized baseball's contentious "reserve clause" will get a thorough looking-over next month, when a House subcommittee headed by Rep. Celler holds hearings on the monopoly status of the national pastime. Celler says the inquiry will be a "friendly" one.

Baseball's most recent tangle with the law ended in a draw. Suspended from baseball for life because of jumping his contract in 1946 to play in Mexico, Danny Gardella, formerly of the New York Giants, sued baseball's big shots for $300,000 for violation of the federal anti-trust laws.

The district court ruled it had no jurisdiction, but the Court of Appeals of the Second Circuit (New York), in a split decision on February 9, 1949, ordered the district court to rule on Gardella's allegations. These were that: 1) the "reserve clause" turns organized baseball into a monopoly; 2) baseball's revenues from radio and television make it interstate commerce and hence subject to anti-trust laws. Judge Jerome Frank said for the Court:

"We have here a monopoly, which, in its effect on ball-players like the plaintiff, possesses characteristics shockingly repugnant to moral principles that, at least since the War Between the States, have been basic in America. . . . For the "reserve clause," as has been observed, results in something resembling peonage of the baseball player."

But in October 1949 Gardella signed a $5,000 contract with the St. Louis Cardinals and settled his suit out of court for a reported $25,000. In June, 1950, the Cardinals made Gardella a free agent.

Baseball's national agreement, covering professional clubs in the U. S., Canada, Cuba, Puerto Rico, Mexico, renders players ineligible on violation of the so-called "uniform contract." In this, a player signing for one season gives his club an option over him for the next season. The following year's contract will carry the same provision, so the player has really signed for the duration of his baseball life. The club, however, can terminate the contract and release the player unconditionally on 10 days' notice.

The District Court in dismissing Gardella's suit had cited the Supreme Court in 1922 on the case of the Federal (League) Base Ball Club of Baltimore against the National League. Justice Holmes said for the Court:

"The business is giving exhibitions of base ball, which are purely state affairs. It is true that in order to attain for these exhibitions the great popularity that they have achieved, competitions must be arranged between clubs from different cities and states. But the fact that in order to give the exhibitions the leagues must induce free persons to cross state lines and must arrange to pay for their doing so is not enough to change the character of the business."

The "Yale Law Journal" declared in its issue of June, 1937:

"Some courts have called 'organized baseball' a monopoly. The uniform contract has been assailed as against public policy and in restraint of trade, and as too indefinite or too one-sided to be enforced in equity. The National Agreement's provisions on ineligibility and trading are in apparent conflict with the anti-blacklisting statutes of several states, and with the traditional common-law doctrine that contracts for personal services are non-assignable."

But: "The prevailing order makes for closer pennant races, better ball games, greater public interest and greater consumer satisfaction. And more fun for the fans means more money for the magnates."

Money Trouble For Colleges

The row at Rollins College in Florida is unusual in that the youthful president, Paul A. Wagner, refused to accept as valid the decision of the trustees, by a majority of one, to replace him. But the situation behind the row at Rollins is confronting practically all other private institutions of higher learning. The situation—fewer students, lower income, higher costs.

Students will be somewhat fewer next year because of the demands of Selective Service. However, they will not be so few as had been feared some months ago. For one thing, the local draft boards are to wait until some time in August, when the results of the forthcoming intelligence tests will be known, to begin to induct students who had been deferred for the present college year.

The draft age is to be lowered to 18½, not to 18. More veterans are expected to enroll under the GI bill of rights in colleges before the deadline date of July 25, 1951. Many students not being graduated this year are veterans immune from the draft, and deferment will probably be continued for students in the ROTC.

When it comes to college income, however, the outlook is still full of gloom. Colleges and universities are receiving fewer and smaller donations as higher taxes afflict the wealthy. There is very definitely a limit on how much tuition fees can be increased. Endowment fund returns are lower; they provided 23 per cent of total revenues of private colleges in 1940, only 12 per cent in 1948.

As for higher costs in education, they have nearly doubled over a decade. The abler members of college faculties can hardly be retained unless their salaries are raised enough to keep their families above the penury level in these high-cost-of-living days. And no college is better than its faculty.

Near East Hot Spot

The Iranian oil dispute continues to sizzle. The London government would like to have Uncle Sam's help in saving their oil concession in that hot spot, or, failing that, to line up guaranties that Britain and Europe will continue to get the Iranian oil which they need to keep their industries going.

If Britain and Europe are deprived of the oil, it will go to Russia. There are fears Moscow has the situation sewed up now. If Russia gets the oil, the U. S. will be called upon to divert some of its none too ample supplies to Europe. Gasoline rationing in this country could be the result.

London complains that Washington remained silent while the Persians were taking over the field. They point out that the same thing could happen to American oil concessions elsewhere in Asia. It was an ironic twist that the nationalizing British were outraged when they became victims of nationalization elsewhere. But as a development of the menacing program of Russian pressure it cannot be regarded lightly.

It is up to the British to take the lead in solving their Iranian difficulty. It remains to be seen whether they will be more successful in the Near East than the U. S. has been in the Far East.

How To Keep Well

Weakened Muscles

Myasthenia is an unusual disease. It produces weakness in various muscles yet neither the muscles nor nerves are at fault. The trouble centers about a chemical that is formed at the places where the nerves and muscles begin. Appropriate antidotes are available to help the majority of victims.

All sufferers tell a typical story. Without warning they begin to have difficulty keeping the eyelids open, not in the first part of the morning but as the day goes on. With a short rest, strength returns and the individual continues until the cycle repeats itself. It becomes a matter of work, fatigue, rest, and work.

More than one group of muscles are likely to be involved. Those of the face, jaws, and swallowing apparatus are most susceptible. Cross-eye may develop when the muscles that turn the eyes are affected. The problem becomes more complicated if the structures concerned with talking and swallowing become fatigued. The person may be engaged in conversation when without warning he is unable to continue until recuperation of the muscles takes place. A somewhat similar condition exists when swallowing or chewing. Should the muscles of the arms or legs become affected walking is difficult, especially upstairs. The housewife may be unable to beat eggs, brush her hair, or play cards.

There are many remedies such as ephedrine and potassium. But in 1934 neostigmine bromide was discovered and this drug surpassed all others. It can be taken in tablet form and is so effective it is used occasionally as a test in this disease. The physician is inclined to make a diagnosis of myasthenia gravis when a test dose of neostigmine relieves the patient's symptoms.

More recently a new chemical, octamethyl pyrophosphoramide, was introduced. According to a group of University of Chicago physicians, the preparation can be administered alone or in combination with neostigmine. They were able to help some individuals in whom the usual remedies had failed. One woman, for example, had been bothered with double vision for five years, along with drooping of the eyelids as well as distress in chewing, swallowing, and speaking. In addition, she was having trouble with her arms and legs and in the course of her illness has lost 32 pounds.

So far this new compound has been tried on only six patients. Four preferred its action to neostigmine. In half the series, return of strength was better than with the older remedy. The two failures in the group had not responded previously to neostigmine. As yet we do not know whether the latest drug will be added to the list of "has beens" in this disease. We must watch and wait.

PUFFY ANKLES

Mrs. H. writes: Could overweight make the ankles swell?

REPLY

Yes, if the added poundage is caused by accumulated water in the tissues. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on dropsy of the legs and feet.

STARCH HABIT STICKS

Mrs. W. writes: I have been eating laundry starch for years but I crave more and more. I'm now up to three boxes a week. Will this do any harm?

REPLY

The habit cannot be recommended but to my knowledge there is no scientific evidence that it produces harm. Let me know if it stiffens your stomach.

KIDNEY GRAFT

Mrs. L. writes: Do the kidney grafts we read about in the newspapers really work?

REPLY

Some have taken; others have not. To my knowledge there is some question as to how much time must elapse before it will be known whether or not the grafted kidney will begin to work.

MOVABLE KIDNEY

V.G.T. writes: Could floating kidney cause pain under the ribs?

REPLY

No. The trouble with floating kidneys is that they sink when the owner stands. If pain occurs, it usually is in the loin or in front over the kidney. A complicating kinking of a ureter producers back pain.

LID CLOSURE

M. T. writes: My right eyelid has taken to closing and I can't open it for a moment or two. My vision is perfect. What could be wrong?

REPLY

If you mean that the upper and lower lids stick together, there may be an eyelid infection with some crusting. If you refer to a temporary ptosis, the chances are that a nerve lesion is not responsible but examination by a capable eye man would be necessary to determine the cause.

BLIND SPOT

M. R. writes: What is a blind spot in the eye?

REPLY

An area where the optic nerve pierces the retina. The lesions are so tiny they do not disrupt normal vision.

Defense Boss Reneges On Promise To Eric Johnston; Top Mobilizers Clash Over Executive Order; Wilson Hints Commie Smear Threat

WASHINGTON—It's been pretty well concealed except to their close friends, but a smoldering, sometimes bitter feud has been raging between the two top mobilization executives of the nation—Charles E. Wilson and Eric Johnston.

Both men have been in the electrical business——Wilson as head of the Giant General Electric Corp., Johnston as owner of his own appliance factory in Spokane, Wash. Wilson has sometimes had rough sledding with his labor relations; Johnston has an employe Profit-sharing plan which makes his factory a model for the nation.

Wilson did a good job as government production executive during World War II; Johnston for years was a farsighted chairman of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce. Wilson was chairman of Truman's Committee on Civil Liberties and Tolerance; Johnston served as czar of the motion picture industry.

But, despite their vast and varied experience, the two men just don't seem to like each other.

The feud really began last winter shortly after Johnston was asked by Wilson to leave the motion picture industry to take on the headache-inspiring job of economic stabilizer. Johnston consented, provided he was given an executive order by the White House entrusting him with power to regulate prices, wages, credit, and other causes of inflation.

Johnston On Limb

Wilson agreed. And on the strength of his agreement, Johnston went out on a limb at a press conference and stated that the President would soon issue this executive order, in effect taking a big slice out of Wilson's mobilization empire.

Immediately thereafter, Johnston's legal staff drew up the executive order, but nothing happened.

Curious, Johnston found that the order was held up by Wilson himself, the man who had promised it. Wilson's alibi for the roadblock, was that his counsel, Herbert Bergson, and Peyton Fort, deputy attorney general, were opposed.

Johnston was burned up. However, he didn't go over Wilson's head to the President. Instead, he kept his mouth shut and played ball.

Meanwhile, Wilson had surrounded himself with the same type of idolaters as Harry Truman, some of them about as useful. The General Harry Vaughan of the Wilson idolaters is Sidney Weinberg, head of the giant Goldman-Sachs Investment Banking Company, who in Washington has been nicknamed head of the "Department of Devious Planning."

Weinberg is a suspicious gentleman who has been in charge of security. And one of his operators, apparently shadowing roly - poly Mike DiSalle, the ex-mayor of Toledo now price stabilizer, saw him lunching with Eddie Cheyfitz, former motion picture assistant to Eric Johnston.

Ex-Commie

So, out of the clear blue, Wilson called Johnston in. Tapping a sheaf of papers in his hand, Wilson glared at Johnston almost as if he were a witness before the House Un-American Activities Committee.

"Eric," he asked, "what about this friend of yours, Eddie Cheyfitz? Do you know that he was a member of the Communist party?"

"Certainly," replied Johnston, getting his dander up. "I've known Eddie Cheyfitz for years. And I know that 11 years ago, as a relative youngster, he was a member of the Communist party. I also know that ever since then he's been most helpful to the FBI in exposing the Communists.

"I know, for example," continued Johnston, getting warmer, "that he's fought Commies in Hollywood and in the labor unions. He has such an excellent record in this respect that he's addressed the Army War College on the subject of communism. He has also outlined the dangers of communism in speeches before the U.S. Chamber of Commerce and the Pennsylvania Manufacturers Association.

"I also know that in 1947, when Cheyfitz was under attack, Archbishop Karl Alter of Ohio came to his defense. That's what I know about Eddie Cheyfitz."

"Well, Eric," said Wilson, "I just didn't want to see you hurt by your association with Eddie Cheyfitz."

Johnston told Wilson that he did not desert his friends when he knew they were right, and left the room. He had the impression, however, that Wilson was trying to frighten him with an indirect Commie smear.

To this date the executive order promised to Johnston last January has not been signed.

NOTE—Cheyfitz was a member of the labor management committee of Toledo organized by Mike DiSalle, which has done so much to bring harmonious labor - management relations in once strike-ridden Toledo. In recent years, Cheyfitz has been working for Eric Johnston in the motion picture producers office in Washington and was instrumental in introducing Johnston to DiSalle.

Pastry Inflation

Congressman John Taber of New York, who has made a cut in government spending, recently was asked to cut a birthday cake for a young lady on his office staff.

However, as the New York Republican arrived for the ceremony, he found the honored guest in great distress. Somebody had loaded the cake with 45 candles, considerably in excess of her age.

"I'd like to know who put those extra 15 candles on this cake," she protested.

"Offhand, I'd say it's the work o' some Democratic spy," guessed Taber. "This is a clear case of Truman inflation."

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

And Other Pressures

I came across a letter in a newspaper by Seba Eldridge, professor of sociology at the University of Kansas. What these professors say is only important because they influence the minds and characters of our children. The learned professor is interested in democratic collectivization — the sort of thing which they do over in England but which the British object to when it happens in Iran. The professor approves and says:

"With virtually no exceptions, the development of collective enterprise in the United States has been due to the pressure of consumer and public interests. Socialization has been a gradual, piecemeal, peaceful process in this country, not the kind of revolutionary action Karl Marx predicted.

"These processes and factors should be most encouraging to the American people. . . ."

I have been wondering what there is to be encouraged about in all this. Perhaps Professor Eldridge is thrilled over the fact that we are achieving Karl Marx's ends without employing Karl Marx's means, or perhaps the learned Seba Eldridge is cheered by socialism however it may be achieved. At any rate, the letter continues:

". . . . Violent overthrow of our institutions is ruled out. Instead, we are all involved in an orderly process of cooperation, often without realizing it, in making our institutions suit the changing needs of the people."

We may take great comfort that violence is ruled out. In a word, the American government is not to be overthrown by force and violence, but the American economic and social system is to be changed, "often without realizing it." The object of all this is to make changes to suit the needs of the people. But that is to be decided, not by the people themselves, who, to repeat, often do not realize what is being done to them, but by so-called experts, that is, by an elite such as Hitler and Mussolini favored and Plato before them.

How foisting upon our people a vast congregation of bureaucrats, payroll grubbers, do-nothing experts, researchers and petty officials who consume the earnings of the people by constantly forcing tax increases, improves them, is a little difficult to understand, but maybe a sociologist can even discover a justification for a government cultivated inflation and the checks to millions of citizens for doing nothing. The professor says:

' ' ' The instrumentalities of effecting peaceful change are a great variety of promotional agencies together with the Democratic and Republican parties."

It would be interesting if the professor wrote a learned thesis on that "variety of promotional agencies" that is bringing socialism to America. It would be interesting to compare his data with the researchers of the Hoover Commission, which sought to effect economies and failed because Mr. Truman found them politically inexpedient.

Eldridge includes the Democratic and Republican parties among the agencies for socialization. Every Republican will admit that the Democrats are deserving of the insult, but in the present state of public opinion and on the approach to the 1952 campaign, few Democrats will be grateful to Professor Seba Eldridge for calling them Socialists. He, of course, uses a fancier term, collectivists, but that is only because he is a professor and has to make things complicated. In fact, the professors have raked the dictionary for words which confuse.

I should also like to give you Professor Eldridge's definitions of democracy and totalitarianism; or to put it more simply as affecting the difference between the United States and Soviet Russia. After you have read that, you might wonder what happened to that fine boy or girl you sent to college:

". . . The conflict throughout the world today is largely one between democratic and totalitarian regimes. In totalitarian countries, collectivization is imposed through force by a small minority; in democratic countries, on the other hand, collective enterprises are extended in accordance with the will of the people as expressed through votes and other pressures."

I wonder what other pressures the professor has in mind! Up here in New York, they are often employed by such fellows as Frank Costello and Joe Adonis. I wonder what they have in Kansas. Maybe, it is done by mink coats and such in his region.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — The United States has launched a psychological warfare campaign inside China which which could some day lead to a unification of all anti-Communist elements in that country and the overthrow of the Communist government at Peiping.

The American point of view, carefully developed after much planning at the Department of State, has just been broadcast through the "Voice of America" to the Chinese people. Similar broadcasts will continue to be made from now on.

This approach does not mean that the United States is attempting to tell the Chinese how to set up a free government or who shall head it up. That's a matter for the people of China to decide. But the all-important development is that the United States has abandoned any idea of dealing with the Communist regime and ,in effect, has served notice that, if a government representative of the wishes of the Chinese people arises, it will deserve diplomatic recognition from all countries in the free world. It could be an expanded Nationalist government or a government brought into being through Nationalist efforts. It could be the Nationalist government itself if it regains control of the mainland.

"Deal" Is Out

The American policy, which cuts the gordian knot and destroys any probability of a "deal" with the Communist Chinese, has attracted considerable attention since it was announced last Friday night by Dean Rusk, assistant secretary of state for Far Eastern affairs.

The Department itself, confronted with queries asking what change it has made in Far Eastern policies, has said the pronouncement was not new in the sense that it has been historic American policy. But the words of Dean Rusk—which, incidentally, were not widely published because their significance was not immediately appreciated—make it quite clear that all bets are off so far as the Red Chinese are concerned. He said in part:

"The independence of China is gravely threatened. In the Communist world there is room for only one master—a jealous and implacable master, whose price of friendship is complete submission. How many Chinese, in one community after another, are now being destroyed because they love China more than the Soviet Union? . . .

"The freedoms of the Chinese people are disappearing. Trial by mob, mass-slaughter, banishment as forced labor to Manchuria, Siberia or Sinkiang, the arbitrary seizure of property, the destruction of loyalties within the family, the suppression of free speech—these are the facts behind the parades and celebrations and the empty promises."

Maps Show Dismemberment

Dean Rusk added that the "territorial integrity of China is now an ironic phrase," and he pointed out that the maps of China now being published on the mainland show how China has been dismembered.

How does all this relate to Korea? The objective of the American government is to wake up the people of China to the fact that their sons are being slaughtered in a war directed by Soviet Russia. Mr. Rusk declared:

"Hundreds of thousands of Chinese youth are being sacrificed in a fiery furnace, pitting their waves of human flesh against the fire power of modern weapons— and without heavy equipment, adequate supply or the most elementary medical atention. Apart from Korea, the Chinese are being pressed to aggressive action in other areas—all calculated to divert the atention and energies of China away from the encroachments of Soviet imperialism upon China itself."

This is the kind of doctrine that should have long ago been disseminated, but it comes opportunely now just the same when the Red offensive in Korea is causing the death of tens of thousands of brave Chinese soldiers. The significant paragraph in the Rusk speech, which steers carefully away from any atempt to dictate what elements shall be welded together to fight communism, says:

"We cannot provide a formula to engage the unity of effort among all Chinese who love their country. But one thing we can say—as the Chinese people move to assert freedom and to work out their destiny in accordance with their own historical purposes, they can count upon tremendous support from free peoples in other parts of the world."

This is the kind of pronouncement which, if made also to the people of the satellite countries in Europe, would in time bring a profound change in the "cold war," especially if it breaks down the "will to fight" of Red China's armies—many of whose soldiers are already deserting in response to leaflets dropped on them from day to day promising food, shelter and freedom.

Candor Needed

By MARK SULLIVAN

The Senate committee investigating President Truman's dismissal of Gen. MacArthur gave thought last week to making a formal charge of contempt against the country's highest military officer, Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff Gen. Omar Bradley. This was based on Gen. Bradley's refusal to tell what was said at a conference which President Truman held with him and others. The committee decided, 18 to 8, not to take action.

But assertion of right on the part of the committee to demand testimony of high government officials continued and was expanded. On Saturday Republican Sen. Wiley of Wisconsin proposed that President Truman be summoned by subpoena to testify on his dismissal of Gen. MacArthur. The committee Chairman, Sen. Russell of Georgia, said the proposal was "completely unthinkable."

The exact words of conversations in which two high officials took part, "I said" and "He said," are not a present primary need of either the Senate committee or the country. Constitutional argument about the right of the committee to demand them and additional argument about the propriety of subpoenaing the President are a diversion from the committee's central function. What that central function had to be has evolved from the proceedings of the committee so far. The inquiry began as an investigation into President Truman's dismissal of Gen. MacArthur, the reasons and circumstances of it. But it was apparent that the reel need was inquiry into a thing that is inclusive and much broader, the Administration policies and course that have had a part in the fall of China to Russian communism.

Inquiry Has Progressed

This inquiry has made much progress. Secretary of Defense Marshall has testified fully about the Truman Administration policy that discouraged the then government of China under Chiang Kai-shek, and the encouragement given thereby and otherwise to the movement that became and now is the Communist government of China. There will be further testimony, among others by Secretary of State Acheson, and many besides; the investigation will need to range far.

For the origin of the Administration course and policy about China was broader than specific actions taken and beliefs held by a small number of individuals. The origin was a kind of atmosphere; the resultant of beliefs held by scores of individuals including persons outside official life. Their beliefs about China varied, perhaps the largest common denominator among them was belief that the Nationalist government of Chiang Kai-shek must fall and deserved to.

In the outgivings which attempted to justify discountenancing Chiang Kai-shek a frequent charge was that he and his government were "reactionary." Holding that belief the wish and expectation was that China should have a "liberal" government. That is what the Truman Administration supposed it was encouraging when it demanded that Chiang Kai-shek take into an "integrated government" the group that at the time was frequently called "liberal" or "agrarian reformers." But the government which this group set up was Communist. This the Administration had to accept, but it still hoped it could follow a policy which would prevent the new government from going under dominance of the Communist government of Russia. But presently the new government entered into alliance with the Russian Communists.

May Probe Deeper

All this, with much besides, composes the intricate mesh which the Senate committee needs to untangle. And after they have done this presumably they will go yet deeper. For it was not merely the Administration's policy about China that contributed to disaster, it was also the policies of the Truman Administration and the Roosevelt one which had made Russia strong.

Apparently the investigation will go on for months, it is obvious the committee is disposed to. It takes place during a period when the two parties are preparing for the Presidential campaign of next year. But likewise it takes place during a period when there is desperate need for national unity. If members of the Senate committee would conduct the hearings in a manner as free as practicable from acrimony, they would serve the public interest. An immense contribution that Mr. Truman could make would be utter candor and conciliation. When a President and his Administration have made mistakes that are glaringly apparent, a human disposition of some temperaments is to stiffen in defiance, and this trait is especially strong in Mr. Truman.

City Admission Tax Explained In Letter

Organizations are to be informed that the new city admission tax must be collected from patrons of recreation events.

The five-cent fee drew protests from bingo players and several organizations at Monday night's council session.

City Clerk Wallace G. Ullery drew up the letter yesterday. It reads:

"At the regular session of the Mayor and City Council on Monday, May 21, council directed me to notify all organizations conducting bingo games that it is mandatory that all persons attending bingo games must pay the admissions tax as set forth in Ordinance Nos. 1813, 1874 and 1902 respectively; in other words, the money collected from said admission taxes is the property of the City of Cumberland, and must not be used by the organizations and cannot be absorbed by the organizations."

The tax is earmarked for the recreation program.

Pageantette Planned At North End Playground

A pageantette will be presented by the North End Playground Association today at 8 p. m. at the playground.

A May procession will be climaxed by the coronation. The second portion of the program will be an exhibition of folk dancing learned from Cumberland Recreation Department instruction.

Mrs. Joseph A. Mackert, in charge of the pageantette, is being assisted by Mrs. Doris Shumaker, in charge of the wardrobe; Joseph Richards, stage manager, and Mrs. Ralph Knieriem, musical adviser.

Mrs. Honora Burkey will be in charge of the chuck wagon assisted by members of the North End Homemakers Club.

There will be no admission, Mrs. Mackert reported.

Gerhart Speaks On Army Life

Ways in which the government protects the rights of conscience in time of war were explained by Elder O. B. Gerhart during the Armed Forces Day service at the Cumberland Seventh Day Adventist Church.

"The non-combatancy principles of the Seventh Day Adventists, based on the teachings and example of Jesus Christ, are given recognition by our government," Elder Gerhart declared, adding "our men, classified 1-A, have the privilege of being channeled into the medical department of the Army where they may save life."

Pastor Gerhart stressed not only loyalty to government, but urged parents and relatives to give courage and inspiration to servicemen already in the armed services and those who will be called.

It was announced that two medical cadet training camps will be conducted this summer to provide preparation training to hundreds of young men. One will be at Grand Ledge, Mich. Dr. G. E. Hartle, Moorefield, W. Va. is sponsoring Hetzer Dove, who will attend the Michigan camp.

The other camp will be in California. Carlysle B. Haynes, Seventh Day Adventist War Commission secretary, Washington, D. C., will give instruction in character guidance and indoctrination at both camps.

Arson Blamed In Strip Mine Fire

Arsonists visited a strip mine near Barton yesterday to burn a building and damage a Diesel bulldozer, the sheriff's office reported yesterday.

The mine, sub-leased by Robert Russell, Lonaconing, is located on Hampshire Hill, about one mile east of Barton.

The fire was discovered by Elmer Getson, a shovel operator. The building, used to house tools and repair equipment, was burned to the ground. Police said the fire started some time between Sunday midnight and yesterday at 7 p. m. when Getson made the discovery.

Getson reported to officers that rags had been placed in the fuel oil tank and set afire. A small booster gasoline tank had also been broken and set afire. Damage to the building was estimated at $1,000 and $1,500 to the bulldozer.

Deputy Sheriffs William Chappell and George Furstenberg went to the scene along with State Trooper Milton G. Hart.

Chappell said the strip mine is non-union. It had not operated for the past month and a half.

County Board 'Dunned' In Parking Violations

A letter was received yesterday by the Allegany County Board of Commissioners from the Cumberland Police Department concerning a number of parking tickets which had been placed on county-owned vehicles and not paid for.

The letter was signed by the records clerk at Police Headquarters and stated the parking tickets had been placed on the cars during recent months. The cars tagged are driven by county health nurses and county sanitary inspector.

Needless to say, the letter was not too well received by the board. There were comments by persons in the commissioners' office that the city is not billed for about $1,000 worth of tax transcripts which are prepared by the county board's office, and the "dunning" of the board for the parking tickets shows a lack of consideration on the part of City Police.

It was also pointed out that operators of county cars have difficulty finding space to park near City Hall Plaza.

West Side School To Hold Spring Program

The annual spring program of West Side School will be held today and tomorrow at 7:30 p. m. in the school auditorium.

The production is being directed by Mrs. Margaret Carroll, music instructor, and members of the faculty.

The program each night will be different. Included are selections by a rhythm band and a hillbilly band, folk dancing and games supported by the glee club. Three hundred seventy-five pupils will participate.

Arson Blamed In Strip Mine Fire

Arsonists visited a strip mine near Barton yesterday to burn a building and damage a Diesel bulldozer, the sheriff's office reported yesterday.

The mine, sub-leased by Robert Russell, Lonaconing, is located on Hampshire Hill, about one mile east of Barton.

The fire was discovered by Elmer Getson, a shovel operator. The building, used to house tools and repair equipment, was burned to the ground. Police said the fire started some time between Sunday midnight and yesterday at 7 p. m. when Getson made the discovery.

Getson reported to officers that rags had been placed in the fuel oil tank and set afire. A small booster gasoline tank had also been broken and set afire. Damage to the building was estimated at $1,000 and $1,500 to the bulldozer.

Deputy Sheriffs William Chappell and George Furstenberg went to the scene along with State Trooper Milton G. Hart.

Chappell said the strip mine is non-union. It had not operated for the past month and a half.

County Board 'Dunned' In Parking Violations

A letter was received yesterday by the Allegany County Board of Commissioners from the Cumberland Police Department concerning a number of parking tickets which had been placed on county-owned vehicles and not paid for.

The letter was signed by the records clerk at Police Headquarters and stated the parking tickets had been placed on the cars during recent months. The cars tagged are driven by county health nurses and county sanitary inspector.

Needless to say, the letter was not too well received by the board. There were comments by persons in the commissioners' office that the city is not billed for about $1,000 worth of tax transcripts which are prepared by the county board's office, and the "dunning" of the board for the parking tickets shows a lack of consideration on the part of City Police.

It was also pointed out that operators of county cars have difficulty finding space to park near City Hall Plaza.

West Side School To Hold Spring Program

The annual spring program of West Side School will be held today and tomorrow at 7:30 p. m. in the school auditorium.

The production is being directed by Mrs. Margaret Carroll, music instructor, and members of the faculty.

The program each night will be different. Included are selections by a rhythm band and a hillbilly band, folk dancing and games supported by the glee club. Three hundred seventy-five pupils will participate.

To be a vision of delight, your wedding dress should dramatize your personality and harmonize with your kind of ceremony.

SECRETS OF CHARM

by JOHN ROBERT POWERS

From the first day that she hears the tale of Prince Charming, there is a dream of white satin discernable in every girl's eye. It's a dream that can easily be surpassed by reality. Any girl can be a "vision of delight" in her wedding dress.

The secret lies in dramatizing yourself in the loveliest and most fitting fashion. Your dress must reflect your personality. Are you a statuesque lovely or a lass with a delicate air? Do you appear at your best arrayed in splendor or does simplicity set off your beauty? These are most important considerations, but your dress must also be keyed to the degree of formality you chose for your wedding.

Take Your Choice

If the wedding is formal, you will find a bounty of traditional satin and lace gowns designed with modest necklines, long, pointed sleeves and billowing trains. If tradition holds no appeal for you, very correct formal dresses may be your choice in a contemporary fabric or design. At this season there are beautiful sheers available — mousseline, starched chiffon or lace, especially lovely in combination with any frosty fabric, made with brief sleeves, a decollete neckline and trailing skirt.

For a less formal wedding, let your imagination take the reins. Picture yourself in a ballerina dress of embroidered net over a pale mauve, taffeta slip, and let your mind dwell on maids in lilac organdy ballerinas . . . on all your heads, little caps to match your dresses; in all your hands, cascades of deep purple iris.

Planning a quiet ceremony? You have just as great an opportunity to make your suit or dress memorable. Consider the drama of a tulle "duster" worn over a champagne lace sheath, and accessorized with a color-matched tulle bonnet, satin slippers and tiny bronze orchids.

More and more brides are planning informal weddings to fit the schedules of a groom who wears a stripe as well as a heart on his sleeve. My hat's off to this girl of today who plans her wedding with her eye on time and expense. Formal or informal, a wedding dress may be just as lovely when designed with future occasions in mind. Enchantment is promised by a delicious confection with a bolero, capelet, stole or redingote to cover a glamorous dancing dress. Radiant bride — and another time, radiant lady-of-the-evening on his proud arm!

Washington Whirl

By AUSTINE

PARIS, FRANCE.—Paris is not a city—it is a world! That was first said when Washington was a wilderness well over 300 years ago, and it is just as true this spring . . . It's a wonderland world for me! . . . Not so much as the home of Dior, Picasso or Eisenhower, but rather as the place to meet Marie Antoinette, or Zola and Napoleon . . . More about meeting them later . . . For the present—What does it look like? . . . And how did I land here?

AUSTINE

In many ways our Washington, a copy of this capital, looks like her 2,000-year-old sister . . . Substitute our familiar muddy Potomac for the Seine . . . In spring, instead of Cherry blossoms, they admire the thousands of chestnut trees, massed with flowers like white candles . . . Instead of Rock Creek Park, it's the Bois de Boulogne where lovers crane at the brown steel Eiffel Tower . . . Instead of duPont Circle, it's the Place Vendome.

Another thing . . . You can drive past a building marked "American Embassy" . . . Then you realize—really feel—you've come a long, long ways from home!

Adventure and Lafayette here I come!

When you pack, of course, you do get a twinge of fear—imagine going to a place where you can't buy nylons, and you might catch smallpox, and people don't even speak English . . . Ghastly.

But the old pioneer blood boils up!

You make a little mental list of the stuff you will need . . . Bare necessities only.

"We'll have to cut down on weight," says husband or father or whoever you're traveling with at the moment. "Sixty-six pounds of baggage per person. Excess weight costs like diamonds. About a dollar and a half a pound!"

"Oh, I'll take only barest necessities," you promise.

I began to murmur to myself, "Let's see—only the barest necessities. Well, I'll need hats, purses, gloves, stockings, shoes, bedroom slippers, nightgowns, bathrobe, underwear, a sewing kit, handkerchiefs, a little clock, hair lacquer, hair brush and comb, eyebrow pencil, foundation cream, rouge, lipsticks, tooothbrush, toothpaste, vitamin pills, cleaning fluid, cotton, kleenex, aspirin, soap, suits, afternoon dresses, merthiolate, blouses, nail polish, bobbypins, hair nets, shower cap, perfume, nose drops,—"

"Goodness," says husband, "you're not opening a general store—just taking a trip. Where you think you're going—the Cape of Good Hope?"

• — • — •

Worldly-wise friends told conflicting stories every step of the way! . . . Some said, "By all means, lots of cocktail dresses. You'll be at cocktail parties every night."

But some body else would advise, "Don't take anything! Suits and ball dresses only. Don't waste time at cocktail parties."

Frankly, I compromised, and since I'm not planning to spend money and time buying clothes over here, it has worked out to be an excellent wardrobe:

Two suits . . . One dark wool and a grey flannel on my back (also useful if anybody invites us for Sunday luncheon in the country) because French women dress by day as plain as mice . . . Three cocktail dress costumes (two of them rather dinnerish) . . . Two evening dresses, one of them all-out ball . . . A warm travel coat, a little evening wrap of velvet . . . C'est tout . . . Which is French, and I can count up to 20 in French, and that's how many pounds I was overweight, in spite of sending my underwear and shoes ahead by Air Express!

• — • — •

Dean Acheson himself signed my passport . . . Down in the corner . . . But then his name appears on everybody's I found.

That handsome doctor gave me a slight case of typhoid and smallpox . . . Finally, I was ready!

• — • — •

Riding out to Long Island's Idlewild Airport didn't seem like starting for Paris . . . The Paradise to enrapture me! . . . The Paris of Rue de la Paix . . . Arc de Triomphe . . . The Louvre . . . Notre Dame . . . Haunted by Voltaire, Robespierre, Talleyrand, Bourbans, Bonapartes, and old Ben Franklin . . . On the way to the airport I kept thinking this felt the same as going to Toledo.

And when I boarded the TWA's spanking brand new DC-6 (it had only made one Trans-Atlantic flight before this) I still felt we must be going to Toledo.

A big roar . . . A short run . . . And boom up . . . The Constellation rose agile and light as a butterfly.

PARIS, FRANCE.—Paris is not a city—it is a world! That was first said when Washington was a wilderness well over 300 years ago, and it is just as true this spring . . . It's a wonderland world for me! . . . Not so much as the home of Dior, Picasso or Eisenhower, but rather as the place to meet Marie Antoinette, or Zola and Napoleon . . . More about meeting them later . . . For the present—What does it look like? . . . And how did I land here?

AUSTINE

In many ways our Washington, a copy of this capital, looks like her 2,000-year-old sister . . . Substitute our familiar muddy Potomac for the Seine . . . In spring, instead of Cherry blossoms, they admire the thousands of chestnut trees, massed with flowers like white candles . . . Instead of Rock Creek Park, it's the Bois de Boulogne where lovers crane at the brown steel Eiffel Tower . . . Instead of du-Pont Circle, it's the Place Vendome.

Another thing . . . You can drive past a building marked "American Embassy" . . . Then you realize—really feel—you've come a long, long ways from home!

Adventure and Lafayette here I come!

When you pack, of course, you do get a twinge of fear—imagine going to a place where you can't buy nylons, and you might catch smallpox, and people don't even speak English . . . Ghastly.

But the old pioneer blood boils up!

You make a little mental list of the stuff you will need . . . Bare necessities only.

"We'll have to cut down on weight," says husband or father or whoever you're traveling with at the moment. "Sixty-six pounds of baggage per person. Excess weight costs like diamonds. About a dollar and a half a pound!"

"Oh, I'll take only barest necessities," you promise.

I began to murmur to myself, "Let's see—only the barest necessities. Well, I'll need hats, purses, gloves, stockings, shoes, bedroom slippers, nightgowns, bathrobe, underwear, a sewing kit, handkerchiefs, a little clock, hair lacquer, hair brush and comb, eyebrow pencil, foundation cream, rouge, lipsticks, tooothbrush, toothpaste, vitamin pills, cleaning fluid, cotton, kleenex, aspirin, soap, suits, afternoon dresses, merthiolate, blouses, nail polish, bobbypins, hair nets, shower cap, perfume, nose drops,—"

"Goodness," says husband, "you're not opening a general store—just taking a trip. Where you think you're going—the Cape of Good Hope?"

• — • — •

Worldly-wise friends told conflicting stories every step of the way! . . . Some said, "By all means, lots of cocktail dresses. You'll be at cocktail parties every night."

But some body else would advise, "Don't take anything! Suits and ball dresses only. Don't waste time at cocktail parties."

Frankly, I compromised, and since I'm not planning to spend money and time buying clothes over here, it has worked out to be an excellent wardrobe:

Two suits . . . One dark wool and a grey flannel on my back (also useful if anybody invites us for Sunday luncheon in the country) because French women dress by day as plain as mice . . . Three cocktail dress costumes (two of them rather dinnerish) . . . Two evening dresses, one of them all-out ball . . . A warm travel coat, a little evening wrap of velvet . . . C'est tout . . . Which is French, and I can count up to 20 in French, and that's how many pounds I was overweight, in spite of sending my underwear and shoes ahead by Air Express!

• — • — •

Dean Acheson himself signed my passport . . . Down in the corner . . . But then his name appears on everybody's I found.

That handsome doctor gave me a slight case of typhoid and smallpox . . . Finally, I was ready!

• — • — •

Riding out to Long Island's Idlewild Airport didn't seem like starting for Paris . . . The Paradise to enrapture me! . . . The Paris of Rue de la Paix . . . Arc de Triomphe . . . The Louvre . . . Notre Dame . . . Haunted by Voltaire, Robespierre, Talleyrand, Bourbans, Bonapartes, and old Ben Franklin . . . On the way to the airport I kept thinking this felt the same as going to Toledo.

And when I boarded the TWA's spanking brand new DC-6 (it had only made one Trans-Atlantic flight before this) I still felt we must be going to Toledo.

A big roar . . . A short run . . . And boom up . . . The Constellation rose agile and light as a butterfly.

To be a vision of delight, your wedding dress should dramatize your personality and harmonize with your kind of ceremony.

SECRETS OF CHARM

by JOHN ROBERT POWERS

From the first day that she hears the tale of Prince Charming, there is a dream of white satin discernable in every girl's eye. It's a dream that can easily be surpassed by reality. Any girl can be a "vision of delight" in her wedding dress.

The secret lies in dramatizing yourself in the loveliest and most fitting fashion. Your dress must reflect your personality. Are you a statuesque lovely or a lass with a delicate air? Do you appear at your best arrayed in splendor or does simplicity set off your beauty? These are most important considerations, but your dress must also be keyed to the degree of formality you chose for your wedding.

Take Your Choice

If the wedding is formal, you will find a bounty of traditional satin and lace gowns designed with modest necklines, long, pointed sleeves and billowing trains. If tradition holds no appeal for you, very correct formal dresses may be your choice in a contemporary fabric or design. At this season there are beautiful sheers available — mousseline, starched chiffon or lace, especially lovely in combination with any frosty fabric, made with brief sleeves, a decollete neckline and trailing skirt.

For a less formal wedding, let your imagination take the reins. Picture yourself in a ballerina dress of embroidered net over a pale mauve, taffeta slip, and let your mind dwell on maids in lilac organdy ballerinas . . . on all your heads, little caps to match your dresses; in all your hands, cascades of deep purple iris.

Planning a quiet ceremony? You have just as great an opportunity to make your suit or dress memorable. Consider the drama of a tulle "duster" worn over a champagne lace sheath, and accessorized with a color-matched tulle bonnet, satin slippers and tiny bronze orchids.

More and more brides are planning informal weddings to fit the schedules of a groom who wears a stripe as well as a heart on his sleeve. My hat's off to this girl of today who plans her wedding with her eye on time and expense. Formal or informal, a wedding dress may be just as lovely when designed with future occasions in mind. Enchantment is promised by a delicious confection with a bolero, capelet, stole or redingote to cover a glamorous dancing dress. Radiant bride — and another time, radiant lady-of-the-evening on his proud arm!

U. S. Guarantee To Ease Plight Of Red Refugees

By RICHARD K. O'MALLEY

FRANKFURT, Germany—(AP)—The people who flee Russia and her satellites need not fear any longer.

They will be given jobs in the west and they will not be returned home, no matter who asks for them.

U. S. High Commissioner John J. McCloy made this clear in a statement which for the first time outlined U. S. policy on political refugees in the U. S. zone of Germany.

McCloy said such refugees will be given jobs with wages equivalent to what they earned at home. Every effort will be made to help them emigrate to countries of their own choice.

In addition, he said, new experienced personnel has been added to deal with these refugees.

This is a big difference from the past. Until McCloy's statement, policy was not always clear.

Too often political refugees were given glad hand treatment when they arrived, milked dry of information, then left to shift for themselves.

Many who fled from behind the iron curtain found life in the west bewildering and hard. Not only did they suffer from a language barrier but the method of living was too great a departure from the regimentation of the east.

Of all the political refugees from the east, the Russians need the most assistance. American officials say the average Russian needs at least 12 months to accustom himself to life on the outside.

One former Russian officer was first welcomed gladly, then confined in a stockade, still later released, and then picked up a second time before U. S. authorities decided he could stay.

When they finally let him go he wandered for weeks through the U. S. zone seeking work. He finally found it, but he did it on his own.

This officer said bitter resentment has risen in the past because refugees who thought they would be helped were ignored.

"I know one or two," the former major said, "who say that if the Russians come they would probably be better off joining up with them than helping the west. They say they have been shrugged off by the very people they expected to help them."

The new policy should repair some of the damage.

When the news filters back behind the iron curtain, defections may increase, despite new and tougher security regulations by the Russians, Czechs and other Communists to prevent flights to the west.

Up to the end of 1950, Military Air Transport Service and allied services had flown without a fatality.

The Old Second Guesser

By JOHN N. WHEELER

The Farm Girl Who Made Good

One day last week, a tall, stylish, well-tailored, good-looking, blonde lady had lunch with me.

"Will you have a drink?" I asked as a polite host.

"No, I don't indulge at noon," she said. As I don't either, that matter was settled.

"What are you doing in New York?" I inquired.

"Going to shows and enjoying myself in the evening, and spending the days mostly in Wall Street extending our credit. We had $10,000,000, and I have now arranged for $20,000,000."

"Those sound like pretty fancy figures," I suggested. She agreed and explained modestly her business had expanded so rapidly, because of government orders and other demands, it was necessary to construct new buildings and get additional equipment.

My companion was Olive Ann Beech, head of the big Beechcraft Company in Wichita, Kas., and, as far as I know, the only woman to be the top executive of one of the large airplane corporations. Because of her husband's long illness, she had been for all practical purposes running the show for some time before he died. To prove she is always on the job, before we had finished lunch, she had tried to sell me a twin-motored ship. When I side-stepped, saying the price was pretty high, she countered with a remark they were palnning to build a smaller and cheaper vehicle, with two engines to cost about $50,000.

She was born on a farm in Waverly, Kas., and, although she told me the year, I am not cad enough to divulge it, because she looks about 35 or less—fresh, blonde, and pink as she should coming from the corn belt. After attending the American Business College in Wichita, she went to work for Travel Air, founded by Walter Beech, an old-time flier and pioneer in the industry. She became its bookkeeper and secretary, but doubled as a switchboard operator, receptionist, and general handy women around the shop and office. In 1930, she married the boss.

"Do you think that is the secret of your success?" I asked. "Should a girl get a job, and then polish up the handle of the big front door and try to catch the head man?"

"No, I don't agree that has anything to do with it," she replied. "I believe a girl can be successful in any business if she makes up her mind to it and is willing to work."

I looked across the table at this calm, assured, beautiful lady. And I may say she makes good airplanes, too. She once sent one to Kansas City to pick me up and fly me to Wichita so I could see the factory. The ship was fast, comfortable, and steady.

"Well, I suppose some day you will be getting married again," I suggested without even clearing my throat first.

She blushed a little and assured me there were no immediate prospects, and jokingly added,

"Do you know any good eligible bachelors?"

"No," I said. "All the worth-while ones get knocked off by first-class wing shots early. Now I should think you would have to be careful some guy doesn't want to marry you for your money."

"That's not very complimentary," she observed. "Do you figure this is my only attraction?" A truly feminine comeback and a very good retort. "I'll tell you what," she added, "before I decide, I'll ask you for advice."

I thought I detected a note of sarcasm in her reply, or perhaps she thinks I also write under the name of Dorothy Dix.

U. S. Guarantee To Ease Plight Of Red Refugees

By RICHARD K. O'MALLEY

FRANKFURT, Germany — (AP) — The people who flee Russia and her satellites need not fear any longer.

They will be given jobs in the west and they will not be returned home, no matter who asks for them.

U. S. High Commissioner John J. McCloy made this clear in a statement which for the first time outlined U. S. policy on political refugees in the U. S. zone of Germany.

McCloy said such refugees will be given jobs with wages equivalent to what they earned at home. Every effort will be made to help them emigrate to countries of their own choice.

In addition, he said, new experienced personnel has been added to deal with these refugees.

This is a big difference from the past. Until McCloy's statement, policy was not always clear.

Too often political refugees were given glad hand treatment when they arrived, milked dry of information, then left to shift for themselves.

Many who fled from behind the iron curtain found life in the west bewildering and hard. Not only did they suffer from a language barrier but the method of living was too great a departure from the regimentation of the east.

Of all the political refugees from the east, the Russians need the most assistance. American officials say the average Russian needs at least 12 months to accustom himself to life on the outside.

One former Russian officer was first welcomed gladly, then confined in a stockade, still later released, and then picked up a second time before U. S. authorities decided he could stay.

When they finally let him go he wandered for weeks through the U. S. zone seeking work. He finally found it, but he did it on his own.

This officer said bitter resentment has risen in the past because refugees who thought they would be helped were ignored.

"I know one or two," the former major said, "who say that if the Russians come they would probably be better off joining up with them than helping the west. They say they have been shrugged off by the very people they expected to help them."

The new policy should repair some of the damage.

When the news filters back behind the iron curtain, defections may increase, despite new and tougher security regulations by the Russians, Czechs and other Communists to prevent flights to the west.

Up to the end of 1950, Military Air Transport Service and allied services had flown without a fatality.

The Old Second Guesser

By JOHN N. WHEELER

The Farm Girl Who Made Good

One day last week, a tall, stylish, well-tailored, good-looking, blonde lady had lunch with me.

"Will you have a drink?" I asked as a polite host.

"No, I don't indulge at noon," she said. As I don't either, that matter was settled.

"What are you doing in New York?" I inquired.

"Going to shows and enjoying myself in the evening, and spending the days mostly in Wall Street extending our credit. We had $10,000,000, and I have now arranged for $20,000,000."

"Those sound like pretty fancy figures," I suggested. She agreed and explained modestly her business had expanded so rapidly, because of government orders and other demands, it was necessary to construct new buildings and get additional equipment.

My companion was Olive Ann Beech, head of the big Beechcraft Company in Wichita, Kas., and, as far as I know, the only woman to be the top executive of one of the large airplane corporations. Because of her husband's long illness, she had been for all practical purposes running the show for some time before he died. To prove she is always on the job, before we had finished lunch, she had tried to sell me a twin-motored ship. When I side-stepped, saying the price was pretty high, she countered with a remark they were palnning to build a smaller and cheaper vehicle, with two engines to cost about $50,000.

She was born on a farm in Waverly, Kas., and, although she told me the year, I am not cad enough to divulge it, because she looks about 35 or less—fresh, blonde, and pink as she should coming from the corn belt. After attending the American Business College in Wichita, she went to work for Travel Air, founded by Walter Beech, an old-time flier and pioneer in the industry. She became its bookkeeper and secretary, but doubled as a switchboard operator, receptionist, and general handy women around the shop and office. In 1930, she married the boss.

"Do you think that is the secret of your success?" I asked. "Should a girl get a job, and then polish up the handle of the big front door and try to catch the head man?"

"No, I don't agree that has anything to do with it," she replied. "I believe a girl can be successful in any business if she makes up her mind to it and is willing to work."

I looked across the table at this calm, assured, beautiful lady. And I may say she makes good airplanes, too. She once sent one to Kansas City to pick me up and fly me to Wichita so I could see the factory. The ship was fast, comfortable, and steady.

"Well, I suppose some day you will be getting married again," I suggested without even clearing my throat first.

She blushed a little and assured me there were no immediate prospects, and jokingly added,

"Do you know any good eligible bachelors?"

"No," I said. "All the worth-while ones get knocked off by first-class wing shots early. Now I should think you would have to be careful some guy doesn't want to marry you for your money."

"That's not very complimentary," she observed. "Do you figure this is my only attraction?" A truly feminine comeback and a very good retort. "I'll tell you what," she added, "before I decide, I'll ask you for advice."

I thought I detected a note of sarcasm in her reply, or perhaps she thinks I also write under the name of Dorothy Dix.

Speedy Bombers Encounter New Hazards To Life

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE

DENVER—(AP)—New hazards to life at the speed of sound at 40,000 feet altitude were reported to the Aero Medical Association today.

The hazards are met in our new jet bombers. They were told by one of the bomber builders, Engineering Vice-President Wellwood Beall, Boeing Aircraft Company, Seattle. His report was read in his absence.

He told what few persons have known, that jet bombers have much smaller crews. Where the B-29 had 11 men, he said the B-47 has three.

When the cover comes off the hatch through which men have to escape, the wind roars into the plane, with rapid-hammer blows, almost as loud as explosions. The blasts may prevent a man who is stooping from straightening up.

Sometimes men cannot move arms and legs against the blasts enough to place them in position on chairs on which crewmen are to be dropped or shot out of a crippled plane.

The gusts vibrate the men so strongly that they become dizzy, have difficulty in seeing and even inability to continue rational thinking. They may get seasick. Afterwards these troubles may last in slight degree for two or three days.

The friction of the gusts on clothing is so intense that the men say they sometimes feel the heat through the clothes.

Alterations in design are reducing these escape hazards. But Beall reported there is nothing yet available to permit bomber crews to escape at speeds above sound expected by 1950.

He said the crewmen of these jet bombers have to be a more mature type than in the old bombers. They have to be better selected, better trained, and better able to concentrate. They face greater anxiety and suffer more fatgue.

Yanks Find U. S. And Japanese Subways Alike

SENDAI, Japan (INS) — The United States and Japan are different — almost everywhere, that is, but on the subway.

At least, that is the claim of some New York strap-hangers, now serving with the 40th Infantry Division, who got their first taste this week of a Japanese commuter's special.

"Times Square or Sendai, it's all the same." Said Cpl. Allen Gitlin, Bronx, N. Y., "The women stand and the men sit. One change, though, the women here are faster. One almost beat me to an empty seat."

The trains rattle along as swiftly as their U. S. counterparts and stick closer to the correct time than a clockwatcher at 5 p. m.

our big town trains a thing or two;

"These Japanese jitneys can teach our big town trains a thing or two; no waiting, no stalling, every stop right on button," added Pfc. Thomas Bogard, Brooklyn. "Back home, I spent so much time at the station waiting for the Flatbush local, they wanted to charge me rent."

Fortieth Division soldiers, in Japan for training and to provide security for this important base for Korean operations, all agree on one point the two systems have in common — the number of riders that can be crammed into a single car.

The Japanese version of the rush hour ride makes Pfc. Sanford Rosenberg, Bronx, N. Y., nostalgic. He said:

"There I was on this train, when a little boy kicked me in the shins. My ears started to buzz and then two old ladies knocked me down running for a seat.

"I felt like I was home."

The worker bee has 3,000 to 4,000 lenses it its eyes; the drone has 7,000 to 8,000.

Speedy Bombers Encounter New Hazards To Life

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE

DENVER—(AP)—New hazards to life at the speed of sound at 40,000 feet altitude were reported to the Aero Medical Association today.

The hazards are met in our new jet bombers. They were told by one of the bomber builders, Engineering Vice-President Wellwood Beall, Boeing Aircraft Company, Seattle. His report was read in his absence.

He told what few persons have known, that jet bombers have much smaller crews. Where the B-29 had 11 men, he said the B-47 has three.

When the cover comes off the hatch through which men have to escape, the wind roars into the plane, with rapid-hammer blows, almost as loud as explosions. The blasts may prevent a man who is stooping from straightening up.

Sometimes men cannot move arms and legs against the blasts enough to place them in position on chairs on which crewmen are to be dropped or shot out of a crippled plane.

The gusts vibrate the men so strongly that they become dizzy, have difficulty in seeing and even inability to continue rational thinking. They may get seasick. Afterwards these troubles may last in slight degree for two or three days.

The friction of the gusts on clothing is so intense that the men say they sometimes feel the heat through the clothes.

Alterations in design are reducing these escape hazards. But Beall reported there is nothing yet available to permit bomber crews to escape at speeds above sound expected by 1950.

He said the crewmen of these jet bombers have to be a more mature type than in the old bombers. They have to be better selected, better trained, and better able to concentrate. They face greater anxiety and suffer more fatgue.

SENDAI, Japan (INS) — The United States and Japan are different — almost everywhere, that is, but on the subway.

At least, that is the claim of some New York strap-hangers, now serving with the 40th Infantry Division, who got their first taste this week of a Japanese commuter's special.

"Times Square or Sendai, it's all the same." Said Cpl. Allen Gitlin, Bronx, N. Y., "The women stand and the men sit. One change, though, the women here are faster. One almost beat me to an empty seat."

The trains rattle along as swiftly as their U. S. counterparts and stick closer to the correct time than a clockwatcher at 5 p. m. our big town trains a thing or two;

"These Japanese jitneys can teach our big town trains a thing or two; no waiting, no stalling, every stop right on button," added Pfc. Thomas Bogard, Brooklyn. "Back home, I spent so much time at the station waiting for the Flatbush local, they wanted to charge me rent."

Fortieth Division soldiers, in Japan for training and to provide security for this important base for Korean operations, all agree on one point the two systems have in common — the number of riders that can be crammed into a single car.

The Japanese version of the rush hour ride makes Pfc. Sanford Rosenberg, Bronx, N. Y., nostalgic. He said:

"There I was on this train, when a little boy kicked me in the shins. My ears started to buzz and then two old ladies knocked me down running for a seat.

"I felt like I was home."

Insurance On County Vehicles Is Increased

Insurance coverage on 42 county-owned vehicles was ordered increased yesterday by the Allegany County Board of Commissioners.

A list of 38 County Roads Department vehicles showed they are covered now at the rate of $10,000 for property damage and $20,000 for personal injury. Under the order passed today the coverage has been increased to $50,000 in each category.

A survey by insurance men showed that for $3.15 per policy the various trucks, cars and road equipment could be placed under the higher coverage.

Members of the board said that the extra cost is so low that the county" would be foolish" not to increase the coverage in order to protect taxpayers in the event of serious accidents.

Cars operated by the sheriff's office and county-owned cars driven by public health nurses are included in the new insurance coverage plan.

It was also reported to the board yesterday morning that youths have torn the lock from a gate at the reservoir above the county farm property in North End, and that a drain pipe has been blocked so that the reservoir has filled with water.

The board, at considerable expense, had a wire fence erected around the reservoir and drained the pool to prevent any boys from meeting with mishap by swimming there. Due to the excellent type of masonry construction of the reservoir the county commissioners did not want to blow up part of the structure, but if the acts of vandalism and swimming continue this will have to be done.

The first carpet mill was started in the United States by William Peter Sprague in Philadelphia in 1791.

SRC Will Inspect Road At Bloomington - Swanton

Upon the invitation of Horace P. Whitworth, Jr., a member of the Allegany county delegation to the legislature, members of the State Roads Commission are scheduled to inspect the Bloomington-Swanton road tomorrow to determine if the state will take over maintenance of the highway.

The Garrett county commissioners have requested the State Roads Commission to take over the road as the upkeep is too expensive for the county.

Whitworth said that a joint Senate-House resolution passed at the recent session of the legislature calls for the state to assume control of the road.

Russell H. McCain, chairman of the State Roads Commission, will head state officials on the inspection tour. He will meet with members of the Garrett county board to discuss the matter.

Plan Friday Meeting

Another meeting will be held here Friday at the office of G. Bates Chaires, district SRC engineer, for further discussion of the proposal.

Whitworth said that in the event the state agrees to take over the highway it could be widened and improved into a first-class road. He commented that with improvements the road would be used by persons driving from Oakland and West Virginia points to Cumberland, and that it would cut many miles from the routes now most frequently used.

The road is also important as an access road to the recreation areas of Garrett county, such as Deep Creek Lake, Swallow Falls, and the state forest areas.

May Discuss Bridge

Whitworth also said that some discussion may be held on the Allegany county proposal for the State Roads Commission to take over the Pinto bridge across the Potomac River. This bridge needs to be replaced and the cost would be prohibitive for the county.

The U. S. Navy is also interested in the bridge and roadway leading from Maryland to West Virginia. The Navy would prefer that the road be relocated about a mile upstream with a new bridge across the B. and O. and Western Maryland Railway tracks. This would take a portion of the highway away from the immediately vicinity of the Allegany Ballistics Laboratory and reduce the hazards due to the proximity of the road to the laboratory.

Tri-Towns Briefs And Personals

Luke PTA will elect and install new officers following a covered dish supper at 6 p. m. Wednesday. Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Kopp and Miss Jane Botsford have accepted invitations to attend.

Fifteen members of the Women's Work Organization of the Church of the Brethren met recently at the home of Mrs. Laura Dewitt, Poplar Street, Westernport. Twenty-six calls were reported during the past month.

The Westernport and Luke Woman's Republican Club will meet at 8:30 p. m. Wednesday at the Westernport Library. Mrs. George P. Kight, club president, reports this will be the last meeting until fall.

Legislation Sought To Urge New Industries In County

Members of the Allegany County Board of Commissioners took under advisement yesterday a proposal by the chairman of the Frostburg Industrial Development Corporation that the Legislative Council be requested to prepare a bill providing for a ten-year tax exemption on new buildings of any company in the county.

Harry G. Shupe, chairman of the Frostburg group, wrote the board that Rep. J. Glenn Beall has contacted State Senator Robert B. Kimble relative to legislation to exempt from taxation for 10 years new buildings of any company, if such buildings are to be used for the manufacture or fabrication of materials and will provide employment to Allegany county residents.

Shupe said he understands Senator Kimble has placed the matter before the Legislative Council, that Gov. McKeldin is in sympathy with efforts to secure employment and that such a bill could be introduced at the next session of the Legislature.

The Frostburger suggested that the county commissioners make a formal request of the council so that a new building in Frostburg for the M. Berkowitz Company could qualify.

A bill was passed at the recent session of the Legislature to grant tax exemptions of 10 years for all new industries which locate in the county. The new proposal would affect industries now located here and which wish to expand their plants.

Whitworth said that in the event the state agrees to take over the highway it could be widened and improved into a first-class road. He commented that with improvements the road would be used by persons driving from Oakland and West Virginia points to Cumberland, and that it would cut many miles from the routes now most frequently used.

The road is also important as an access road to the recreation areas of Garrett county, such as Deep Creek Lake, Swallow Falls, and the state forest areas.

May Discuss Bridge

Whitworth also said that some discussion may be held on the Allegany county proposal for the State Roads Commission to take over the Pinto bridge across the Potomac River. This bridge needs to be replaced and the cost would be prohibitive for the county.

The U. S. Navy is also interested in the bridge and roadway leading from Maryland to West Virginia. The Navy would prefer that the road be relocated about a mile upstream with a new bridge across the B. and O. and Western Maryland Railway tracks. This would take a portion of the highway away from the immediately vicinity of the Allegany Ballistics Laboratory and reduce the hazards due to the proximity of the road to the laboratory.

Legislation Sought To Urge New Industries In County

Members of the Allegany County Board of Commissioners took under advisement yesterday a proposal by the chairman of the Frostburg Industrial Development Corporation that the Legislative Council be requested to prepare a bill providing for a ten-year tax exemption on new buildings of any company in the county.

Harry G. Shupe, chairman of the Frostburg group, wrote the board that Rep. J. Glenn Beall has contacted State Senator Robert B. Kimble relative to legislation to exempt from taxation for 10 years new buildings of any company, if such buildings are to be used for the manufacture or fabrication of materials and will provide employment to Allegany county residents.

Shupe said he understands Senator Kimble has placed the matter before the Legislative Council, that Gov. McKeldin is in sympathy with efforts to secure employment and that such a bill could be introduced at the next session of the Legislature.

The Frostburger suggested that the county commissioners make a formal request of the council so that a new building in Frostburg for the M. Berkowitz Company could qualify.

A bill was passed at the recent session of the Legislature to grant tax exemptions of 10 years for all new industries which locate in the county. The new proposal would affect industries now located here and which wish to expand their plants.

Insurance On County Vehicles Is Increased

Insurance coverage on 42 county-owned vehicles was ordered increased yesterday by the Allegany County Board of Commissioners.

A list of 38 County Roads Department vehicles showed they are covered now at the rate of $10,000 for property damage and $20,000 for personal injury. Under the order passed today the coverage has been increased to $50,000 in each category.

A survey by insurance men showed that for $3.15 per policy the various trucks, cars and road equipment could be placed under the higher coverage.

Members of the board said that the extra cost is so low that the county" would be foolish" not to increase the coverage in order to protect taxpayers in the event of serious accidents.

Cars operated by the sheriff's office and county-owned cars driven by public health nurses are included in the new insurance coverage plan.

It was also reported to the board yesterday morning that youths have torn the lock from a gate at the reservoir above the county farm property in North End, and that a drain pipe has been blocked so that the reservoir has filled with water.

The board, at considerable expense, had a wire fence erected around the reservoir and drained the pool to prevent any boys from meeting with mishap by swimming there. Due to the excellent type of masonry construction of the reservoir the county commissioners did not want to blow up part of the structure, but if the acts of vandalism and swimming continue this will have to be done.

The first carpet mill was started in the United States by William Peter Sprague in Philadelphia in 1791.

SRC Will Inspect Road At Bloomington - Swanton

Upon the invitation of Horace P. Whitworth, Jr., a member of the Allegany county delegation to the legislature, members of the State Roads Commission are scheduled to inspect the Bloomington-Swanton road tomorrow to determine if the state will take over maintenance of the highway.

The Garrett county commissioners have requested the State Roads Commission to take over the road as the upkeep is too expensive for the county.

Whitworth said that a joint Senate-House resolution passed at the recent session of the legislature calls for the state to assume control of the road.

Russell H. McCain, chairman of the State Roads Commission, will head state officials on the inspection tour. He will meet with members of the Garrett county board to discuss the matter.

Plan Friday Meeting

Another meeting will be held here Friday at the office of G. Bates Chaires, district SRC engineer, for further discussion of the proposal.

Whitworth said that in the event the state agrees to take over the highway it could be widened and improved into a first-class road. He commented that with improvements the road would be used by persons driving from Oakland and West Virginia points to Cumberland, and that it would cut many miles from the routes now most frequently used.

Controls Target Of New Blasts

WASHINGTON, May 22 (AP)—New blasts against the administration's multiple controls program echoed against demands for even stiffer curbs over prices, wages and rents today.

Western cattle raisers, angered by the recent rollback on beef prices, predicted meat shortages and a revival of World War II black markets, with rationing by next spring.

Home builders forecast a serious housing shortage and a "depression" within a year. They contended the government should soften or scrap its present restrictions on building.

Eric Johnston, economic stabilization chief, told senators that if Congress approves the administration's request for stronger controls, the government will hold down wage boosts to less than 10 per cent a year.

Wages are now more or less "frozen" to 10 per cent above the levels of Jan. 15, 1950.

Even as Johnston spoke, an official of the Wage Stabilization Board disclosed that a new formula allowing higher wage boosts is in the works.

Harry Weiss, the board's acting executive officer, told the National Retail Dry Goods Association that the federal agency can be expected to set higher ceilings within the next few weeks.

Physician Given Jail, Fine For Tax Evasion

BALTIMORE, May 22 (AP) — Dr. Harold V. Harbold, whose tax evasion case the judge called "flagrant," was sentenced today to six months in prison and fined $5,000.

A federal court jury convicted him about two weeks ago of trying to short-change the government by $21,722 in taxes during the period 1944-46.

Chief Judge William C. Coleman deferred sentence then because the physician was reported ill in a hospital.

Four Men Are Killed When Ditch Caves In

ST. LOUIS, May 22 (INS)—Four men were killed today when they were buried under tons of dirt in a cave-in in a 20-foot ditch in St. Louis.

The ditch was being dug as part of a five-million dollar Lever Brothers building project.

Twenty rescue workers and two power shovels recovered the bodies of the men.

Easter To Rejoin Tribe Next Week

CLEVELAND, May 22 (AP) — Big Luke Easter should be back in the Cleveland Indians' lineup in a week, two doctors agreed today after examining his injured knee.

Luke himself had been talking about having an operation that would keep him out for the season. But Dr. Don Kelly said he saw no need for surgery.

Dr. W. H. McGaw, a Cleveland orthopedist, agreed.

simply ceasing to come down and attack our troops?"

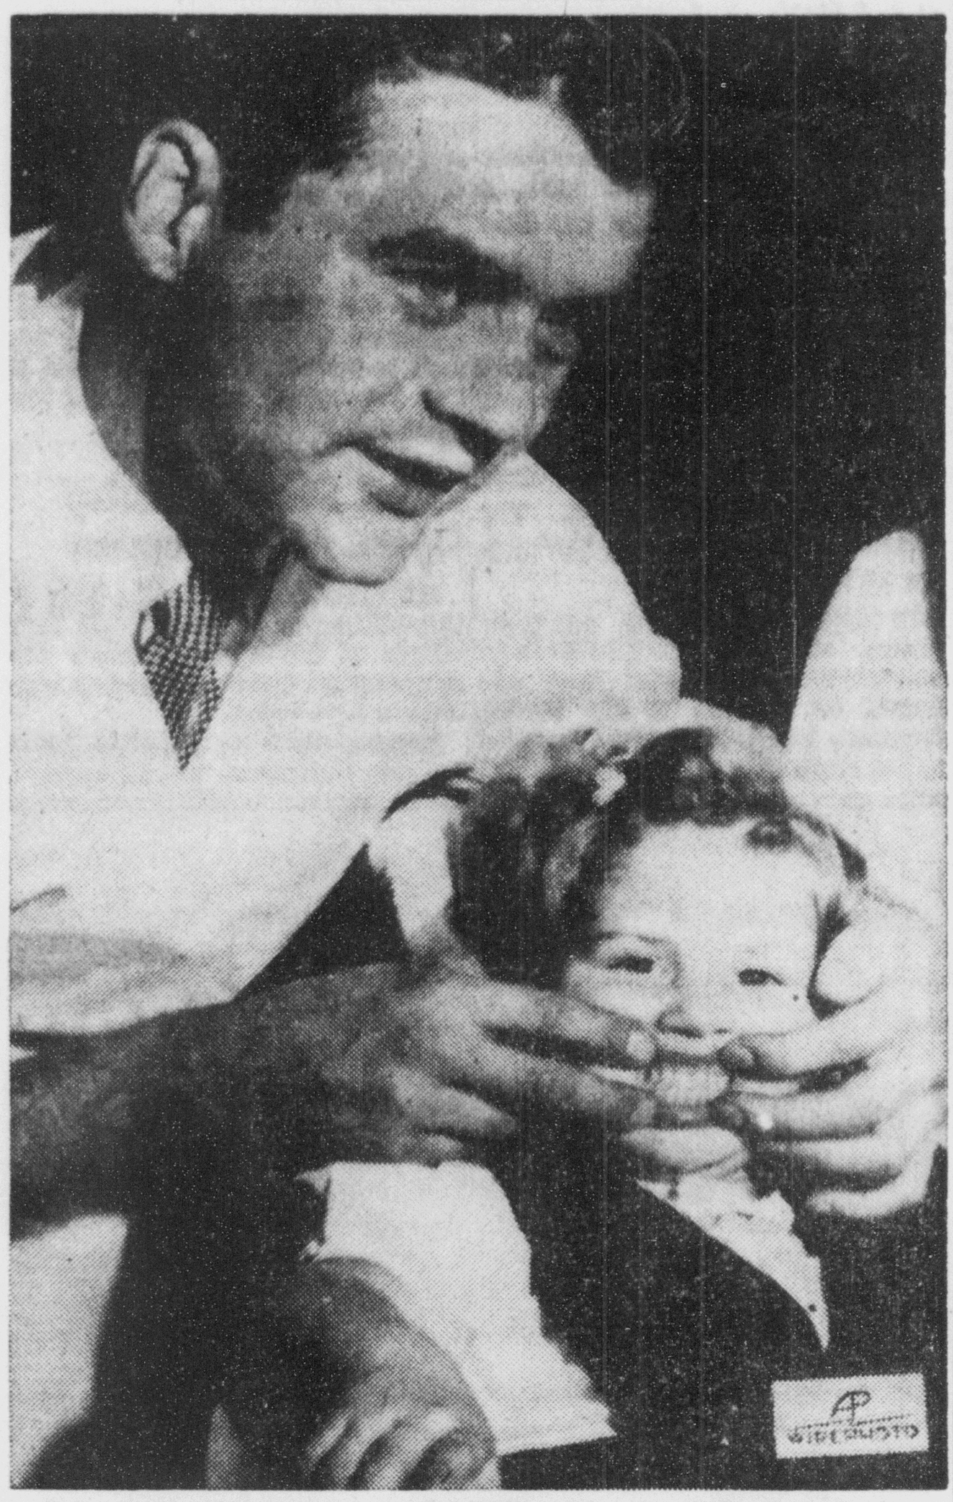
Bradley replied: "That is a possibility which we have to consider. It petered out in Greece, and that is one way it could end here."

Prodded by Sen. Fulbright (D-Ark), Bradley reported that the Pentagon was "worried" last November over the way MacArthur split his 8th Army and 10th Corps in their drives toward the Manchurian border.

The General has been criticized for this maneuver on the grounds that he left a gap between the forces down which the Chinese Reds struck in their offensive which rolled the U. N. troops back. But MacArthur called such criticism "poppycock" and insisted he would use the same tactics if he had it to do again.

Bradley said from Washington it looked as though the flanks of both 8th Army and 10th Corps had been left exposed.

In the midst of this testimony, Sen. Tobey (R-NH) pleaded with his colleagues to "ring the curtain down" on the inquiry. He declared "I am impressed with the futility of much that is going on here xxx" and he also voiced concern the testimony is aiding the Russians.



GEORGIA'S CHARMING CHOPPERS—For the first time in her life, pretty three-year-old Georgia Kay King, Springfield, Ill., has a full set of teeth. With her is Dr. Paul B. Durkin, who in association with his office partner, made the small set of dentures. A rare disease destroyed the enamel-producing cells of her gums in early infancy.

Dope Addict Says He Got Habit In Md. Pen

BALTIMORE, May 22 (AP)—A dope addict declared in Criminal Court today he picked up the habit while a prisoner at Maryland Penitentiary.

Judge Joseph Sherbow said the disclosure was no less than shocking.

It came out as George Stamper, 26, was convicted of possessing heroin capsules when police arrested him April 29. He was on parole from the penitentiary after serving about five years of a ten-year sentence for robbery.

Stamper said 10 or 12 of the 60 prisoners in his dormitory used drugs. He declared two men had supplied him while he was in prison but he declined to name them. He said one of them had access to the prison hospital.

Truckers Strike Hits Western Pennsylvania

PITTSBURGH, May 22 (AP) — A surprise truckers strike hit Western Pennsylvania today.

The work stoppage by members of Local 249, AFL General Teamsters tied up freight shipments in a wide area centering around Pittsburgh.

About 2,400 drivers and helpers are involved in both the over-the-road and city freight industries.

The men began leaving their jobs shortly after they heard a proposed contract settlement.

A spokesman for the Pennsylvania Motor Carriers Association declared the strike came without warning. The local's contract does not expire until May 31. Rank and filers previously had authorized negotiators to call a strike after the contract expiration.

Madrid Transit SystemBoycotted

MADRID, May 22 (AP)—Madrid residents defied the government's display of force today and walked to work in droves as a protest against the high cost of living.

The boycott against the public transportation system was in response to half of an appeal, distributed in leaflets in recent days, for a demonstration against the high cost of living.

The other half of the appeal called for a general strike. But the government concentrated overwhelming army and police forces in the capital to discourage the strike.

Some observers said today's form of protest was more impressive than a strike. All classes, not just workers, walked to work.

Subway officials said receipts were 80 per cent below normal. Street cars and buses were only one-fourth full. Numbers of vehicles on the street were about a third of normal. No arrests or incidents were reported.

Retail food markets said their sales were off 60 to 80 per cent. Cafe trade was almost nothing. Newsdealers had piles of papers left on their hands.

Hagerstown To Honor Korea Veteran Today

HAGERSTOWN, Md., May 22 (AP)—It's Sgt. Hager's town tomorrow. This Western Maryland city will loose its trappings to honor one of the first of its young men who was returned from the Korean front under the new rotation program.

Mayor Herman L. Mills has proclaimed tomorrow as "Sergeant Charles H. D. Hager Day."

"Sgt. Hager," the Mayor said, "was chosen as an appropriate symbol of our servicemen who, although by birth dedicated to peace and freedom, will fight any enemy and overcome any obstacle to protect and cherish that peace and freedom."

Ban Hits Reich Firms Trading With Reds

WASHINGTON, May 22 (AP)—The United States cracked down today on West German firms illegally trading through the iron curtain.

The State Department announced a ban on exports of strategic materials to such firms, the names of which are now being placed on a virtual black list.

The action followed protests on Capitol Hill against alleged illegal trading on a large scale between Germany and Communist countries. Sen. O'Conor (D-Md) said only Saturday that a Red Chinese purchasing mission was in Berlin trying to buy strategic materials from Western Germany.

Home Front Will Be War Front Next Time, PTA Told

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., May 22 (AP)—If another world war breaks out, there will be flaming atomic attacks right in America's backyard, Dr. Dwayne Orton, of the U. S Civil Defense Administration, said today.

Whether we stand or fall under these attacks, he told the national convention of the Congress of Parents and Teachers, depends upon whether civilians have the guts to take it.

Its hard for Americans to realize, Dr. Orton said, that the home front will be a war front the next time.

"We must face the fact," he said, "and generate the necessary fortitude to plan for efficient civil defense.

"Atomic attack will destroy property, but its greatest value will be in breaking the will of the people. A demoralized people are a defeated people.

"Can we take it?"

The former Stockton, Calif., college president, who is assistant administrator for training and education in the civil defense setup, said America was "really vulnerable" to aerial attack.

Grain-For-India Bill Supported By Rayburn

WASHINGTON, May 22 (AP)—Speaker Sam Rayburn made one of his rare House speeches today to urge passage of the grain-for-India bill, opposing Rep. Cox (D-Ga) who called the measure "a cheat and a swindle."

"In the Far East we need friends," the Speaker said, "and sometimes I wonder if some gentlemen have forgotten we need friends the world around.

"If we refuse to even consider this bread for the starving people of that great nation, I doubt if we'll have any friends in India in the next generation."

Rep. Ribicoff (R-Conn) a member of the Foreign Affairs Committee and a backer of the bill, joined Cox in criticism of the attitude taken by Indian officials toward this country and Russia but told the House that delay already has "greatly undercut the effectiveness of this legislation."

simply ceasing to come down and attack our troops?"

Bradley replied: "That is a possibility which we have to consider. It petered out in Greece, and that is one way it could end here."

Prodded by Sen. Fulbright (D-Ark), Bradley reported that the Pentagon was "worried" last November over the way MacArthur split his 8th Army and 10th Corps in their drives toward the Manchurian border.

The General has been criticized for this maneuver on the grounds that he left a gap between the forces down which the Chinese Reds struck in their offensive which rolled the U. N. troops back. But MacArthur called such criticism "poppycock" and insisted he would use the same tactics if he had it to do again.

Bradley said from Washington it looked as though the flanks of both 8th Army and 10th Corps had been left exposed.

In the midst of this testimony, Sen. Tobey (R-NH) pleaded with his colleagues to "ring the curtain down" on the inquiry. He declared "I am impressed with the futility of much that is going on here xxx" and he also voiced concern the testimony is aiding the Russians.

Dope Addict Says He Got Habit In Md. Pen

BALTIMORE, May 22 (AP)—A dope addict declared in Criminal Court today he picked up the habit while a prisoner at Maryland Penitentiary.

Judge Joseph Sherbow said the disclosure was no less than shocking.

It came out as George Stamper, 26, was convicted of possessing heroin capsules when police arrested him April 29. He was on parole from the penitentiary after serving about five years of a ten-year sentence for robbery.

Stamper said 10 or 12 of the 60 prisoners in his dormitory used drugs. He declared two men had supplied him while he was in prison but he declined to name them. He said one of them had access to the prison hospital.

Truckers Strike Hits Western Pennsylvania

PITTSBURGH, May 22 (AP) — A surprise truckers strike hit Western Pennsylvania today.

The work stoppage by members of Local 249, AFL General Teamsters tied up freight shipments in a wide area centering around Pittsburgh.

About 2,400 drivers and helpers are involved in both the over-the-road and city freight industries.

The men began leaving their jobs shortly after they heard a proposed contract settlement.

A spokesman for the Pennsylvania Motor Carriers Association declared the strike came without warning. The local's contract does not expire until May 31. Rank and filers previously had authorized negotiators to call a strike after the contract expiration.

Madrid Transit SystemBoycotted

MADRID, May 22 (AP)—Madrid residents defied the government's display of force today and walked to work in droves as a protest against the high cost of living.

The boycott against the public transportation system was in response to half of an appeal, distributed in leaflets in recent days, for a demonstration against the high cost of living.

The other half of the appeal called for a general strike. But the government concentrated overwhelming army and police forces in the capital to discourage the strike.

Some observers said today's form of protest was more impressive than a strike. All classes, not just workers, walked to work.

Subway officials said receipts were 80 per cent below normal. Street cars and buses were only one-fourth full. Numbers of vehicles on the street were about a third of normal. No arrests or incidents were reported.

Retail food markets said their sales were off 60 to 80 per cent. Cafe trade was almost nothing. Newsdealers had piles of papers left on their hands.

Hagerstown To Honor Korea Veteran Today

HAGERSTOWN, Md., May 22 (AP)—It's Sgt. Hager's town tomorrow.

This Western Maryland city will loose its trappings to honor one of the first of its young men who was returned from the Korean front under the new rotation program.

Mayor Herman L. Mills has proclaimed tomorrow as "Sergeant Charles H. D. Hager Day."

"Sgt. Hager," the Mayor said, "was chosen as an appropriate symbol of our servicemen who, although by birth dedicated to peace and freedom, will fight any enemy and overcome any obstacle to protect and cherish that peace and freedom."

Ban Hits Reich Firms Trading With Reds

WASHINGTON, May 22 (AP)—The United States cracked down today on West German firms illegally trading through the iron curtain.

The State Department announced a ban on exports of strategic materials to such firms, the names of which are now being placed on a virtual black list.

The action followed protests on Capitol Hill against alleged illegal trading on a large scale between Germany and Communist countries. Sen. O'Conor (D-Md) said only Saturday that a Red Chinese purchasing mission was in Berlin trying to buy strategic materials from Western Germany.

Home Front Will Be War Front Next Time, PTA Told

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., May 22 (AP)—If another world war breaks out, there will be flaming atomic attacks right in America's backyard, Dr. Dwayne Orton, of the U. S Civil Defense Administration, said today.

Whether we stand or fall under these attacks, he told the national convention of the Congress of Parents and Teachers, depends upon whether civilians have the guts to take it.

Its hard for Americans to realize, Dr. Orton said, that the home front will be a war front the next time.

"We must face the fact," he said, "and generate the necessary fortitude to plan for efficient civil defense.

"Atomic attack will destroy property, but its greatest value will be in breaking the will of the people. A demoralized people are a defeated people.

"Can we take it?"

The former Stockton, Calif., college president, who is assistant administrator for training and education in the civil defense setup, said America was "really vulnerable" to aerial attack.

Grain-For-India Bill Supported By Rayburn

WASHINGTON, May 22 (AP)—Speaker Sam Rayburn made one of his rare House speeches today to urge passage of the grain-for-India bill, opposing Rep. Cox (D-Ga) who called the measure "a cheat and a swindle."

"In the Far East we need friends," the Speaker said, "and sometimes I wonder if some gentlemen have forgotten we need friends the world around.

"If we refuse to even consider this bread for the starving people of that great nation, I doubt if we'll have any friends in India in the next generation."

Rep. Ribicoff (R-Conn) a member of the Foreign Affairs Committee and a backer of the bill, joined Cox in criticism of the attitude taken by Indian officials toward this country and Russia but told the House that delay already has "greatly undercut the effectiveness of this legislation."

Controls Target Of New Blasts

WASHINGTON, May 22 (AP)—New blasts against the administration's multiple controls program echoed against demands for even stiffer curbs over prices, wages and rents today.

Western cattle raisers, angered by the recent rollback on beef prices, predicted meat shortages and a revival of World War II black markets, with rationing by next spring.

Home builders forecast a serious housing shortage and a "depression" within a year. They contended the government should soften or scrap its present restrictions on building.

Eric Johnston, economic stabilization chief, told senators that if Congress approves the administration's request for stronger controls, the government will hold down wage boosts to less than 10 per cent a year.

Wages are now more or less "frozen" to 10 per cent above the levels of Jan. 15, 1950.

Even as Johnston spoke, an official of the Wage Stabilization Board disclosed that a new formula allowing higher wage boosts is in the works.

Harry Weiss, the board's acting executive officer, told the National Retail Dry Goods Association that the federal agency can be expected to set higher ceilings within the next few weeks.

Physician Given Jail, Fine For Tax Evasion

BALTIMORE, May 22 (AP) — Dr. Harold V. Harbold, whose tax evasion case the judge called "flagrant," was sentenced today to six months in prison and fined $5,000.

A federal court jury convicted him about two weeks ago of trying to short-change the government by $21,722 in taxes during the period 1944-46.

Chief Judge William C. Coleman deferred sentence then because the physician was reported ill in a hospital.

Four Men Are Killed When Ditch Caves In

ST. LOUIS, May 22 (INS)—Four men were killed today when they were buried under tons of dirt in a cave-in in a 20-foot ditch in St. Louis.

The ditch was being dug as part of a five-million dollar Lever Brothers building project.

Twenty rescue workers and two power shovels recovered the bodies of the men.

Easter To Rejoin Tribe Next Week

CLEVELAND, May 22 (AP) — Big Luke Easter should be back in the Cleveland Indians' lineup in a week, two doctors agreed today after examining his injured knee.

Luke himself had been talking about having an operation that would keep him out for the season. But Dr. Don Kelly said he saw no need for surgery.

Dr. W. H. McGaw, a Cleveland orthopedist, agreed.

City Officials Approve Plan To Oil Streets

Program To Begin Early Next Month

The Mayor and Council Monday gave the Street Department the go ahead for a street oiling program early in June when it approved bids on oil for the project.

Approved at the suggestion of Mrs. Lucile Roeder, commissioner of streets and public property, was the Garland Norton Petroleum Company bid for oil in trailer tank roads at .1189 a gallon.

Mrs. Roeder said investigation disclosed that trailer load purchases will prove the best method of securing the necessary oil. Quality of the product has been approved by the State Roads Commission.

Schedule Arranged

The Street Department will not veer from the set schedule, Mrs. Roeder stated. Requests have been coming to the office at City Hall and the commissioner asked that they be directed to the warehouse, telephone 1134, where a full-time clerk is on duty.

These requests will not change the schedule, however. Mrs. Roeder said it would not be economical and mean wasted time if the oiling crews were kept on the move from one section of the city to another each day.

The schedule is aimed to expedite the program which will be completed in June and July.

Starts In Lindnerville

In a move to be fair to all sections, the program is to start at Lindnerville and follow through Frederick Street, etc., Mrs. Roeder said. Last year, the program started in the South End and Mapleside. By rotating the starting point each year, the department is maintaining its schedule balance.

Ten men will be employed on the oiling process alone, Martin M. Corrigan, street superintendent, said. The oiling involves grading the street, cleaning gutters, shaping, rolling, the actual oiling and in some places barricading.

Equipment necessary is the grader, roller, a 550-gallon oil distributor and two trucks.

Corrigan pointed out that by following a schedule, permanent relief for the summer can be effected.

Jury Upholds $7,500 Payment

A jury in Allegany County Circuit Court Monday ruled that Bertha A. Bell was totally dependent upon her nephew who died from burns sustained at a local greenhouse and thereby upheld the decision reached last fall by the State Industrial Accident Commission .

This was an appeal brought by the attorney for a local florist and an insurance company.

Raymond Beall, 39, of 711 Hill Top Drive, greenhouse caretaker, died in Allegany Hospital January 25, 1950, eight hours after his clothing became ignited from a boiler explosion at the Edward Habeeb greenhouse, 1922 Bedford Road. Beall suffered third and fourth degree burns over his entire body.

A hearing was held in Cumberland April 14, 1950, concerning payments to Beall's aunt, Bertha A. Beall, who contended that she had been totally dependent upon her nephew. Last October 24, Simon F. Reilly, commissioner for the State Industrial Accident Commission, ruled that Habeeb and the Employers Liability Assurance Corporation, the insurer, would have to pay $20 per week for 375 weeks, a total of $7,500, beginning January 25, and $300 toward his funeral expenses.

Attorney William A. Gunter appealed the decision on behalf of Habeeb and the insurance company. William H. Geppert was counsel for Miss Beall. Gunter said the sole point the jury in Circuit Court had been asked to rule on is whether Miss Beall was totally dependent upon her nephew.

The name used in medical reports for the black or ship rat is rattus rattus rattus.

New Police Officers To Receive Training

A training program for new police officers during their first week of duty has been ordered by Police and Fire Commissioner John J. Long.

Long, in a directive to Chief of Police R. Emmett Flynn, asked that the officers meet with the commissioner and also receive an instruction talk from Chief Flynn.

In addition to special instructions, the men will receive gun and inhalator practice under the direction of Sgt. John H. Newhouse, and an explanation of the Detective Bureau from Lt. E. L. Lilya, head of the bureau.

The custom of wearing a black band on the coat sleeve in mourning came from England.

Cold Water Splits Town–Literally

HERMANNSREUTH, Germany (AP)—This little Bavarian town is literally torn in half by the Cold War.

Before the East and West began growling at each other like strange bulldogs, Hermannsreuthers didn't mind straddling the border. It was entertaining to stroll the length of the settlement and pass from Germany to Czechoslovakia. The frontier ran right through the middle of the town.

In 1945 these privileges were withdrawn and the Czechoslovakian Government confiscated land and homes on its side of the border. Germans living there were expelled across town into Bavaria. Neighbors took them in and they managed to eke out a living by working that section of their fields which still lay in Germany. Czech soldiers moved into their half of Hermannsreuth and began ripping down houses. Within a few weeks they had demolished everything but a church. Why they left it standing was never explained.

But the Hermannsreuthers aren't giving up. They are well on the way with a housing project to build 35 new two-family homes on the Bavarian side.

Social Security Parley Opens At Huntington

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., May 22 (AP)—Managers of Region III field offices of the Social Security Administration ended a two-day conference here today.

Represented were Bluefield, Parkersburg, Covington, Va., Charleston, Morgantown, Logan, Beckley, Welch, Cumberland, Md., Bristol, Va., Wheeling and Huntington.

Worker Injured In Fall While Repairing Roof

William Goebel, 38, of 25 Centennial Street, Frostburg, is reported in "good condition" at Memorial Hospital where he was admitted Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock following a fall from a house roof while at work. He sufferd a fractured right arm. X-rays have been taken but hospital attaches last night did not know the full extent of his injuries.

Goebel, a former sheet metal worker at the Amcelle plant, was repairing a roof at a house on a corner of Cumberland and Carroll Streets. He apparently lost his footing and plunged about 25 feet to the sidewalk.

A hearing was held in Cumberland April 14, 1950, concerning payments to Beall's aunt, Bertha A. Beall, who contended that she had been totally dependent upon her nephew. Last October 24, Simon F. Reilly, commissioner for the State Industrial Accident Commission, ruled that Habeeb and the Employers Liability Assurance Corporation, the insurer, would have to pay $20 per week for 375 weeks, a total of $7,500, beginning January 25, and $300 toward his funeral expenses.

Attorney William A. Gunter appealed the decision on behalf of Habeeb and the insurance company. William H. Geppert was counsel for Miss Beall. Gunter said the sole point the jury in Circuit Court had been asked to rule on is whether Miss Beall was totally dependent upon her nephew.

Cold Water Splits Town–Literally

HERMANNSREUTH, Germany (AP)—This little Bavarian town is literally torn in half by the Cold War.

Before the East and West began growling at each other like strange bulldogs, Hermannsreuthers didn't mind straddling the border. It was entertaining to stroll the length of the settlement and pass from Germany to Czechoslovakia. The frontier ran right through the middle of the town.

In 1945 these privileges were withdrawn and the Czechoslovakian Government confiscated land and homes on its side of the border. Germans living there were expelled across town into Bavaria. Neighbors took them in and they managed to eke out a living by working that section of their fields which still lay in Germany. Czech soldiers moved into their half of Hermannsreuth and began ripping down houses. Within a few weeks they had demolished everything but a church. Why they left it standing was never explained.

But the Hermannsreuthers aren't giving up. They are well on the way with a housing project to build 35 new two-family homes on the Bavarian side.

City Officials Approve Plan To Oil Streets

Program To Begin Early Next Month

The Mayor and Council Monday gave the Street Department the go ahead for a street oiling program early in June when it approved bids on oil for the project.

Approved at the suggestion of Mrs. Lucile Roeder, commissioner of streets and public property, was the Garland Norton Petroleum Company bid for oil in trailer tank roads at .1189 a gallon.

Mrs. Roeder said investigation disclosed that trailer load purchases will prove the best method of securing the necessary oil. Quality of the product has been approved by the State Roads Commission.

Schedule Arranged

The Street Department will not veer from the set schedule, Mrs. Roeder stated. Requests have been coming to the office at City Hall and the commissioner asked that they be directed to the warehouse, telephone 1134, where a full-time clerk is on duty.

These requests will not change the schedule, however. Mrs. Roeder said it would not be economical and mean wasted time if the oiling crews were kept on the move from one section of the city to another each day.

The schedule is aimed to expedite the program which will be completed in June and July.

Starts In Lindnerville

In a move to be fair to all sections, the program is to start at Lindnerville and follow through Frederick Street, etc., Mrs. Roeder said. Last year, the program started in the South End and Mapleside. By rotating the starting point each year, the department is maintaining its schedule balance.

Ten men will be employed on the oiling process alone, Martin M. Corrigan, street superintendent, said. The oiling involves grading the street, cleaning gutters, shaping, rolling, the actual oiling and in some places barricading.

Equipment necessary is the grader, roller, a 550-gallon oil distributor and two trucks.

Corrigan pointed out that by following a schedule, permanent relief for the summer can be effected.

Jury Upholds $7,500 Payment

A jury in Allegany County Circuit Court Monday ruled that Bertha A. Bell was totally dependent upon her nephew who died from burns sustained at a local greenhouse and thereby upheld the decision reached last fall by the State Industrial Accident Commission .

This was an appeal brought by the attorney for a local florist and an insurance company.

Raymond Beall, 39, of 711 Hill Top Drive, greenhouse caretaker, died in Allegany Hospital January 25, 1950, eight hours after his clothing became ignited from a boiler explosion at the Edward Habeeb greenhouse, 1922 Bedford Road. Beall suffered third and fourth degree burns over his entire body.

A hearing was held in Cumberland April 14, 1950, concerning payments to Beall's aunt, Bertha A. Beall, who contended that she had been totally dependent upon her nephew. Last October 24, Simon F. Reilly, commissioner for the State Industrial Accident Commission, ruled that Habeeb and the Employers Liability Assurance Corporation, the insurer, would have to pay $20 per week for 375 weeks, a total of $7,500, beginning January 25, and $300 toward his funeral expenses.

NEW YORK, May 22 (AP)—The league-leading New York Yankees backed up Allie Reynolds' four-hit pitching today with an extra base barrage for a 6-1 victory over the St. Louis Browns.

Six of the nine hits exploded off Ned Garver, the Browns' ace, were for extra bases with first baseman Joe Collins blasting a triple and double. Bobby Brown contributed a triple and two singles. Yogi Berra hit his fifth home run.

Boston Red Sox Top Tigers, 6-3

BOSTON, May 22 (AP) — Catcher Les Moss, acquired only a week ago, broke the spell southpaw Ted Gray has cast on the Boston Red Sox today with a grandslam homer that overcame the Detroit Tigers, 6-3.

Gray, unbeaten by the Sockers since Aug. 5, 1949, dug his own grave in the seventh inning. Locked in a 2-2 tie, Gray passed two batters and saw the bases jammed because of an error. Then with two out, Moss homered over the left field screen.

Gray had faced the Red Sox seven times, three in relief, and had four decisions over them since they beat him two seasons ago.

Lefty Maury McDermott, reinstated as a starter only a few days ago, held the Tigers to seven hits. Box:

Scroggins Convicted In Cage Bribe Case

LOS ANGELES, May 22 (AP) — Albert R. Scroggins, ex-jockey's agent with a record of 30 arrests on bookmaking charges, was fined $3,500 today for trying to fix a championship basketball game between Southern California and UCLA.

He was convicted of attempting to bribe USC forward Ken Flower to throw a southern division Pacific Coast Conference title game for $1,500 last March 3. Flower's team beat the University of California at Los Angles 43-41.

Today Superior Judge Philip H. Richards said that although he wanted to crack down on fixing of college games, no money passed between Scroggins, 31, ex-paratrooper, and Flower. So the jurist imposed only a fine. He could have been sentenced to five years in prison.

However, if Scroggins cannot pay he must serve out the sentence at the rate of a day in jail for each $10.

Originaly Scroggins pleaded innocent because of insanity. After his conviction he asked for probation.

The district attorney's office, which investigated the case, said it found no connection between Scroggins and the New York bribery scandal.

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., May 22—Frostburg State Teachers College of Maryland eked out a 4-3 decision over the Penn State College freshmen baseball team here today in an overtime contest.

The game was originally set for seven innings but an extra stanza was necessitated when the Bobcats knotted the count at 3-3 in the top of the 6th.

In the 8th Best walked and Thuss was inserted to run for him. After one down, Sonnenburg advanced Thuss to third and after Dyer popped out, Birmingham's squeeze bunt sent Thuss over with the deciding tally.

Sonnenburg collected three of Frostburg's eight hits. Patton, of Penn State, tripled and doubled but was forced out of the game with a knee injury.

John Frank went the route for Coach Kenneth Babcock's team and threw the third strike past 11 batters.

Homestead Grays, Famed Negro Team, Gives Up Baseball

PITTSBURGH, May 22 (AP)—The once fabulous Homestead Grays, oldest negro baseball team, quit today.

Seward Posey, business manager, gave financial setbacks and the egress of the best negro talent into organized baseball as the reasons.

Posey said an attempt might be made to reorganize the team next year. He said the club lost $10,000 in 1950.

Last season, the Grays played in the Negro American Association Baseball League. Before that they were members of the Negro National Baseball League.

The late Cum Posey organized the team in 1910 and built it into a national attraction. In 1935, Cum joined forces with Rufus Jackson, two years after the Grays entered the Negro National League. In that circuit, the Grays won 10 straight pennants and the world title six times.

Enardo "Moose" Arnone tossed a two-hitter and struck out 14 batsmen yesterday as Beall High School extended its winning streak in the Bi-State Baseball Conference to nine games by whipping Hyndman High School to the tune of 4-1 at Beall High Field, Frostburg.

The victory was the Beall left hander's 8th of the season and his 15th consecutive over a two-year span in the circuit without a single setback. His 14 strikeout victims yesterday up his season total to 99, an average of 12 per game.

Arnone had a no-run, no-hit game to his credit until the final frame when Kreigline beat out a bunt and scored on Minnick's double to center.

Leo Brady rapped a double and triple and George Miller smacked a double and single and drove in two of the Mountaineers' four runs.

Sloan's Homer Wins

LaSalle High School's Explorers broke into the win column for the first time in the triangular city series by knocking off Fort Hill at North End to the tune of 8-1.

By winning the Explorers avenged a 9-6 setback at the hands of the Sentinels and squared the season series.

A grand slam homer by Jack Sloan in the first inning decided the issue. Jack hit for four bases with Briner, Farrell and Byrnes aboard. Five runs were racked up by LaSalle in the big opening frame.

Doug Connolly, LaSalle twirler, retired in order the first ten men to face him, held the Sentinels to six hits and struck out 11. Null, the 11th batter to face Connolly, singled and Cage drove him home with a triple for Fort Hill's lone tally of the game in the 4th frame.

Bill Briner of LaSalle and Cage led the swatsmiths with a triple and single each. Mike Cunningham's one-handed stab of a line drive which he converted into an unassisted double play was the fielding highlight.

Barton Wallops Ball

Barton High School made its record 5-5 for the season by tagging Central High of Lonaconing with an 18-6 defeat in a game played at Barton.

Coach Johnny Thomas' Braves larruped the pellet for 14 safeties while "Tim" Clark was holding the visitors in check after the second stanza.

Bill Kirk led Barton's stickers with a double and two singles while Kenneth Burt, the losing pitcher slammed a homer, triple and double for the Tigers. Tommy Kelly's running catch of Arnold Tichnell's long drive to center field was the fielding gem.

Bobby Raines struck out 15 batsmen to send his season total soaring to the 100 mark as Bruce High School whipped Allegany High at Westernport, 5 to 4.

Raines won his own game in the 5th inning when he singled to drive in the tying and winning runs during a three-run rally. Raines and Ronnie Sisk, Allegany twirler, turned in four-hit performances.

Raines has won six games and lost one.

Boston Red Sox Top Tigers, 6-3

BOSTON, May 22 (AP) — Catcher Les Moss, acquired only a week ago, broke the spell southpaw Ted Gray has cast on the Boston Red Sox today with a grandslam homer that overcame the Detroit Tigers, 6-3.

Gray, unbeaten by the Sockers since Aug. 5, 1949, dug his own grave in the seventh inning. Locked in a 2-2 tie, Gray passed two batters and saw the bases jammed because of an error. Then with two out, Moss homered over the left field screen.

Gray had faced the Red Sox seven times, three in relief, and had four decisions over them since they beat him two seasons ago.

Lefty Maury McDermott, reinstated as a starter only a few days ago, held the Tigers to seven hits. Box:

Coast Bookie Fined $3,500

Scroggins Convicted In Cage Bribe Case

LOS ANGELES, May 22 (AP) — Albert R. Scroggins, ex-jockey's agent with a record of 30 arrests on bookmaking charges, was fined $3,500 today for trying to fix a championship basketball game between Southern California and UCLA.

He was convicted of attempting to bribe USC forward Ken Flower to throw a southern division Pacific Coast Conference title game for $1,500 last March 3. Flower's team beat the University of California at Los Angles 43-41.

Today Superior Judge Philip H. Richards said that although he wanted to crack down on fixing of college games, no money passed between Scroggins, 31, ex-paratrooper, and Flower. So the jurist imposed only a fine. He could have been sentenced to five years in prison.

However, if Scroggins cannot pay he must serve out the sentence at the rate of a day in jail for each $10.

Originaly Scroggins pleaded innocent because of insanity. After his conviction he asked for probation.

The district attorney's office, which investigated the case, said it found no connection between Scroggins and the New York bribery scandal.

Homestead Grays, Famed Negro Team, Gives Up Baseball

PITTSBURGH, May 22 (AP)—The once fabulous Homestead Grays, oldest negro baseball team, quit today.

Seward Posey, business manager, gave financial setbacks and the egress of the best negro talent into organized baseball as the reasons.

Posey said an attempt might be made to reorganize the team next year. He said the club lost $10,000 in 1950.

Last season, the Grays played in the Negro American Association Baseball League. Before that they were members of the Negro National Baseball League.

The late Cum Posey organized the team in 1910 and built it into a national attraction. In 1935, Cum joined forces with Rufus Jackson, two years after the Grays entered the Negro National League. In that circuit, the Grays won 10 straight pennants and the world title six times.

Enardo "Moose" Arnone tossed a two-hitter and struck out 14 batsmen yesterday as Beall High School extended its winning streak in the Bi-State Baseball Conference to nine games by whipping Hyndman High School to the tune of 4-1 at Beall High Field, Frostburg.

The victory was the Beall left hander's 8th of the season and his 15th consecutive over a two-year span in the circuit without a single setback. His 14 strikeout victims yesterday up his season total to 99, an average of 12 per game.

Arnone had a no-run, no-hit game to his credit until the final frame when Kreigline beat out a bunt and scored on Minnick's double to center.

Leo Brady rapped a double and triple and George Miller smacked a double and single and drove in two of the Mountaineers' four runs.

Sloan's Homer Wins

LaSalle High School's Explorers broke into the win column for the first time in the triangular city series by knocking off Fort Hill at North End to the tune of 8-1.

By winning the Explorers avenged a 9-6 setback at the hands of the Sentinels and squared the season series.

A grand slam homer by Jack Sloan in the first inning decided the issue. Jack hit for four bases with Briner, Farrell and Byrnes aboard. Five runs were racked up by LaSalle in the big opening frame.

Doug Connolly, LaSalle twirler, retired in order the first ten men to face him, held the Sentinels to six hits and struck out 11. Null, the 11th batter to face Connolly, singled and Cage drove him home with a triple for Fort Hill's lone tally of the game in the 4th frame.

Bill Briner of LaSalle and Cage led the swatsmiths with a triple and single each. Mike Cunningham's one-handed stab of a line drive which he converted into an unassisted double play was the fielding highlight.

Barton Wallops Ball

Barton High School made its record 5-5 for the season by tagging Central High of Lonaconing with an 18-6 defeat in a game played at Barton.

Coach Johnny Thomas' Braves larruped the pellet for 14 safeties while "Tim" Clark was holding the visitors in check after the second stanza.

Bill Kirk led Barton's stickers with a double and two singles while Kenneth Burt, the losing pitcher slammed a homer, triple and double for the Tigers. Tommy Kelly's running catch of Arnold Tichnell's long drive to center field was the fielding gem.

Bobby Raines struck out 15 batsmen to send his season total soaring to the 100 mark as Bruce High School whipped Allegany High at Westernport, 5 to 4.

Raines won his own game in the 5th inning when he singled to drive in the tying and winning runs during a three-run rally. Raines and Ronnie Sisk, Allegany twirler, turned in four-hit performances.

Raines has won six games and lost one.

Boston Red Sox Top Tigers, 6-3

BOSTON, May 22 (AP) — Catcher Les Moss, acquired only a week ago, broke the spell southpaw Ted Gray has cast on the Boston Red Sox today with a grandslam homer that overcame the Detroit Tigers, 6-3.

Gray, unbeaten by the Sockers since Aug. 5, 1949, dug his own grave in the seventh inning. Locked in a 2-2 tie, Gray passed two batters and saw the bases jammed because of an error. Then with two out, Moss homered over the left field screen.

Gray had faced the Red Sox seven times, three in relief, and had four decisions over them since they beat him two seasons ago.

Lefty Maury McDermott, reinstated as a starter only a few days ago, held the Tigers to seven hits. Box:

Coast Bookie Fined $3,500

Scroggins Convicted In Cage Bribe Case

LOS ANGELES, May 22 (AP) — Albert R. Scroggins, ex-jockey's agent with a record of 30 arrests on bookmaking charges, was fined $3,500 today for trying to fix a championship basketball game between Southern California and UCLA.

He was convicted of attempting to bribe USC forward Ken Flower to throw a southern division Pacific Coast Conference title game for $1,500 last March 3. Flower's team beat the University of California at Los Angles 43-41.

Today Superior Judge Philip H. Richards said that although he wanted to crack down on fixing of college games, no money passed between Scroggins, 31, ex-paratrooper, and Flower. So the jurist imposed only a fine. He could have been sentenced to five years in prison.

However, if Scroggins cannot pay he must serve out the sentence at the rate of a day in jail for each $10.

Originaly Scroggins pleaded innocent because of insanity. After his conviction he asked for probation.

The district attorney's office, which investigated the case, said it found no connection between Scroggins and the New York bribery scandal.

Homestead Grays, Famed Negro Team, Gives Up Baseball

PITTSBURGH, May 22 (AP)—The once fabulous Homestead Grays, oldest negro baseball team, quit today.

Seward Posey, business manager, gave financial setbacks and the egress of the best negro talent into organized baseball as the reasons.

Posey said an attempt might be made to reorganize the team next year. He said the club lost $10,000 in 1950.

Last season, the Grays played in the Negro American Association Baseball League. Before that they were members of the Negro National Baseball League.

The late Cum Posey organized the team in 1910 and built it into a national attraction. In 1935, Cum joined forces with Rufus Jackson, two years after the Grays entered the Negro National League. In that circuit, the Grays won 10 straight pennants and the world title six times.

Enardo "Moose" Arnone tossed a two-hitter and struck out 14 batsmen yesterday as Beall High School extended its winning streak in the Bi-State Baseball Conference to nine games by whipping Hyndman High School to the tune of 4-1 at Beall High Field, Frostburg.

The victory was the Beall left hander's 8th of the season and his 15th consecutive over a two-year span in the circuit without a single setback. His 14 strikeout victims yesterday up his season total to 99, an average of 12 per game.

Arnone had a no-run, no-hit game to his credit until the final frame when Kreigline beat out a bunt and scored on Minnick's double to center.

Leo Brady rapped a double and triple and George Miller smacked a double and single and drove in two of the Mountaineers' four runs.

Sloan's Homer Wins

LaSalle High School's Explorers broke into the win column for the first time in the triangular city series by knocking off Fort Hill at North End to the tune of 8-1.

By winning the Explorers avenged a 9-6 setback at the hands of the Sentinels and squared the season series.

A grand slam homer by Jack Sloan in the first inning decided the issue. Jack hit for four bases with Briner, Farrell and Byrnes aboard. Five runs were racked up by LaSalle in the big opening frame.

Doug Connolly, LaSalle twirler, retired in order the first ten men to face him, held the Sentinels to six hits and struck out 11. Null, the 11th batter to face Connolly, singled and Cage drove him home with a triple for Fort Hill's lone tally of the game in the 4th frame.

Bill Briner of LaSalle and Cage led the swatsmiths with a triple and single each. Mike Cunningham's one-handed stab of a line drive which he converted into an unassisted double play was the fielding highlight.

Barton Wallops Ball

Barton High School made its record 5-5 for the season by tagging Central High of Lonaconing with an 18-6 defeat in a game played at Barton.

Coach Johnny Thomas' Braves larruped the pellet for 14 safeties while "Tim" Clark was holding the visitors in check after the second stanza.

Bill Kirk led Barton's stickers with a double and two singles while Kenneth Burt, the losing pitcher slammed a homer, triple and double for the Tigers. Tommy Kelly's running catch of Arnold Tichnell's long drive to center field was the fielding gem.

Bobby Raines struck out 15 batsmen to send his season total soaring to the 100 mark as Bruce High School whipped Allegany High at Westernport, 5 to 4.

Raines won his own game in the 5th inning when he singled to drive in the tying and winning runs during a three-run rally. Raines and Ronnie Sisk, Allegany twirler, turned in four-hit performances.

Raines has won six games and lost one.

13 Americans Win Matches In Britain

Chapman, Urzetta, Stranahan Advance In Amateur Golf

By THOMAS C. WATSON

PORTHCAWL, South Wales, May 22—(INS)—Thirteen Americans — including defending champion Frank Stranahan — swept through second-round matches today in the U. S.—dominated British Amateur Golf Tournament.

There appeared nothing unlucky in the number of Yankee survivors, for they encompassed almost the entire contingent of top-drawer American amateurs.

Seven statesiders were eliminated in today's second-round play in a driving rain, two at the hands of fellow-Americans and two by default. But the only major loss was that of Walker Cupper Harold Paddock of Cleveland.

Paddock was defeated by Graham Packer of South Africa, 3 and 2.

Along with Stranahan, United States amateur champion Sam Urzetta of Rochester, N. Y.; Dick Chapman of Pinehurst, N. C., the 1950 British runner-up, and former U. S. and British titleholder Willie Turnesa of White Plains, N. Y., advanced without mishap.

So did their Walker Cup teammates Bill Campbell of Huntington, W. Va., Jim McHale of Philadelphia, Charles Coe of Oklahoma City and Bob Knowles of Boston.

Knowles Forces Stranahan

Either Stranahan or Knowles must be eliminated tomorrow, however, in the morning round of 32 matches, for they are paired against each other. Knowles defeated Graham Knipe of Wales, 3 and 2, today while Bill Ebert of San Francisco conceded to Stranahan with the latter dormie seven up.

Another American who may not last through third round play is Dr. Nicholas N. Nicholas of Owensboro, Ky., a 4-and-2 conqueror today of Welshman Francis Watt. Nicholas is paired tomorrow with Joe Carr, veteran Irish internationalist, who is Britain's chief hope to thwart Yankee domination of the tournament.

Both Carr and another British Walker cupper, Alex Kyle, galloped through their matches today.

Urzetta Is 3-2 Winner

Urzetta — hoping for a "little slam" of amateur titles — expressed dissatisfaction with his play although he disposed of England's Steve Tredinnick, 3 and 2. Chapman downed P. M. Kelly, 3 and 1, and Turnesa defeated Argentina's Rudolfo Bullrich, 6 and 5.

Campbell eliminated Henry Howell, 50-year-old Welsh internationalist, 5 and 3; McHale defeated K. G. Patrick of Scotland, 6 and 5, and Coe trounced his fellow Sooner, George Coleman of Miami, Okla., 6 and 5.

Other Americans to triumph were Walker Cup alternate Francis (BO) Wininger, Pleasantville, N. J., 4 and 3, over C. D. Lawrie; Harreld Kirkpatrick, Owensboro, Ky., one up, over Jackson Taggert; E. E. Lowery, San Francisco, 3 and 2, over H. H. Palmer, and USAF Maj. W. D. Henderson of New York, one up, over K. W. Walker.

W. P. Scott, Jr., of San Francisco lost to Ralph Duncan, 4 and 2; Wilbur Muirhead of Scotland defeated Ted Bassett of Rye, N. Y., 4 and 3, and both Richard Gibson of Los Angeles and T. R. Garlington of Atlanta, Ga., defaulted.

BOWLING LEAGUE CHAMPIONS—Defeating the 11-7 Machinists by 200 pins and the Freight House by the margin of 140 sticks in the rolloffs, the Pipe Fitters, pictured above, won the championship of the Baltimore and Ohio CTP Bowling League for the 1950-51 season. The champs were honored at a recent banquet held at the Bowman's Addition Fire Hall. Members of the championship team, left to right, are: FIRST ROW—Gerald Athey, Joseph F. Screen and George D. Eury. 13 Americans Win Matches In Britain

By THOMAS C. WATSON

PORTHCAWL, South Wales, May 22—(INS)—Thirteen Americans — including defending champion Frank Stranahan — swept through second-round matches today in the U. S.—dominated British Amateur Golf Tournament.

There appeared nothing unlucky in the number of Yankee survivors, for they encompassed almost the entire contingent of top-drawer American amateurs.

Seven statesiders were eliminated in today's second-round play in a driving rain, two at the hands of fellow-Americans and two by default. But the only major loss was that of Walker Cupper Harold Paddock of Cleveland.

Paddock was defeated by Graham Packer of South Africa, 3 and 2.

Along with Stranahan, United States amateur champion Sam Urzetta of Rochester, N. Y.; Dick Chapman of Pinehurst, N. C., the 1950 British runner-up, and former U. S. and British titleholder Willie Turnesa of White Plains, N. Y., advanced without mishap.

So did their Walker Cup teammates Bill Campbell of Huntington, W. Va., Jim McHale of Philadelphia, Charles Coe of Oklahoma City and Bob Knowles of Boston.

Knowles Forces Stranahan

Either Stranahan or Knowles must be eliminated tomorrow, however, in the morning round of 32 matches, for they are paired against each other. Knowles defeated Graham Knipe of Wales, 3 and 2, today while Bill Ebert of San Francisco conceded to Stranahan with the latter dormie seven up.

Another American who may not last through third round play is Dr. Nicholas N. Nicholas of Owensboro, Ky., a 4-and-2 conqueror today of Welshman Francis Watt. Nicholas is paired tomorrow with Joe Carr, veteran Irish internationalist, who is Britain's chief hope to thwart Yankee domination of the tournament.

Both Carr and another British Walker cupper, Alex Kyle, galloped through their matches today.

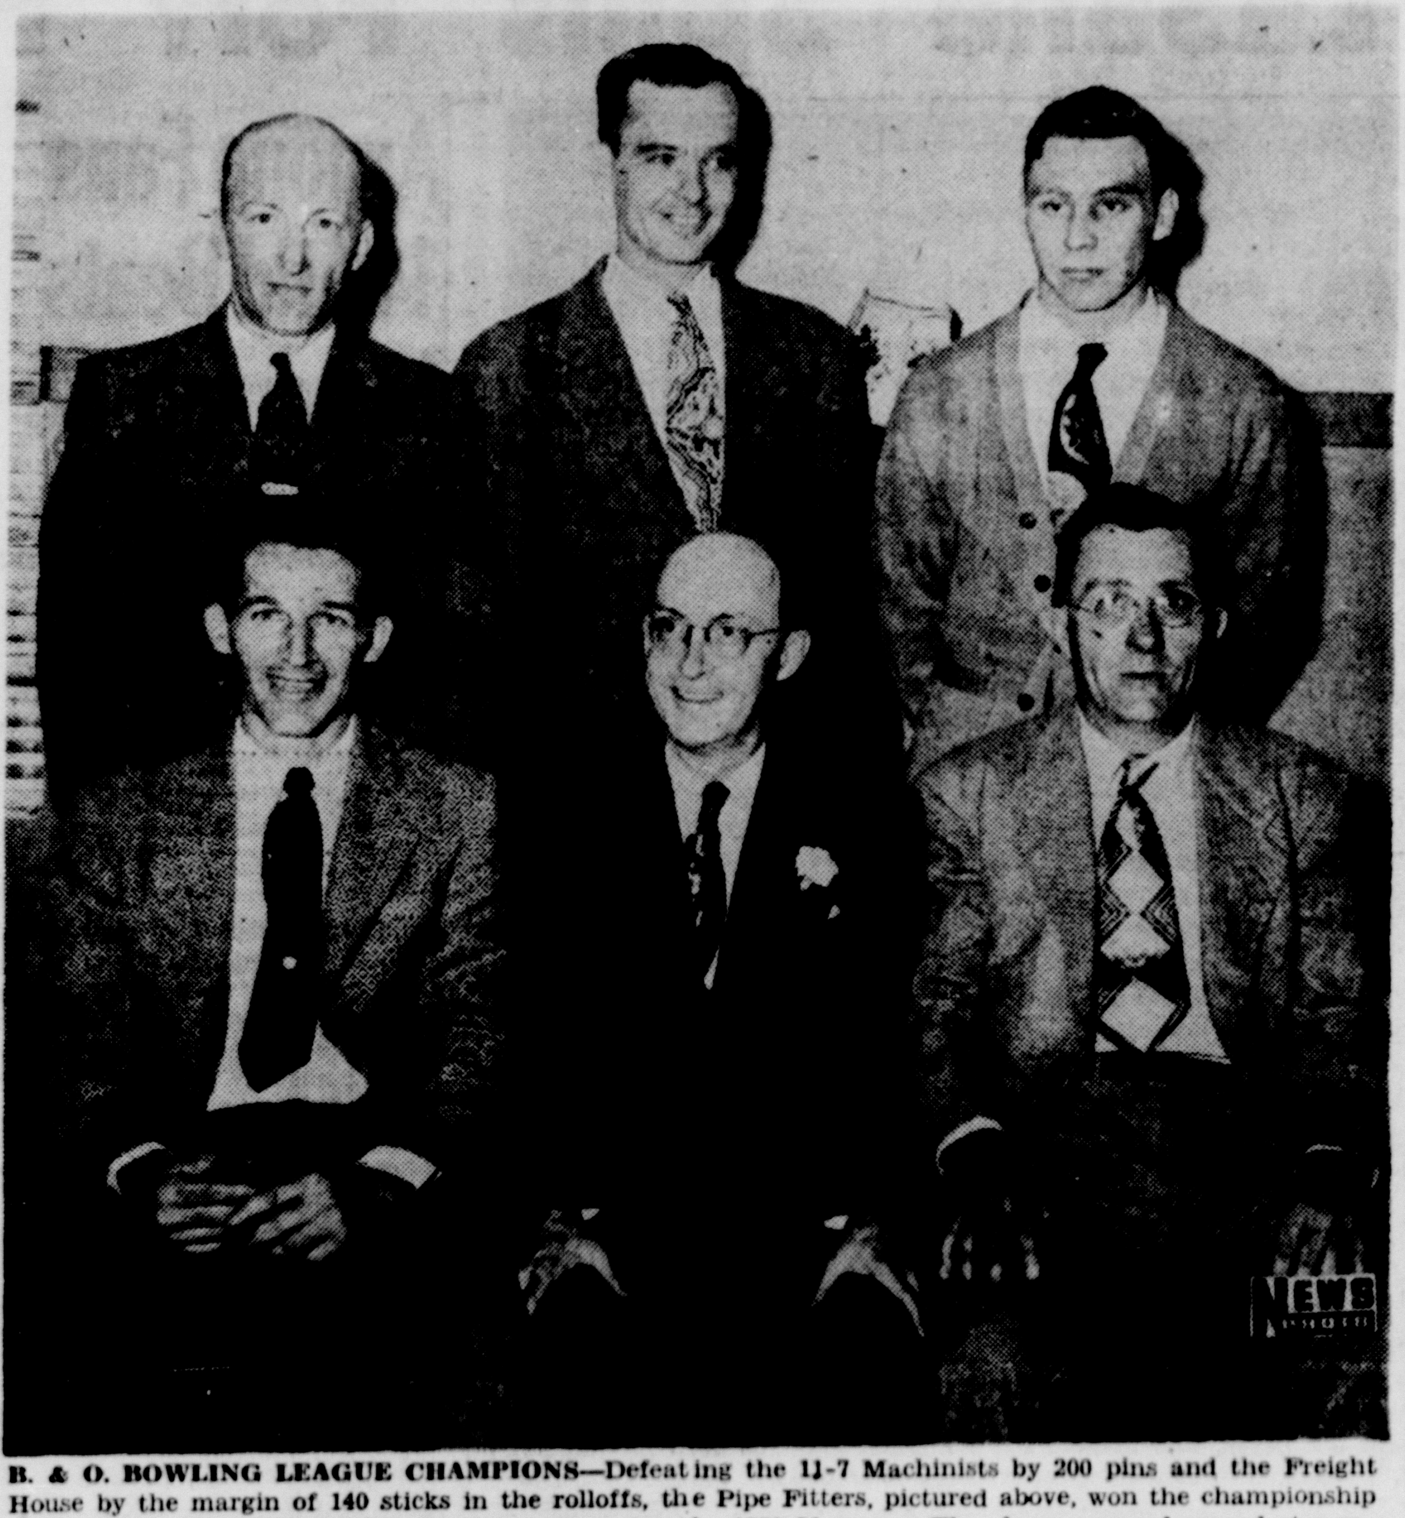
Urzetta Is 3-2 Winner

Urzetta — hoping for a "little slam" of amateur titles — expressed dissatisfaction with his play although he disposed of England's Steve Tredinnick, 3 and 2. Chapman downed P. M. Kelly, 3 and 1, and Turnesa defeated Argentina's Rudolfo Bullrich, 6 and 5.

Campbell eliminated Henry Howell, 50-year-old Welsh internationalist, 5 and 3; McHale defeated K. G. Patrick of Scotland, 6 and 5, and Coe trounced his fellow Sooner, George Coleman of Miami, Okla., 6 and 5.

Other Americans to triumph were Walker Cup alternate Francis (BO) Wininger, Pleasantville, N. J., 4 and 3, over C. D. Lawrie; Harreld Kirkpatrick, Owensboro, Ky., one up, over Jackson Taggert; E. E. Lowery, San Francisco, 3 and 2, over H. H. Palmer, and USAF Maj. W. D. Henderson of New York, one up, over K. W. Walker.

W. P. Scott, Jr., of San Francisco lost to Ralph Duncan, 4 and 2; Wilbur Muirhead of Scotland defeated Ted Bassett of Rye, N. Y., 4 and 3, and both Richard Gibson of Los Angeles and T. R. Garlington of Atlanta, Ga., defaulted.



B. & O. BOWLING LEAGUE CHAMPIONS—Defeating the 11-7 Machinists by 200 pins and the Freight House by the margin of 140 sticks in the rolloffs, the Pipe Fitters, pictured above, won the championship of the Baltimore and Ohio CTP Bowling League for the 1950-51 season. The champs were honored at a recent banquet held at the Bowman's Addition Fire Hall. Members of the championship team, left to right, are: FIRST ROW—Gerald Athey, Joseph F. Screen and George D. Eury. SECOND ROW—A. E. Burner, John A. Bender and Jack Hill.

British Netmen Beat France, 3-2

Mottram's Singles Win Decides Series

LONDON, May 22 (AP) — Tony Mottam, England's veteran tennis ace, defeated France's Paul Remy, 6-2, 6-4, 6-4, today to give his country a 3-2 victory over France in the second round of the European zone Davis Cup competition.

Mottram's decisive triumph was scored in the first of the final two singles matches today. It gave England a 3-1 edge and reduced the final match to a formality.

England then substituted Paddy Roberts for Geoff Paish in the final match to give the youngster some cup experience. He put up a great battle before bowing to Bernard Destremau, a veteran Internationalist, in a five-set marathon, 7-5, 6-2, 6-8, 3-6, 6-3.

England will meet the crack Swedish team in the quarter-final round. That round must be completed by June 19.

Other quarter-final pairings:

Italy vs Poland; Germany vs Belgium; and the Philippines vs The Netherlands.

SPORTS GRILL

NEW YORK, May 22 (INS)—Ed Lopat, the Yanks' veteran lefthander who has already hung up seven straight victories without defeat, calls the Indians his cousins.

And, as you know, a cousin in baseball parlance, is a soft touch.

Ed's control over the Cleveland club is amazing. He has beaten the Indians eleven straight times and in the last eight years his record against them is 30 victories wth only six defeats.

Ed figures if he had only Cleveland to pitch against he might be a cinch to make the Hall of Fame. But he insists there is no mystery about his dominance over the Indians, and adds:

"At first I got a few good breaks in beating them. Then they probably began to worry and think they couldn't beat me and began pressing too hard. Meanwhile, my own confidence grew and, of course, I think I know how to pitch to them."

There have been scores of famous cousins in the game. One year when Babe Ruth was in his prime, Doc Pruett, an ordinary lefty with the Browns, fanned the mighty Babe 13 times in a row. It got to be quite a joke for everybody but Babe, especially when the pitcher would tell Babe he was going to fan him on a screwball and then make good on the promise.

But one day Babe hit that screwball out of the lot and that was the end of the jinx.

It works the other way, too. Doc Gautreau, one of the smallest players who ever made the majors, used to hit Dazzy Vance with the greatest of ease although he couldn't hit anybody else.

If Gautreau had nobody but Vance to hit against he would have set an all-time slugging record. The Gautreau jinx was never a mystery to Dazzy who explained it this way:

"He's so darn short I have to let up on my pitch to get the ball over and when I do he conks it."

The most famous of all jinxes was the one Carl Mays, the Red Sox and Yankee hurler, held over the Athletics. He trimmed them 21 straight times. And when he moved over to the National League his sway over the Phillies was almost as good.

Harry Coveleskie was only an ordinary pitcher against all clubs except the Giants but facing them he was a wonder. He once drove the late John McGraw into a rage by pitching out of turn to beat the Giants out of a pennant.

Carl Hubbell was a master lefty but he would never have made the Hall of Fame if he had to pitch always against the Dodgers who beat him with great regularity.

On the other hand, Freddy Fitzsimmons, now coaching the Giants, had only to toss in his glove and the Dodgers were licked.

Tommy Byrne, the Yanks' wild lefthander, has a tough time beating anybody except the Tigers against whom his over-all mark is 12 victories against four defeats.

These jinxes are often hard to explain. But they do exist. Any great hiter will tell you of some paluka pitcher he can't hit and any star pitcher can tell you of some .186 hitter he can't get out.

When Chicago White Sox rookie outfielder, Jim Busby, was in the Army he was selected as the most valuable player on the Camp Hood baseball team.

British Netmen Beat France, 3-2

Mottram's Singles Win Decides Series

LONDON, May 22 (AP) — Tony Mottam, England's veteran tennis ace, defeated France's Paul Remy, 6-2, 6-4, 6-4, today to give his country a 3-2 victory over France in the second round of the European zone Davis Cup competition.

Mottram's decisive triumph was scored in the first of the final two singles matches today. It gave England a 3-1 edge and reduced the final match to a formality.

England then substituted Paddy Roberts for Geoff Paish in the final match to give the youngster some cup experience. He put up a great battle before bowing to Bernard Destremau, a veteran Internationalist, in a five-set marathon, 7-5, 6-2, 6-8, 3-6, 6-3.

England will meet the crack Swedish team in the quarter-final round. That round must be completed by June 19.

Other quarter-final pairings:

SPORTS GRILL

by

Pat Robinson

International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK, May 22 (INS)—Ed Lopat, the Yanks' veteran lefthander who has already hung up seven straight victories without defeat, calls the Indians his cousins.

And, as you know, a cousin in baseball parlance, is a soft touch.

Ed's control over the Cleveland club is amazing. He has beaten the Indians eleven straight times and in the last eight years his record against them is 30 victories wth only six defeats.

Ed figures if he had only Cleveland to pitch against he might be a cinch to make the Hall of Fame. But he insists there is no mystery about his dominance over the Indians, and adds:

"At first I got a few good breaks in beating them. Then they probably began to worry and think they couldn't beat me and began pressing too hard. Meanwhile, my own confidence grew and, of course, I think I know how to pitch to them."

There have been scores of famous cousins in the game. One year when Babe Ruth was in his prime, Doc Pruett, an ordinary lefty with the Browns, fanned the mighty Babe 13 times in a row. It got to be quite a joke for everybody but Babe, especially when the pitcher would tell Babe he was going to fan him on a screwball and then make good on the promise.

But one day Babe hit that screwball out of the lot and that was the end of the jinx.

It works the other way, too. Doc Gautreau, one of the smallest players who ever made the majors, used to hit Dazzy Vance with the greatest of ease although he couldn't hit anybody else.

If Gautreau had nobody but Vance to hit against he would have set an all-time slugging record. The Gautreau jinx was never a mystery to Dazzy who explained it this way:

"He's so darn short I have to let up on my pitch to get the ball over and when I do he conks it."

The most famous of all jinxes was the one Carl Mays, the Red Sox and Yankee hurler, held over the Athletics. He trimmed them 21 straight times. And when he moved over to the National League his sway over the Phillies was almost as good.

Harry Coveleskie was only an ordinary pitcher against all clubs except the Giants but facing them he was a wonder. He once drove the late John McGraw into a rage by pitching out of turn to beat the Giants out of a pennant.

Carl Hubbell was a master lefty but he would never have made the Hall of Fame if he had to pitch always against the Dodgers who beat him with great regularity.

On the other hand, Freddy Fitzsimmons, now coaching the Giants, had only to toss in his glove and the Dodgers were licked.

Tommy Byrne, the Yanks' wild lefthander, has a tough time beating anybody except the Tigers against whom his over-all mark is 12 victories against four defeats.

These jinxes are often hard to explain. But they do exist. Any great hiter will tell you of some paluka pitcher he can't hit and any star pitcher can tell you of some .186 hitter he can't get out.

When Chicago White Sox rookie outfielder, Jim Busby, was in the Army he was selected as the most valuable player on the Camp Hood baseball team.

British Netmen Beat France, 3-2

Mottram's Singles Win Decides Series

LONDON, May 22 (AP) — Tony Mottam, England's veteran tennis ace, defeated France's Paul Remy, 6-2, 6-4, 6-4, today to give his country a 3-2 victory over France in the second round of the European zone Davis Cup competition.

Mottram's decisive triumph was scored in the first of the final two singles matches today. It gave England a 3-1 edge and reduced the final match to a formality.

England then substituted Paddy Roberts for Geoff Paish in the final match to give the youngster some cup experience. He put up a great battle before bowing to Bernard Destremau, a veteran Internationalist, in a five-set marathon, 7-5, 6-2, 6-8, 3-6, 6-3.

England will meet the crack Swedish team in the quarter-final round. That round must be completed by June 19.

Other quarter-final pairings:

Italy vs Poland; Germany vs Belgium; and the Philippines vs The Netherlands.

SPORTS GRILL

by

Pat Robinson

International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK, May 22 (INS)—Ed Lopat, the Yanks' veteran lefthander who has already hung up seven straight victories without defeat, calls the Indians his cousins.

And, as you know, a cousin in baseball parlance, is a soft touch.

Ed's control over the Cleveland club is amazing. He has beaten the Indians eleven straight times and in the last eight years his record against them is 30 victories wth only six defeats.

Ed figures if he had only Cleveland to pitch against he might be a cinch to make the Hall of Fame. But he insists there is no mystery about his dominance over the Indians, and adds:

"At first I got a few good breaks in beating them. Then they probably began to worry and think they couldn't beat me and began pressing too hard. Meanwhile, my own confidence grew and, of course, I think I know how to pitch to them."

There have been scores of famous cousins in the game. One year when Babe Ruth was in his prime, Doc Pruett, an ordinary lefty with the Browns, fanned the mighty Babe 13 times in a row. It got to be quite a joke for everybody but Babe, especially when the pitcher would tell Babe he was going to fan him on a screwball and then make good on the promise.

But one day Babe hit that screwball out of the lot and that was the end of the jinx.

It works the other way, too. Doc Gautreau, one of the smallest players who ever made the majors, used to hit Dazzy Vance with the greatest of ease although he couldn't hit anybody else.

If Gautreau had nobody but Vance to hit against he would have set an all-time slugging record. The Gautreau jinx was never a mystery to Dazzy who explained it this way:

"He's so darn short I have to let up on my pitch to get the ball over and when I do he conks it."

The most famous of all jinxes was the one Carl Mays, the Red Sox and Yankee hurler, held over the Athletics. He trimmed them 21 straight times. And when he moved over to the National League his sway over the Phillies was almost as good.

Harry Coveleskie was only an ordinary pitcher against all clubs except the Giants but facing them he was a wonder. He once drove the late John McGraw into a rage by pitching out of turn to beat the Giants out of a pennant.

Carl Hubbell was a master lefty but he would never have made the Hall of Fame if he had to pitch always against the Dodgers who beat him with great regularity.

On the other hand, Freddy Fitzsimmons, now coaching the Giants, had only to toss in his glove and the Dodgers were licked.

Tommy Byrne, the Yanks' wild lefthander, has a tough time beating anybody except the Tigers against whom his over-all mark is 12 victories against four defeats.

These jinxes are often hard to explain. But they do exist. Any great hiter will tell you of some paluka pitcher he can't hit and any star pitcher can tell you of some .186 hitter he can't get out.

When Chicago White Sox rookie outfielder, Jim Busby, was in the Army he was selected as the most valuable player on the Camp Hood baseball team.

state agency would be ill-advised particularly at this time when a study of the State Government and its departments, bureaus and agencies is being launched by the Sobeloff Commission.

"I believe the proposed new agency would invade the realms of responsibility and duplicate much of the work of the state subdivisions, the public schools, the churches, the departments of recreation, the departments of public welfare, various private and semi-public organizations, and other agencies that are now functioning."

During the past year seven major projects had been developed for Youth Commission action. First of these was in immediate organized community effort to enable all children of ages 3, 7, 10 and 13 to receive the benfits of topical application of sodium fluoride as a proved measure for the partial prevention of dental decay. A second project was a concentrated effort toward development of resources for family counseling. Another was that testing and counseling facilities be expanded by the Employment Service Division of the Department of Employment Security to include youth 14 and 15 years of age.

Population Problem

Listed as another Youth Commission project was a campaign of information to have parents and citizens generally realize the extent of the unprecedented growth in school population facing the state in the next 10 to 15 years, calling for unusual effort to provide enough buildings and supply enough teachers to meet the need.

Cited as another program for the Youth Commission was special attention to the state-wide need for institutional care of children over 12 years old, now excluded from admission to many children's institutions.

Other recommendations were stimulated lay interest and participation in planning on a local level in order to establish services which will preserve family life and a need for continuation of the Recreation Committee of the State Youth Advisory Committee to stimulate and implement recreational programs by giving consideration to recreation as it affects the welfare of the people as a whole.

The Central Young Men's Christian Association asks you to become a sustaining member to help further the work among the youth of this community.
Some of the Ways Your "Y" Builds a Foundation for Citizenship . . .

It trains young people in health and physical fitness
Health is a pre-requisite to good citizenship. Stalwart bodies kept in fine conditions are the result of YMCA training. In gymnasium, swimming pool and special exercise room this training goes on day after day throughout the year.

It gives young people the chance to belong to a group
The best training for democratic citizenship is practical experience in small self-governing groups. In Y clubs, committees and councils, youth learns to accept responsibility and assume leadership.

It provides wholesome social and recreational experience
Friendships and fun developed under right conditions are a powerful antidote for juvenile crime and resentment against society. Hundreds of young people have developed right habits of recreation and social skills to give them assurance and poise at the Y.

It provides clean, inexpensive housing for young men away from home
The Y dormitory has been a "home away from home" for thousands of men, among whom are some of our most prominent citizens. Nothing is more important to the future citizenship of the young stranger in town than the right place to stay.

It served in 1950 a total of 2,862 different members who participated regularly in the Y's year around program.
Of these members 247 youngsters received complimentary memberships.

It provides experience in sports and athletics
Many prominent athletes played on their first teams in YMCA's. The Y provides sports competition for many young people in their leisure time. The values of clean athletics carry over as these young people take their places in the games of life. The Y gave an outlet for that competitive urge.

It arranges forums, discussions and citizenship classes where young people may share ideas and learn responsibility
In Y club meetings, conferences, forums, citizenship classes and marriage classes, the opportunity to " have one's say" is encouraged. Young people are not only taught good principles of citizenship by leaders and speakers but they have a chance to raise questions and have them answered.

It provides facilities for the constructive use of leisure time for community groups
The 'Y' besides its own program, offers its facilities to many community groups.

It provides opportunity for practical citizenship in its Youth and Government program
The 1950 Boy-Governor of Maryland was John Diuguid of the Allegany Hi-Y Club. John was selected as an official delegate of the National YMCA to the Mid-Century White House Conference.

It operated on a budget of $51,690.43 of this amount $16,104.17 was received from the Cumberland Community Chest.

The Central Young Men's Christian Association asks you to become a sustaining member to help further the work among the youth of this community. Some of the Ways Your "Y" Builds a Foundation for Citizenship . . .

It trains young people in health and physical fitness

Health is a pre-requisite to good citizenship. Stalwart bodies kept in fine conditions are the result of YMCA training. In gymnasium, swimming pool and special exercise room this training goes on day after day throughout the year.

It gives young people the chance to belong to a group

The best training for democratic citizenship is practical experience in small self-governing groups. In Y clubs, committees and councils, youth learns to accept responsibility and assume leadership.

It provides wholesome social and recreational experience

Friendships and fun developed under right conditions are a powerful antidote for juvenile crime and resentment against society. Hundreds of young people have developed right habits of recreation and social skills to give them assurance and poise at the Y.

It provides clean, inexpensive housing for young men away from home

The Y dormitory has been a "home away from home" for thousands of men, among whom are some of our most prominent citizens. Nothing is more important to the future citizenship of the young stranger in town than the right place to stay.

It served in 1950 a total of 2,862 different members who participated regularly in the Y's year around program.

Of these members 247 youngsters received complimentary memberships.

It provides experience in sports and athletics

Many prominent athletes played on their first teams in YMCA's. The Y provides sports competition for many young people in their leisure time. The values of clean athletics carry over as these young people take their places in the games of life. The Y gave an outlet for that competitive urge.

It arranges forums, discussions and citizenship classes where young people may share ideas and learn responsibility

In Y club meetings, conferences, forums, citizenship classes and marriage classes, the opportunity to " have one's say" is encouraged. Young people are not only taught good principles of citizenship by leaders and speakers but they have a chance to raise questions and have them answered.

It provides facilities for the constructive use of leisure time for community groups

The 'Y' besides its own program, offers its facilities to many community groups.

It provides opportunity for practical citizenship in its Youth and Government program

The 1950 Boy-Governor of Maryland was John Diuguid of the Allegany Hi-Y Club. John was selected as an official delegate of the National YMCA to the Mid-Century White House Conference.

It operated on a budget of $51,690.43 of this amount $16,104.17 was received from the Cumberland Community Chest.

state agency would be ill-advised particularly at this time when a study of the State Government and its departments, bureaus and agencies is being launched by the Sobeloff Commission.

"I believe the proposed new agency would invade the realms of responsibility and duplicate much of the work of the state subdivisions, the public schools, the churches, the departments of recreation, the departments of public welfare, various private and semi-public organizations, and other agencies that are now functioning."

During the past year seven major projects had been developed for Youth Commission action. First of these was in immediate organized community effort to enable all children of ages 3, 7, 10 and 13 to receive the benfits of topical application of sodium fluoride as a proved measure for the partial prevention of dental decay. A second project was a concentrated effort toward development of resources for family counseling. Another was that testing and counseling facilities be expanded by the Employment Service Division of the Department of Employment Security to include youth 14 and 15 years of age.

Population Problem

Listed as another Youth Commission project was a campaign of information to have parents and citizens generally realize the extent of the unprecedented growth in school population facing the state in the next 10 to 15 years, calling for unusual effort to provide enough buildings and supply enough teachers to meet the need.

Cited as another program for the Youth Commission was special attention to the state-wide need for institutional care of children over 12 years old, now excluded from admission to many children's institutions.

Other recommendations were stimulated lay interest and participation in planning on a local level in order to establish services which will preserve family life and a need for continuation of the Recreation Committee of the State Youth Advisory Committee to stimulate and implement recreational programs by giving consideration to recreation as it affects the welfare of the people as a whole.

Blow At Fair Trade Laws Unlikely To Save Average Shopper Money

(By The Associated Press)

The U. S. Supreme Court's blow at fair trade laws in 45 states apparently won't save the average shopper any money—at least for some time to come.

There were hints of price wars in liquor and drugs in some areas. A liquor distributor in New Orleans commented:

"The lid's off. Here we go."

And the attorney general of Wisconsin, Vernon Thomson, said the court's decision will have a "tremendous effect" on business practices there. He didn't go into detail, however.

Most merchants didn't seem very concerned for a number of reasons.

The Supreme Court said a merchant who has not signed a fair trade agreement can charge what he wants to for what he sells.

But the decision apparently does not affect merchants who have signed fair trade agreements covering goods that are sold nationally. Nor, apparently, does it affect the sale under fair trade laws of goods that originate and are sold in one state only.

And if a merchant wants to start cutting prices on nationally advertised goods, what's to prevent the manufacturer from just refusing to supply him with products for cut price sale?

Moreover, trade sources also pointed out, merchants aren't anxious to start price wars these days, when most of them are under federal price control, or threatened with it.

By states, here are some of the first reactions to the Supreme Court decision:

Kentucky — One liquor dealer plans to "start cutting prices right away." But others don't think the court decision will have much effect.

Maryland—Hillard Donner, a cut-rate liquor dealer at Annapolis, says he's going back to selling at lower prices. He was fined $1,500 for doing just that under fair trade law.

ON THE LINE

By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK — (INS) — Leonard Lyons, the Broadway columnist, recently printed a number of items dealing with the Rosenbergs, convicted atomic spies, suggesting that they could still save themselves from the chair if they implicated now unknown confederates.

The accounts appeared at a time when the attorney for Mrs. Rosenberg was attempting to have her removed from the death house at Sing Sing, on the ground that it is inhuman to keep a convicted person there pending appeal.

The attorney saw fuel for his fire in Lyons' comments, and charged before Judge Knox in Federal Court that the items had been planted by government men seeking to break down the iron composure of the convicted spies.

Lyons was given an opportunity to appear in court to deny that he was serving as an agent of the government in this case. The Rosenberg attorney then asked that Lyons be directed by the court to reveal the source of his items.

The newspaperman refused, through his attorney, Rudolph Halley, late of the Kefauver committee, and Judge Knox took the matter under advisement — to ponder whether this constituted contempt. The judge's illness, and the government's reluctance to press for a contempt charge in a highly controversial matter, have caused a pigeonholing of the case for the time being.

• — • — •

Lyons, who is an attorney, tells me that he is willing to offer himself as the guinea pig in a showdown, though he is fully aware that by doing so he would risk a fine and imprisonment. This has caused some amusement in the lightweight field of letters, but Lyons himself is not joining in the merriment. It's a serious crusade with him.

The case has served to straighten out a widespread misconception of the law. It has been commonly believed for a long time that the Peter Zenger trial of Revolutionary times established for all time the rights of newsmen to shield their sources.

Zenger's case involved only the right and duty of a newspaper to print the truth, though it might hurt the politicos currently in power. The question of source-revealing played no role in that historic precedent.

Irving Saypol, the brilliant U. S. attorney who prosecuted the Rosenbergs and who would be called upon to prosecute his friend Lyons if the court held Lyons in contempt, informs me that there is no federal code excusing a newspaperman from identifying his informants in a contested story.

Three of the 48 states, Saypol says, have such laws—but none of the three in New York. In the absence of a New York state law, Lyons must rest his case on the federal government's immunity laws now extended only to clergymen, doctors and lawyers. Those are the only groups specifically entitled to shield the names of their confidants. The law upholds the anonymity of the confessional, that of patients, and of clients.

"I'm sorry the whole thing came up," Saypol told me. "But if I'm directed to go through with it, I will, of course. And like every other case I've worked on, I'll play it right down the middle."

Saypol denies that he or anyone in his office planted the teasers in Lyons' column.

In the meantime, Mrs. Rosenberg remains in the death house. And Lyons, unfairly introduced into the case for printing what must be apparent to all (the willingness of the government to commute the Rosenberg death sentence to long prison terms if they help it solve other phases of the atomic spying conspiracy) is dead game on the question of improving the position of the newsmen in court, though his liberty is at stake.

Blow At Fair Trade Laws Unlikely To Save Average Shopper Money

(By The Associated Press)

The U. S. Supreme Court's blow at fair trade laws in 45 states apparently won't save the average shopper any money—at least for some time to come.

There were hints of price wars in liquor and drugs in some areas. A liquor distributor in New Orleans commented:

"The lid's off. Here we go."

And the attorney general of Wisconsin, Vernon Thomson, said the court's decision will have a "tremendous effect" on business practices there. He didn't go into detail, however.

Most merchants didn't seem very concerned for a number of reasons.

The Supreme Court said a merchant who has not signed a fair trade agreement can charge what he wants to for what he sells.

But the decision apparently does not affect merchants who have signed fair trade agreements covering goods that are sold nationally. Nor, apparently, does it affect the sale under fair trade laws of goods that originate and are sold in one state only.

And if a merchant wants to start cutting prices on nationally advertised goods, what's to prevent the manufacturer from just refusing to supply him with products for cut price sale?

Moreover, trade sources also pointed out, merchants aren't anxious to start price wars these days, when most of them are under federal price control, or threatened with it.

By states, here are some of the first reactions to the Supreme Court decision:

Kentucky — One liquor dealer plans to "start cutting prices right away." But others don't think the court decision will have much effect.

Maryland—Hillard Donner, a cut-rate liquor dealer at Annapolis, says he's going back to selling at lower prices. He was fined $1,500 for doing just that under fair trade law.

ON THE LINE

By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK — (INS) — Leonard Lyons, the Broadway columnist, recently printed a number of items dealing with the Rosenbergs, convicted atomic spies, suggesting that they could still save themselves from the chair if they implicated now unknown confederates.

The accounts appeared at a time when the attorney for Mrs. Rosenberg was attempting to have her removed from the death house at Sing Sing, on the ground that it is inhuman to keep a convicted person there pending appeal.

The attorney saw fuel for his fire in Lyons' comments, and charged before Judge Knox in Federal Court that the items had been planted by government men seeking to break down the iron composure of the convicted spies.

Lyons was given an opportunity to appear in court to deny that he was serving as an agent of the government in this case. The Rosenberg attorney then asked that Lyons be directed by the court to reveal the source of his items.

The newspaperman refused, through his attorney, Rudolph Halley, late of the Kefauver committee, and Judge Knox took the matter under advisement — to ponder whether this constituted contempt. The judge's illness, and the government's reluctance to press for a contempt charge in a highly controversial matter, have caused a pigeonholing of the case for the time being.

Lyons, who is an attorney, tells me that he is willing to offer himself as the guinea pig in a showdown, though he is fully aware that by doing so he would risk a fine and imprisonment. This has caused some amusement in the lightweight field of letters, but Lyons himself is not joining in the merriment. It's a serious crusade with him.

The case has served to straighten out a widespread misconception of the law. It has been commonly believed for a long time that the Peter Zenger trial of Revolutionary times established for all time the rights of newsmen to shield their sources.

Zenger's case involved only the right and duty of a newspaper to print the truth, though it might hurt the politicos currently in power. The question of source-revealing played no role in that historic precedent.

Irving Saypol, the brilliant U. S. attorney who prosecuted the Rosenbergs and who would be called upon to prosecute his friend Lyons if the court held Lyons in contempt, informs me that there is no federal code excusing a newspaperman from identifying his informants in a contested story.

Three of the 48 states, Saypol says, have such laws—but none of the three in New York. In the absence of a New York state law, Lyons must rest his case on the federal government's immunity laws now extended only to clergymen, doctors and lawyers. Those are the only groups specifically entitled to shield the names of their confidants. The law upholds the anonymity of the confessional, that of patients, and of clients.

"I'm sorry the whole thing came up," Saypol told me. "But if I'm directed to go through with it, I will, of course. And like every other case I've worked on, I'll play it right down the middle."

Saypol denies that he or anyone in his office planted the teasers in Lyons' column.

In the meantime, Mrs. Rosenberg remains in the death house. And Lyons, unfairly introduced into the case for printing what must be apparent to all (the willingness of the government to commute the Rosenberg death sentence to long prison terms if they help it solve other phases of the atomic spying conspiracy) is dead game on the question of improving the position of the newsmen in court, though his liberty is at stake.

Westernport To Give Vacations To Employes

WESTERNPORT — The employes of the Town of Westernport will be given a vacation. Those employed by the town for one fiscal year will be given one week of vacation and those employed for five years of uninterrupted employment, two weeks.

In the provision passed by Mayor George P. Kight and Commissioners Monday night, an employe must have worked at least 250 days during the year.

Headsville Man Is Seminary Graduate

Howard Ray Hall, Headsville, in Mineral County, W.Va., was one of 23 ministerial students who received degrees and diplomas yesterday at the 68th commencement exercises of Westminster Theological Seminary in Westminster.

The seminary is associated with but not actually a part of Western Maryland College. It is supported and administered by the Methodist Church. Bishop Lloyd C. Wicke, Methodist bishop of Pittsburgh, Pa., was the principal commencement speaker.

Westernport To Give Vacations To Employes

WESTERNPORT—The employes of the Town of Westernport will be given a vacation. Those employed by the town for one fiscal year will be given one week of vacation and those employed for five years of uninterrupted employment, two weeks.

In the provision passed by Mayor George P. Kight and Commissioners Monday night, an employe must have worked at least 250 days during the year.

It was ordered that a parking meter be placed opposite the Westernport post office. The meter sometime ago was removed, permitting 15 minutes free parking at the post office to transact business, but city officials decided that it has not aided the parking problem.

William Brashear conferred with city officials relative to purchase the new weighting scales the town has ordered or to buy and operate the old ones. After some discussion, it was decided he would inspect the old scales and buy them if they could agree on a price.

KEEPING UP WITH HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, May 22, (INS)—Judy Garland will make a picture for Alexander Paal in London. If Paal can get the rights to "Kiss Me, Kate" he will make it in technicolor with Judy in the Patricia Morison role. Judy will then remain right in London and start the picture in July. But if there is a delay in obtaining the rights she'll come to Hollywood, returning to England later.

Judy Garland

Meanwhile, David Shelley, whose mother is Mrs. Marie Shelley De Sylva, has written a musical based on the life of Bud De Sylva. He hopes to get Judy and Bing Crosby for the leading roles. Whether or not he's able to accomplish this is another matter.

Young John Barrymore, Jr., is thrilled that he is to co-star with his Aunt Ethel Barrymore in "Cattle Dust," a western in which Ethel, believe it or not, will brand cattle. John, Jr. is working hard to finish his current movie "The Big Night," so that he and his Aunt Ethel will be able to leave for location in Texas in early June.

Their producer George Templeton, told me today that he is hopeful of getting Joel McCrea for the third starring part.

Ethel said today that she is pleased John, Jr. will have the added experience of the stage play, "Hasty Heart," which he is doing in eastern summer stock with her daughter. She said the boy looks very much like his father, her brother John, did at this age.

Carmen Figueroa flew into town from Mexico City in five hours, just filled with news, excitement and happiness. She's here to attend to some business for her mother, and, of course, to go to a thousand or more parties.

She told me that Mrs. William O'Dwyer, wife of the American ambassador, has taken over Mexico, that they're all crazy about her. She's learned to speak Spanish and she has so much sparkle and such beauty.

She says Hedy Lamarr has been at Acapulco and has been introduced by Ted Stauffer, former orchestra leader. Stauffer, remember, once escorted Rita Hayworth about in Mexico.

Carmen said that A. C. (Blumley) Blumenthal is about to head a new hotel which has the backing of some wealthy Mexicans.

The Gary Cooper settlement will not be made until Gary finishes his picture, "Distant Drums." His attorney, Isidore Prinzmetal, says no plans have been made for the legal separation. Could be that it's just a separation without court action.

Mrs. Joe E. Brown tells me she now has an Ezio Pinza on her hands. Joe E. sings two or three songs on the stage in "Courtin' Time."

The first affair honoring Perle Mesta when she arrives in Los Angeles June 2 is the cocktail party Verbena Hebbard and Lucille Leimert are giving at the Beverly Hills Hotel.

On Sunday Irene Dunne is giving the "hostess with the mostest" a luncheon, so it looks as if the lady minister to Luxembourg will be busy. I remember the supper party she gave in Chicago when she was attending a political convention. That was before she became such an important political figure. We then called her the lady from Oklahoma.

With all the companies retrenching, Howard Hughes spent $25,000 to send a junket to San Francisco for the opening of "Hard, Fast and Beautiful" starring Claire Trevor and Sally Forrest. One thing you must say about my friend, when Hughes believes he has a good picture he gets behind it with both cash and enthusiasm.

Ilona Massey, looking for a TV show in New York, has been in Hollywood to form a partnership with Jimmy Geisler, (Jerry's brother) to sell her cosmetics.

That's all today. See you tomorrow.

Mirror Of Your Mind

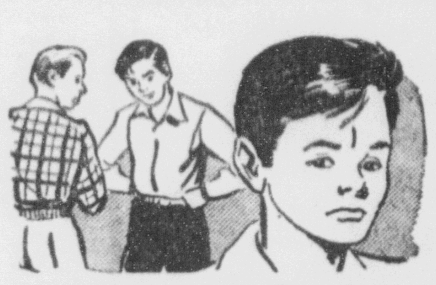
BLAWRENCE GOULD, Consulting Psychologist

Should divorce be a "punishment"?

Answer: No, says the Interprofessional Commission on Marriage and Divorce Laws set up by the American Bar Association. "The philosophy of guilt and punishment as applied to divorce is unsound." For one thing, the partner who is divorced for supposed or actual misbehavior usually wants his or her freedom as much as the other and so is not really punished at all. For another, no court can say positively that one partner is wholly responsible for the failure of a marriage. Among people who regard divorce as morally permissible, the approach should be a therapeutic one."

Will hospitalization help a stutterer?

Answer: No, says a pamphlet issued by the National Hospital for Speech Disorders, New York. It does no good in the long run for a stutterer either to be under constant supervision or to associate only with people who understand and sympathize with his difficulties. He may find a temporary relief in such an "artificial environment" but it will not cure him. "Overcoming stuttering is essentially a matter of learning how to live out in the world and with other people, and this cannot be done in a cloister."



May being snubbed make a child delinquent?

Answer: Yes, for while the conflicts that drive a child to delinquency have their roots in his home life, they are certainly intensified by other experiences which strengthen his "first impressions." A child who has felt "rejected" by his parents may be driven to actual law-breaking by snubs from his schoolmates, or by exclusion from their social organizations on the basis of his racial or cultural background. In joining a "gang" of petty thieves, for instance, he at once gets even for the neglect he feels he has suffered and gains the sense of "belonging."

Judy Garland

HOLLYWOOD, May 22, (INS)—Judy Garland will make a picture for Alexander Paal in London. If Paal can get the rights to "Kiss Me, Kate" he will make it in technicolor with Judy in the Patricia Morison role. Judy will then remain right in London and start the picture in July. But if there is a delay in obtaining the rights she'll come to Hollywood, returning to England later.

Meanwhile, David Shelley, whose mother is Mrs. Marie Shelley De Sylva, has written a musical based on the life of Bud De Sylva. He hopes to get Judy and Bing Crosby for the leading roles. Whether or not he's able to accomplish this is another matter.

Young John Barrymore, Jr., is thrilled that he is to co-star with his Aunt Ethel Barrymore in "Cattle Dust," a western in which Ethel, believe it or not, will brand cattle. John, Jr. is working hard to finish his current movie "The Big Night," so that he and his Aunt Ethel will be able to leave for location in Texas in early June.

Their producer George Templeton, told me today that he is hopeful of getting Joel McCrea for the third starring part.

Ethel said today that she is pleased John, Jr. will have the added experience of the stage play, "Hasty Heart," which he is doing in eastern summer stock with her daughter. She said the boy looks very much like his father, her brother John, did at his age.

Carmen Figuei flew into town from Mexico City five hours, just filled with news, excitement and happiness. She's here to attend to some business for her mother, and, of course, to go to a thousand or more parties.

She told me that Mrs. William O'Dwyer, wife of the American ambassador, has taken over Mexico, that they're all crazy about her. She's learned to speak Spanish and she has so much sparkle and such beauty.

She says Hedy Lamarr has been at Acapulco and has been introduced by Ted Stauffer, former orchestra leader. Stauffer, remember, once escorted Rita Hayworth about in Mexico.

Carmen said that A. C. (Blumley) Blumenthal is about to head a new hotel which has the backing of some wealthy Mexicans.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Peeped into Gloria Stewart's room at the Cedars of Lebanon Hospital for a second at her invitation, and she told me Jimmy had telephoned her from Chicago and from Philadelphia. She is getting better every day although she is still only allowed to see her family.

The Gary Cooper settlement will not be made until Gary finishes his picture, "Distant Drums." His attorney, Isidore Prinzmetal, says no plans have been made for the legal separation. Could be that it's just a separation without court action.

Mrs. Joe E. Brown tells me she now has an Ezio Pinza on her hands. Joe E. sings two or three songs on the stage in "Courtin' Time."

The first affair honoring Perle Mesta when she arrives in Los Angeles June 2 is the cocktail party Verbena Hebbard and Lucille Leimert are giving at the Beverly Hills Hotel.

On Sunday Irene Dunne is giving the "hostess with the mostest" a luncheon, so it looks as if the lady minister to Luxembourg will be busy. I remember the supper party she gave in Chicago when she was attending a political convention. That was before she became such an important political figure. We then called her the lady from Oklahome.

With all the companies retrenching, Howard Hughes spent $25,000 to send a junket to San Francisco for the opening of "Hard, Fast and Beautiful" starring Claire Trevor and Sally Forrest. One thing you must say about my friend, when Hughes believes he has a good picture he gets behind it with both cash and enthusiasm.

Ilona Massey, looking for a TV show in New York, has been in Hollywood to form a partnership with Jimmy Geisler, (Jerry's brother) to sell her cosmetics.

That's all today. See you tomorrow.

Mirror Of Your Mind

BLAWRENCE GOULD, Consulting Psychologist

Should divorce be a "punishment"?

Answer: No, says the Interprofessional Commission on Marriage and Divorce Laws set up by the American Bar Association. "The philosophy of guilt and punishment as applied to divorce is unsound." For one thing, the partner who is divorced for supposed or actual misbehavior usually wants his or her freedom as much as the other and so is not really punished at all. For another, no court can say positively that one partner is wholly responsible for the failure of a marriage. Among people who regard divorce as morally permissible, the approach should be a therapeutic one."

Will hospitalization help a stutterer?

Answer: No, says a pamphlet issued by the National Hospital for Speech Disorders, New York. It does no good in the long run for a stutterer either to be under constant supervision or to associate only with people who understand and sympathize with his difficulties. He may find a temporary relief in such an "artificial environment" but it will not cure him. "Overcoming stuttering is essentially a matter of learning how to live out in the world and with other people, and this cannot be done in a cloister."

May being snubbed make a child delinquent?

Answer: Yes, for while the conflicts that drive a child to delinquency have their roots in his home life, they are certainly intensified by other experiences which strengthen his "first impressions." A child who has felt "rejected" by his parents may be driven to actual law-breaking by snubs from his schoolmates, or by exclusion from their social organizations on the basis of his racial or cultural background. In joining a "gang" of petty thieves, for instance, he at once gets even for the neglect he feels he has suffered and gains the sense of "belonging."

The French Language

PARIS

French is an eloquent language which must be seen to be fully understood or sometimes even to be comprehended at all. That is why the telephone has always defeated the French.

John Crosby

The shrugs, the gestures, the rolling eyes, the expressive hands are missing on le telephone which means the nuances—the essence of the message to be conveyed—are missing, too. Sometimes two Frenchmen can't understand each other on le telephone.

That means radio is not for the French. The machine talks, yes, but it doesn't really talk. About 30 per cent of the French language cannot be conveyed by a box which simply stands there motionless. The box has no soul. The French, therefore, have simply walked away from radio as we know it and employ it largely as an instrument for the diffusion—which is the French way of saying broadcasting—of music.

The three national French networks—Programme Nationale, Programme Parisienne, and Paris-Inter (Only God and the French know what Paris-Inter means)—sound to these untrained American ears pretty much like WNEW and WQXR in New York. You get a mixture of popular and classical music on all three, though Programme Nationale is likely to be a little heavier in density than the other two. Apart from news, you won't hear much talk which is all right with me.

Turn a radio on in a French hotel and you'll think you're home again. In comes Mademoiselle Judy Garland singing "I'm Tired of the City" dans cettel langue barbare, Anglais. American popular music is just as popular here as it is in America. Of course, it's not always sung in English. One of the most exquisite experiences I have yet had in Paris is listening to "Bewitched, Bothered and Bewildered" sung in French. (I'm going to learn how to sing "Bewitched, Bothered and Bewildered" in French if it kills me).

The great thing about "Bewitched, Bothered and Bewildered" sung in French is that the mood of the song is completely transformed. It becomes un chanson Parisien—haunting, delicate and somehow more elegant than the love song Rogers and Hart had in mind when they wrote it. I might add that this applies equally well to American songs sung in English—if sung by the French. A French chanteuse singing "The Lady Is A Tramp" in English—or what she thinks is English—is as French as the Rue de la Paix.

As for the Voice of America, it is, according to all evidence, not heard in Paris. That does not mean it is not broadcast in Paris. It is broadcast here but, as I say, not heard. An acquaintance of mine expressed it aptly: "You can always tell when the Voice of America is on the air by leaning out the windows. You'll hear the click of radios being turned off all over Paris."

The French simply don't understand what the hell the Voice of America is talking about. They find the Voice not only bewildering but faintly ludicrous. I'm inclined to agree. One program for example, is called "Ici New York" which is roughly comparable to "And now—we give you San Francisco." Or in this case, New York.

This is likely to start with some such vital message from the American people as this: "Nous voila au Stork Club. Monsieur Billingsley nous dit bon soir et puis voila une francaise. On l'a reconnait comme chic Parisienne do son chapeau. Je vous presente Morton Downey. Il est un fameux chanteur de ballades Irelandaises."

The average Parisian doesn't know what the Stork Club is and couldn't care less about Monsieur Sherman Billingsley. Much of the Voice's message here consists of records and the French complain bitterly about the quality of the records. They are very old records, many of them Negro spirituals. The French have a great fondness for our spirituals, know a great deal about them and feel strongly that the Voice's selections couldn't be worse. One Frenchwoman told me that every time she turned on the Voice, all she got was "Old Man River."

"As for the rest of it—discussion programs," she said. "A bunch of people sitting around a table discussing what goes on in Arkansas. You know, Monsieur Crosby, I don't care what goes on in Arkansas."

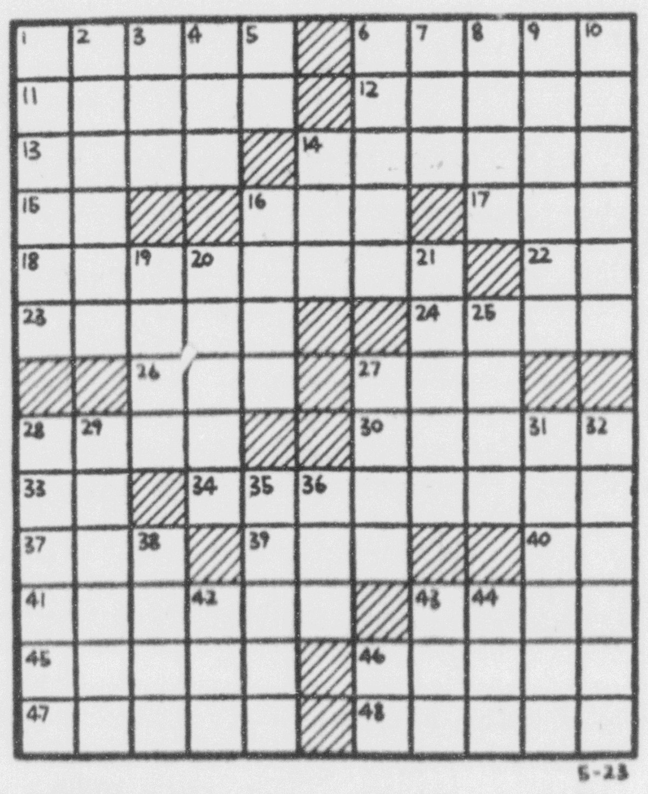
Yesterday's Answer



DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

A Cryptogram Quotation

T U S P F N T W A J C O F I F U I N P J W F
O K L'W F N T W W J—A J N O F L.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

A Cryptogram Quotation

T U S P F N T W A J C O F I F U I N P J W F
O K L W F N T W W J — A J N O F L

Yesterday's Cryptoquote: NOR WAR, NOR BATTLE'S SOUND, WAS HEARD THE WORLD AROUND—MILTON.

Radio And Television

By JOHN CROSBY

The French Language

PARIS

French is an eloquent language which must be seen to be fully understood or sometimes even to be comprehended at all. That is why the telephone has always defeated the French. The shrugs, the gestures, the rolling eyes, the expressive hands are missing on le telephone which means the nuances—the essence of the message to be conveyed—are missing, too. Sometimes two Frenchmen can't understand each other on le telephone.

John Crosby

That means radio is not for the French. The machine talks, yes, but it doesn't really talk. About 30 per cent of the French language cannot be conveyed by a box which simply stands there motionless. The box has no soul. The French, therefore, have simply walked away from radio as we know it and employ it largely as an instrument for the diffusion—which is the French way of saying broadcasting—of music.

The three national French networks—Programme Nationale, Programme Parisienne, and Paris-Inter (Only God and the French know what Paris-Inter means)—sound to these untrained American ears pretty much like WNEW and WQXR in New York. You get a mixture of popular and classical music on all three, though Programme Nationale is likely to be a little heavier in density than the other two. Apart from news, you won't hear much talk which is all right with me.

Turn a radio on in a French hotel and you'll think you're home again. In comes Mademoiselle Judy Garland singing "I'm Tired of the City" dans cettel langue barbare, Anglais. American popular music is just as popular here as it is in America. Of course, it's not always sung in English. One of the most exquisite experiences I have yet had in Paris is listening to "Bewitched, Bothered and Bewildered" sung in French. (I'm going to learn how to sing "Bewitched, Bothered and Bewildered" in French if it kills me).

The great thing about "Bewitched, Bothered and Bewildered" sung in French is that the mood of the song is completely transformed. It becomes un chanson Parisien—haunting, delicate and somehow more elegant than the love song Rogers and Hart had in mind when they wrote it. I might add that this applies equally well to American songs sung in English—if sung by the French. A French chanteuse singing "The Lady Is A Tramp" in English—or what she thinks is English—is as French as the Rue de la Paix.

As for the Voice of America, it is, according to all evidence, not heard in Paris. That does not mean it is not broadcast in Paris. It is broadcast here but, as I say, not heard. An acquaintance of mine expressed it aptly: "You can always tell when the Voice of America is on the air by leaning out the windows. You'll hear the click of radios being turned off all over Paris."

The French simply don't understand what the hell the Voice of America is talking about. They find the Voice not only bewildering but faintly ludicrous. I'm inclined to agree. One program for example, is called "Ici New York" which is roughly comparable to "And now—we give you San Francisco." Or in this case, New York.

This is likely to start with some such vital message from the American people as this: "Nous voila au Stork Club. Monsieur Billingsley nous dit bon soir et puis voila une francaise. On l'a reconnait comme chic Parisienne do son chapeau. Je voius presente Morton Downey. Il est un fameux chanteur de ballades Irelandaises."

The average Parisian doesn't know what the Stork Club is and couldn't care less about Monsieur Sherman Billingsley. Much of the Voice's message here consists of records and the French complain bitterly about the quality of the records. They are very old records, many of them Negro spirituals. The French have a great fondness for our spirituals, know a great deal about them and feel strongly that the Voice's selections couldn't be worse. One Frenchwoman told me that every time she turned on the Voice, all she got was "Old Man River."

"As for the rest of it—discussion programs," she said. "A bunch of people sitting around a table discussing what goes on in Arkansas. You know, Monsieur Crosby, I don't care what goes on in Arkansas."

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

A Cryptogram Quotation

T U S P F N T W A J C O F I F U I N P J W F
O K L'W F N T W W J—A J N O F L.

Yesterday's Cryptoquote: NOR WAR, NOR BATTLE'S SOUND. WAS HEARD THE WORLD AROUND—MILTON.

Charles C. King vs. Nannie V. King. No. 22,182 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Allegany County, Maryland.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

Charles C. King vs. Nannie V. King, in the Circuit Court, for Allegany County, Maryland. The Object of this suit is to secure the passage of a DECREE divorcing Charles C. King A VINCULO MATRIMONII from Nannie V. King, the Defendant.

The Bill of Complaint states that the couple were married at McConnellsburgh, Pennsylvania on June 28th, 1933, and separated in the same month ten years later; that four children were born of this marriage namely, Viola Mae, Harry C., Dale L., and Alma B., and that when the Defendant abandoned the complainant the four children went with their Mother; and that shortly after the abandonment occurred the complainant came to the State of Maryland and has lived here ever since; but that the Defendant is a non-resident of this state, and when last heard of was residing near Connellsville, Pennsylvania.

It is thereupon this 9th day of May, 1951, ORDERED by the Circuit Court for Allegany County, Maryland, in Equity, that a copy of this order be inserted in one of the daily newspapers published in Allegany County, once each week, for four successive weeks before the 11th day of June, 1951, giving notification to the absentee Defendant, of the object and substance of this suit, and warning here to be and appear in this Court, in person or by solicitor, on or before the 28th day of June, 1951, to show cause, if any she may have, why a Decree ought not be past as prayed.

JOSEPH E. BODEN,
Clerk.

A fellow sitting oposite us I doped out as a big cattle and oil man from "Deep in the Heart of" . . . His cream-colored, ten-gallon hat and high-heeled riding boots would cause quite a stir at Maxim's.

In the plane most of the other traveling males wore nylon shirts, indicating they planned to save on laundry . . . We all sighed and sank back on the new sponge rubber chairs to enjoy our cocktail before dinner . . . They actually served cocktails to the passengers but the stewardess said she knew where to draw the line. "When they've had too many they begin to walk around too much. And they want to tell me long stories."

"That's about the same on the ground," I commented, "I'll take a glass of sherry."

And the nice stewardess, Miss Mary Pertzborn, gave us miniature bottles of the best champagne with our steak for dinner.

I began to suspect we weren't flying to Toledo after all!

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

In the Matter of the Adoption of Thomas Myers, Infant, by Melvin M. Miller and Dorothy K. Miller, his wife, Vs. Ex-Parte: No. 22, 173, Equity. In the Circuit Court for Allegany County, Maryland.

The object of this proceeding is to procure a decree of adoption, declaring Thomas Myers, infant, to be the adopted child of the petitioners.

The petition states that the above petitioners are husband and wife, that they are persons of good repute, that they have lived in Allegany County for a number of years, that the above named child has lived in their home for over a year and they are fond of the child and the child is fond of them, and that it is their desire to adopt the child legally and to give him the care and love of natural parents; that the father of the child, James Marshall Myers, has given his consent to the adoption, but that the mother of said child, namely, Margaret Myers, is a non resident of the State of Maryland, and her present whereabouts are unknown.

It is thereupon this 9th day of May, 1951, by the Circuit Court for Allegany County, in Equity, ordered that the petitioners by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in Allegany County, once a week for four successive weeks, before the 11th day of June, 1951, giving notice to the said absent Margaret Myers, mother of said child, of the object and substance of this petition and warning her to be and appear in this Court on or before the 28th day of June, 1951, and show cause why a decree should not be passed as prayed.

Market Backs Down Before Only Mild Selling Pressure

NEW YORK, May 22 (AP)—A timid stock market backed down today when confronted with only mild selling pressure.

This is the second straight decline and comes after last week's fall which was the greatest since the week ended July 2, 1950, when the United States intervened in Korea.

The fall was widely scattered through motors, rails, steels, and oils.

Hudson Motor Car highlighted motor industry difficulties with the announcement that it would suspend production today until June 11, affecting 10,000 workers, "in order to adjust inventories to balance with demand."

Hudson common closed off ¾ at 15¾.

Homestake Mining lost 2⅛ at 35¼ after directors declared a 50-cent dividend as against 75 cents previously paid quarterly.

In the list of most active issues, nearly two out of three were lower. The low-priced National Power & Light was the most active and closed unchanged at 75 cents.

Those following in order indicate the spread of the decline. New York Central was off ¼ at 18, General Motors off ¾ at 49¼, Socony Vacuum Oil off ¼ at 29¼, Canadian Pacific off ½ at 23⅛, and Chrysler off 1⅜ at 70⅜.

U. S. Steel manager to close ⅛ higher at 41⅞, eighth most active, and Radio Corp. made and held a gain of ⅜ at 18⅞ near the close, 11th most active.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks lost 40 cents at $91.90 with the industrial component off 40 cents, rails 50 cents, and utilities 10 cents.

The market contracted to 1,094 individual issues traded of which 304 advanced and 537 declined. Yesterday the total was 1,121 issues. There was only one new high for the year and 79 new lows.

Volume amounted to 1,440,000 shares as against 1,580,000 shares yesterday.

"The Authority on Authorities"

NOT OBVIOUS AT ALL

OFFHAND you would say that playing a particular suit the way that would give you the maximum number of tricks in it is obviously the winning procedure. If so, you may not consider that other factors could be more important. Perhaps it would be better to play that suit in a way that would give you one less trick in it, if by so doing you enable yourself to take two or more additional tricks in some other suit. That can well be the case when the alternative method develops a vital entry.

North and South were using Blackwood correctly. But that 5-No Trumps was not a king-request-er, as such a call never is unless preceded by 4-No Trumps. It was therefore a natural strength-shower, inviting South to bid slam if he had anything of value not yet shown. He had, so he bid the slam.

South failed to make that contract because he acted too promptly on the first trick. When West led the club 4, he "did the obvious" by playing low from dummy and letting the lead come up to his K-J, thereby assuring three tricks in the suit. His J with two high spades, two top hearts, the club A and a spade given up to East. The latter refused to make the mistake of returning a club, which would have put South in with the K and enabled him to score winning hearts. Instead he picked the diamond Q. Unable to reach his own hand, South now had to lose a diamond to be one down.

All that South had to do, to make his contract, was be willing to take only two tricks in clubs. By winning the first trick with the A, he could have preserved the K as an entry for the heart Q and J. By next scoring two hearts, then giving up just the third spade trick, he would have made his slam contract a cinch.

If South bid 1-Spade, West 2-Hearts, North 3-Clubs, East 3-Spades, South 4-Clubs, and East 4-Spades, how should North play for the contract?

Charles C. King vs. Nannie V. King. No. 22,182 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Allegany County, Maryland.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

Charles C. King vs. Nannie V. King, in the Circuit Court, for Allegany County, Maryland. The Object of this suit is to secure the passage of a DECREE divorcing Charles C. King A VINCULO MATRIMONII from Nannie V. King, the Defendant.

The Bill of Complaint states that the couple were married at McConnellsburgh, Pennsylvania on June 28th, 1933, and separated in the same month ten years later; that four children were born of this marriage namely, Viola Mae, Harry C., Dale L., and Alma B., and that when the Defendant abandoned the complainant the four children went with their Mother; and that shortly after the abandonment occurred the complainant came to the State of Maryland and has lived here ever since; but that the Defendant is a non-resident of this state, and when last heard of was residing near Connellsville, Pennsylvania.

It is thereupon this 9th day of May, 1951, ORDERED by the Circuit Court for Allegany County, Maryland, in Equity, that a copy of this order be inserted in one of the daily newspapers published in Allegany County, once each week, for four successive weeks before the 11th day of June, 1951, giving notification to the absentee Defendant, of the object and substance of this suit, and warning here to be and appear in this Court, in person or by solicitor, on or before the 28th day of June, 1951, to show cause, if any she may have, why a Decree ought not be past as prayed.

A fellow sitting oposite us I doped out as a big cattle and oil man from "Deep in the Heart of" . . . His cream-colored, ten-gallon hat and high-heeled riding boots would cause quite a stir at Maxim's.

In the plane most of the other traveling males wore nylon shirts, indicating they planned to save on laundry . . . We all sighed and sank back on the new sponge rubber chairs to enjoy our cocktail before dinner . . . They actually served cocktails to the passengers but the stewardess said she knew where to draw the line. "When they've had too many they begin to walk around too much. And they want to tell me long stories."

"That's about the same on the ground," I commented, "I'll take a glass of sherry."

And the nice stewardess, Miss Mary Pertzborn, gave us miniature bottles of the best champagne with our steak for dinner.

I began to suspect we weren't flying to Toledo after all!

In the Matter of the Adoption of Thomas Myers, Infant, by Melvin M. Miller and Dorothy K. Miller, his wife, Vs. Ex-Parte: No. 22, 173, Equity. In the Circuit Court for Allegany County, Maryland.

The object of this proceeding is to procure a decree of adoption, declaring Thomas Myers, infant, to be the adopted child of the petitioners.

The petition states that the above petitioners are husband and wife, that they are persons of good repute, that they have lived in Allegany County for a number of years, that the above named child has lived in their home for over a year and they are fond of the child and the child is fond of them, and that it is their desire to adopt the child legally and to give him the care and love of natural parents; that the father of the child, James Marshall Myers, has given his consent to the adoption, but that the mother of said child, namely, Margaret Myers, is a non resident of the State of Maryland, and her present whereabouts are unknown.

Market Backs Down Before Only Mild Selling Pressure

NEW YORK, May 22 (AP)—A timid stock market backed down today when confronted with only mild selling pressure.

This is the second straight decline and comes after last week's fall which was the greatest since the week ended July 2, 1950, when the United States intervened in Korea.

The fall was widely scattered through motors, rails, steels, and oils.

Hudson Motor Car highlighted motor industry difficulties with the announcement that it would suspend production today until June 11, affecting 10,000 workers, "in order to adjust inventories to balance with demand."

Hudson common closed off ¾ at 15¾.

Homestake Mining lost 2⅛ at 35¼ after directors declared a 50-cent dividend as against 75 cents previously paid quarterly.

In the list of most active issues, nearly two out of three were lower. The low-priced National Power & Light was the most active and closed unchanged at 75 cents.

Those following in order indicate the spread of the decline. New York Central was off ¼ at 18, General Motors off ¾ at 49¼, Socony Vacuum Oil off ¼ at 29¼, Canadian Pacific off ½ at 23⅛, and Chrysler off 1⅜ at 70⅜.

U. S. Steel manager to close ⅛ higher at 41⅞, eighth most active, and Radio Corp. made and held a gain of ⅜ at 18⅞ near the close, 11th most active.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks lost 40 cents at $91.90 with the industrial component off 40 cents, rails 50 cents, and utilities 10 cents.

The market contracted to 1,094 individual issues traded of which 304 advanced and 537 declined. Yesterday the total was 1,121 issues. There was only one new high for the year and 79 new lows.

Volume amounted to 1,440,000 shares as against 1,580,000 shares yesterday.

"The Authority on Authorities"

NOT OBVIOUS AT ALL

OFFHAND you would say that playing a particular suit the way that would give you the maximum number of tricks in it is obviously the winning procedure. If so, you may not consider that other factors could be more important. Perhaps it would be better to play that suit in a way that would give you one less trick in it, if by so doing you enable yourself to take two or more additional tricks in some other suit. That can well be the case when the alternative method develops a vital entry.

North and South were using Blackwood correctly. But that 5-No Trumps was no king-requester, as such a call never is unless preceded by 4-No Trumps. It was therefore a natural strength-shower, inviting South to bid slam if he had anything of value not yet shown. He had, so he bid the slam.

South failed to make that contract because he acted too promptly on the first trick. When West led the club 4, he "did the obvious" by playing low from dummy and letting the lead come up to his K-J, thereby assuring three tricks in the suit. His J took the 10, which he followed with two high spades, two top hearts, the club A and a spade given up to East. The latter refused to make the mistake of returning a club, which would have put South in with the K and enabled him to score winning hearts. Instead he picked the diamond Q. Unable to reach his own hand, South now had to lose a diamond to be down one.

All that South had to do, to make his contract, was be willing to take only two tricks in clubs. By winning the first trick with the A, he could have preserved the K as an entry for the heart Q and J. By next scoring two hearts, then giving up just the third spade trick, he would have made his slam contract a cinch.

Charles C. King vs. Nannie V. King. No. 22,182 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Allegany County, Maryland.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

Charles C. King vs. Nannie V. King, in the Circuit Court, for Allegany County, Maryland. The Object of this suit is to secure the passage of a DECREE divorcing Charles C. King A VINCULO MATRIMONII from Nannie V. King, the Defendant.

The Bill of Complaint states that the couple were married at McConnellsburgh, Pennsylvania on June 28th, 1933, and separated in the same month ten years later; that four children were born of this marriage namely, Viola Mae, Harry C., Dale L., and Alma B., and that when the Defendant abandoned the complainant the four children went with their Mother; and that shortly after the abandonment occurred the complainant came to the State of Maryland and has lived here ever since; but that the Defendant is a non-resident of this state, and when last heard of was residing near Connellsville, Pennsylvania.

It is thereupon this 9th day of May, 1951, ORDERED by the Circuit Court for Allegany County, Maryland, in Equity, that a copy of this order be inserted in one of the daily newspapers published in Allegany County, once each week, for four successive weeks before the 11th day of June, 1951, giving notification to the absentee Defendant, of the object and substance of this suit, and warning here to be and appear in this Court, in person or by solicitor, on or before the 28th day of June, 1951, to show cause, if any she may have, why a Decree ought not be past as prayed.

A fellow sitting oposite us I doped out as a big cattle and oil man from "Deep in the Heart of" . . . His cream-colored, ten-gallon hat and high-heeled riding boots would cause quite a stir at Maxim's.

In the plane most of the other traveling males wore nylon shirts, indicating they planned to save on laundry . . . We all sighed and sank back on the new sponge rubber chairs to enjoy our cocktail before dinner . . . They actually served cocktails to the passengers but the stewardess said she knew where to draw the line. "When they've had too many they begin to walk around too much. And they want to tell me long stories."

"That's about the same on the ground," I commented, "I'll take a glass of sherry."

And the nice stewardess, Miss Mary Pertzborn, gave us miniature bottles of the best champagne with our steak for dinner.

I began to suspect we weren't flying to Toledo after all!

Market Backs Down Before Only Mild Selling Pressure

NEW YORK, May 22 (AP)—A timid stock market backed down today when confronted with only mild selling pressure.

This is the second straight decline and comes after last week's fall which was the greatest since the week ended July 2, 1950, when the United States intervened in Korea.

The fall was widely scattered through motors, rails, steels, and oils.

Hudson Motor Car highlighted motor industry difficulties with the announcement that it would suspend production today until June 11, affecting 10,000 workers, "in order to adjust inventories to balance with demand."

Hudson common closed off ¾ at 15¾.

Homestake Mining lost 2⅛ at 35¼ after directors declared a 50-cent dividend as against 75 cents previously paid quarterly.

In the list of most active issues, nearly two out of three were lower. The low-priced National Power & Light was the most active and closed unchanged at 75 cents.

Those following in order indicate the spread of the decline. New York Central was off ¼ at 18, General Motors off ¾ at 49¼, Socony Vacuum Oil off ¼ at 29¼, Canadian Pacific off ½ at 23⅛, and Chrysler off 1⅜ at 70⅜.

U. S. Steel manager to close ⅛ higher at 41⅞, eighth most active, and Radio Corp. made and held a gain of ⅜ at 18⅞ near the close, 11th most active.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks lost 40 cents at $91.90 with the industrial component off 40 cents, rails 50 cents, and utilities 10 cents.

The market contracted to 1,094 individual issues traded of which 304 advanced and 537 declined. Yesterday the total was 1,121 issues. There was only one new high for the year and 79 new lows.

Volume amounted to 1,440,000 shares as against 1,580,000 shares yesterday.

"The Authority on Authorities"

NOT OBVIOUS AT ALL

OFFHAND you would say that playing a particular suit the way that would give you the maximum number of tricks in it is obviously the winning procedure. If so, you may not consider that other factors could be more important. Perhaps it would be better to play that suit in a way that would give you one less trick in it, if by so doing you enable yourself to take two or more additional tricks in some other suit. That can well be the case when the alternative method develops a vital entry.

North and South were using Blackwood correctly. But that 5-No Trumps was no king-requester, as such a call never is unless preceded by 4-No Trumps. It was therefore a natural strength-shower, inviting South to bid slam if he had anything of value not yet shown. He had, so he bid the slam.

South failed to make that contract because he acted too promptly on the first trick. When West led the club 4, he "did the obvious" by playing low from dummy and letting the lead come up to his K-J, thereby assuring three tricks in the suit. His J took the 10, which he followed with two high spades, two top hearts, the club A and a spade given up to East. The latter refused to make the mistake of returning a club, which would have put South in with the K and enabled him to score winning hearts. Instead he picked the diamond Q. Unable to reach his own hand, South now had to lose a diamond to be down one.

All that South had to do, to make his contract, was be willing to take only two tricks in clubs. By winning the first trick with the A, he could have preserved the K as an entry for the heart Q and J. By next scoring two hearts, then giving up just the third spade trick, he would have made his slam contract a cinch.

Murray, a former Keyser police chief, obtained more votes for council in yesterday election than his four opponents combined.

Legion Auxiliary To Sponsor Poppy Day Program Saturday

Saturday is Poppy Day!

Fort Cumberland Post No. 13, American Legion Auxiliary, will join with all other Legion auxiliaries in the nation Saturday to help the sale of the crepe paper poppy in recognition of the heroic sacrifices of our disabled American veterans.

The sale of the poppy is conducted entirely by volunteer workers and the proceeds are used for the relief of disabled veterans and dependents of veterans who are dead or disabled.

The purpose of the auxiliary program is to place the symbol of the heroic sacrafice of war veterans before every American and at the same time give those disabled veterans a chance at employment making the tiny flower.

The resolution making the poppy the Legion's Memorial flower was adopted at the National Convention in Cleveland, Ohio, September, 1920. At first silk poppies made by French widows and orphans in France were used then the first American poppies were made by veterans in hospitals of Minnesota in 1922.

The crepe paper poppy was selected because it provided the maximum of work for the disabled men with low cost. Occupational therapy departments in the hospitals recognize the program as having high therapeutic value and the money earned helps the veterans keep their families and work their way to recovery more quickly.

Material for making the poppies is supplied by legion auxiliaries which also pays the wages of the disabled veterans throughout the manufacturing period.

Pasquino Editor Congratulated

Peggy Jo Davis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Davis, LaVale, is shown above being congratulated following the announcement of her appointment as 1951-52 editor-in-chief of the Pasquino, student newspeper of Potomac State College, Keyser, W. Va. The announcement was made last night by Dr. Elizabeth A. Atwater, faculty advisor, at the annual press banquet at Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club. Left to right are Eloise Oates, news editor, Miss Davis, Robert B. Sincell, advertising manager of Oakland Republican and guest speaker, Thomas Pendergast, graduating editor, and Dr. Atwater.

State Pension Plan Rejected By Firemen

Members of the Cumberland Fire Department this week rejected a proposal to join the State Retirement System.

The plan to abandon the present pension system in favor of joining the state plan was lost when members voted 22 for to 21 against the change. A three-fourth majority is required to make any change in the present plan.

Officials said there is a possibility of reconsideration of the action before July.

If the department should desire to enter the state plan, the action would have to be taken before the 1951 levy is set up, Arthur B. Gibson, city auditor, said yesterday.

He added that the city would be unable to accept the plan unless the budget included the cost of the accrued liability of members of the department.

All city employes except members of the Police and Fire Department are now members of the state system.

The Fire Department Pension Fund was set up in August, 1935, with members and the city each paying one per cent of the employes' salaries. In 1940, worker's contributions were upped to three per cent, with the city contributing five per cent.

Firemen said the fund will be overdrawn at the rate of $1,077 a month by June 1 and that the fund would be depleted in about 19 months at the present rate of pension payments.

The department also announced the election of a new Fire Department Pension Board. It includes Fire Chief J. T. Defibaugh, Harold Hipsley, of West Side Fire Company, and Herman Miller, of East Side Fire Company.

Oakland Newsman Cites Value Of College Degree

LaVale Student New Editor Of Pasquino

Completion of one's college education is an important factor in assuring the modern-day youth of a prosperous future" Robert B. Sincell, business manager of the Oakland Republican, told members of the Pasquino staff last night.

The occasion was the annual press banquet of the Potomac State College student publication held at Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club. Sincell pointed out that present day industry is inclined to rely more on the holder of a college degree for training in its particular field.

Stressing the importance of completing their college education Sincell told the students there are "few self made men nowadays" who work day and night in search for an education.

Sincell was editor of the Pasquino in 1947-48 in his Sophomore year. He graduated from West Virginia University's School of Journalism in 1950, where he served as business manager of the University newspaper, the Daily Athenaeum, in his senior year. Sincell's father, Donald R. Sincell, managing editor of the Oakland Republican was speaker at the press dinner in 1947.

Melvin McKenzie, graduating circulation manager of the college publication acted as toastmaster during the banquet. Announcement of Chief Staff Positions for 1951-52 was made by Dr. Elizabeth A. Atwater, faculty advisor, and a Cumberland student, Peggy Jo Davis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Davis, LaVale, will be editor-in-chief next year.

Ormond Knippenburg, Midland, will serve as news editor, Delores Smith, Fort Ashby, business manager, and Harry McCulloh, Piedmont, circulation manager.

Guests attending the banquet included Dr and Mrs. E. E. Church, Dean and Mrs. K. S. McKee, and Mrs. Robert B. Sincell.

Injured Chemist Remains Critical

Armand Joseph Collett, 25, formerly of Morgantown, W. Va., remained unconscious and in critical condition late last night at Miners' Hospital, Frostburg, as the result of injuries suffered in an accident Monday on Route 40, six miles west of Frostburg.

Collett has been employed at the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company plant here since April 30 as a chemist in the technical service section of the development department. He has been residing at the home of S. Hodge Smith, Braddock Road.

State Police learned yesterday that Collett left Morgantown two hours before his car crashed headon with a tractor-trailer. His father, Dr. A. R. Collett, is assistant dean of the West Virginia University College of Arts and Science.

Collett, who suffered a skull fracture, broken jaw and internal injuries, was returning to Cumberland when the accident occurred near Guntertown. A graduate chemist of West Virginia University, he is highly regarded by associates at the Kelly plant.

Robert E. Beal, 21, Route 1, Finksburg, Md., driver of the truck, and Frank Sealover, 21, Route 1 Westminister, riding with him, were also injured in the accident and admitted to Miners' Hospital for treatment. They were reported to be in satisfactory condition yesterday.

Trooper Glen D. Folk is withholding charges pending the outcome of Collett's injuries.

Battle-Weary Korea Veteran Recalls Past Year At Front

By CHARLES H. KELLY
News Staff Writer

"Being back in the United States just doesn't seem possible. It seems too good to be true." These words indicate the feeling of battle-weary M/Sgt. Richard Harper, 545 Fairview Street, who is home on furlough from Korea on the rotation plan.

The twice-wounded veteran of the Korean conflict received word of his trip back home while lying in a hospital bed on a Danish Hospital Ship the "Jutelindia" where he had been for 30 days.

Harper, a 27-year-old ruddy faced GI, had ben wounded for the second time in the Chungchong area on the 16th of March and got shell fragments in the back and legs. The first time he was hit was in August of last year in the Waejon campaign and this time he spent 50 days in a hospital in Japan.

Medics Act Quickly

He commented that due to quick action by the medics his life was saved. Harper enlisted in May, 1949, at Cumberland and after processing at Camp Stoneman, Calif., was made Pfc and shipped overseas to Japan with the 1st Cavalry Division.

In World War II he served three years in the CBI and was a member of the famed "Merrill's Marauders" which fought up through Burma. He commented on the "happy-go-lucky" outfit which really came through when the "chips were down." With the marauders he was a demolition specialist working with mines and bobby traps yet escaped injury throughout the three years.

When asked how he rose in rank so quickly the last year, he replied such a large turnover of men occured in the early Korean campaign he received his "stripes" in quick order. His enlistment is up in May of next year but he expects to "re-up" for an indefinite period.

Caught In Death Trap

He recalled being caught in one of the "death traps" in Korea and commented on how the outfit fought its way out. Harper remarked that the Chinese were fighting with anything and everything against the U. N. forces.

He holds high regard for the medics since he had occasion to benefit by their efforts on the field of battle. He smiled when commenting on PX rations and said the "Stars and Stripes" is keeping the soldier's well informed.

When asked what he thought of General MacArthur's ouster he said it was quite a blow to the boys on the front yet General Ridgway is a capable leader and well up on fighting tactics.

After his well earned rest at home M/Sgt Harper will report for reassignment at Fort George G. Meade, Md.

First Street Route Opened For Traffic

Construction work on the grading of First Street from South to Maple Street is nearing completion, Martin M. Corrigan, street superintendent, reported yesterday.

Still to be completed is the stabilization of the surface of the street, which will be done after the roadway has settled.

Only a temporary surfacing sufficient to stabilize the roadway is planned.

The street was opened for traffic this week.

Work on the 2,100-foot project, included grading a roadway and disposing of surplus materials.

The work, which was estimated to cost some $7,000, included several culverts and gutter drains. Construction began late last month.

The street will provide a new traffic artery from Mapleside to South Cumberland.

Furniture Bids On Mt. Savage School Received

One complete bid and 10 partial bids on furniture for the new Mt. Savage School were opened by the Allegany County Board of Education at its office on Washington Street yesterday afternoon but a decision was withheld pending a complete tabluation of the proposals.

Although none of the school officials made a complete tabulation yesterday afternoon, an informal check indicated the cost of students' desks, tables and chairs, science laboratory furniture, library teachers' desks and chairs, auditorium chairs, office furniture and filing cabinets would run above $40,000.

Analysis Planned

School Superintendent Charles L. Kopp said an item by item analysis would be made. He added that contracts will be awarded to low bidders providing quality meets minimum standards.

Concerned over the high cost of furniture, Kopp observed that prices on some of the items were three or four times what they were in the mid-1930s when furniture was bought for Fort Hill High School.

Present for the bid-opening besides Kopp were Edgar A. Dashiell, board chairman; Wilbur V. Wilson, board member; Richard T. Rizer, assistant superintendent of schools, and representatives of some of the bidding firms.

Bids were submitted by four Cumberland firms, three others from Baltimore, two from Pennsylvania and one each from Delaware and Virginia.

One Complete Bid

The only complete bid was presented by the Flowers School Equipment Company, Richmond, Va., which submitted proposals aggregating $42,260.87, according to an unofficial tabulation.

Partial bidders included The Marquis Company, 128 Bedford Street; Ankeney Company, 27 North Centre Street; B. Beneman and Sons, 41 North Mechanic Street; Cumberland Office Supply Company, 17 North Liberty Street; James T. Vernay & Sons Company, Baltimore; Kurtz Brothers, Clearfield, Pa.; Bradley Distributing Company, Middletown, Del.; Edward L. Rieha Company, Baltimore; William H. Blohm, Jr., Baltimore, and Gaylord Company, Philadelphia.

Park Pool To Open May 30

Final plans for opening Constitution Park pool are being completed, Edmund F. Hoey, city recreation director, announced yesterday.

The pool will formally open May 30, Decoration Day, and remain open until Labor Day.

Thomas Hopwood, pool manager, is supervising re-calking of the pool and floors of the bath house and all benches are being painted in preparation for opening the season.

The Mayor and Council on Monday confirmed appointment of a 14-member staff for the swim center.

Hoey said student admissions will be 16 cents, which includes 13 cent admission and three cents federal tax. Adult tickets will cost 30 cents, which includes 21 cents admission, four cents federal tax and the new five cent tax on adult admissions earmarked for the recreation program.

Judge Rules Insurance Firm Is Not Liable

Says Insured Did Not Cooperate

An opinion and decree which cited that the Fidelity and Casualty Company of New York is not liable on a certain automobile liability insurance policy because the insured failed to abide by the cooperation clause were filed yesterday in Allegany County Circuit Court by Associate Judge George Henderson.

In his decree, Judge Henderson wrote that the insurance company, is not liable under its automobile insurance policy which was issued on or about May 1, 1949, to George Franklin Shuck and Florence C. Shuck, his wife, or to Nellie M. Shuck, his mother, for injuries suffered by Nellie M. Shuck on or about June 17, 1949, while a passenger in a car driven by her son.

Equity Suit

This decree was entered in an equity suit which was filed in Allegany County Circuit Court by the Fidelity and Casualty Company of New York against George Franklin Shuck, Florence C. Shuck and Nellie M. Shuck.

Judge Henderson's decree also referred to a $5,000 damage suit brought by Nellie M. Shuck against her son, George Franklin Shuck. He decreed that the order passed November 22, 1949, enjoining Nellie M. Shuck from taking further proceedings in the suit by her against her son be continued pending any appeal. Should no appeal be taken, the injunction is dissolved as of the 31st day after the date of the decree.

In his lengthy opinion, Judge Henderson observes Mrs. Nellie M. Shuck was injured on June 17, 1949, while riding in her son's automobile, which he was driving, collided with a truck in Baltimore. At the time, George and Florence Shuck, his wife, were living in Silver Spring. Mrs. Nellie Shuck returned to her home in Frostburg about three days after the accident.

Sold Business

About July 1, 1949, Shuck sold a jewelry business which he operated in Silver Spring and his home there and sent his household furniture to his wife's parents in Cumberland.

The equity case was filed in November, 1949, based on his failure to comply with the cooperation clause of his policy. This states: "The insured shall cooperate with the company and, upon the company's request, shall attend hearings and trials and shall assist in effecting settlements, securing and giving evidence, obtaining the attendance of witnesses and in the conduct of suits.

In the opinion, Judge Henderson cites that Shuck arranged with G. Gregg Everngam, Silver Spring attorney, to represent his mother. However, Everngam never saw Mrs. Shuck. Everngam subsequently wrote to the insurer offering to settle the claim for $500. The insurer offered only $350.

A few days before Shuck left for Florida, where he intended to stay, in November, 1949, he took his wife to the office of Edward J. Ryan, local attorney, and advised the attorney that he was leaving November 18. Suit was filed November 17, 1949, by Ryan on behalf of Nellie M. Shuck. The next day the son went to the sheriff's office here, accepted service of the summons and immediately left for Florida.

Judge Henderson's opinion concludes:

"From the foregoing it will be seen that Shuck's conduct went far beyond mere failure to cooperate. He was not only assisting his mother to make claim; he was actually directing the prosecution of it.

"Had the mother recovered a judgment in the suit against the son, and thereafter sued the insurer, upon the facts being proved which have been proved in this case, it would be the duty of the court to direct a verdict for the insurer."

In this equity case the insurance company was represented by Attorneys W. Earle Cobey and C. William Gilchrist. George Franklin Shuck and Florence C. Shuck were represented by Attorney Harold E. Naughton. Nellie M. Shuck was represented by Attorney Ryan.

Court House Vestibule Painting Starts

Two painters yesterday began interior painting in the Allegany County Court House.

Clyde S. Kuhns, Narrows Park, last Friday was awarded the contract to paint the vestibule and first-floor men's rest room at the Court House by the Allegany County Board of Commissioners on a bid of $60.

Governor's Veto Also Ends County Youth Commission

Governor McKeldin's veto of the bill to create a Maryland Youth Commission also has written finis to the Allegany County Youth Commission, which had been functioning locally in cooperation with the state agency, according to Homer S. Higgins, who had been serving as county chairman.

Higgins said yesterday that he will send individual letters to all of the approximately 30 persons in this county who served with him on the County Youth Commission. Local members were appointed by the Allegany County Board of Commissioners.

His letter reads in part:

"I want to take this opportunity to thank all of you who participated in what we believe was one of the greatest projects ever undertaken to pull together material on the resources and needs in relation to youth and children. More than 30 persons took part in the work. Especially do I want to thank the public and private agencies and individuals who gave so unstintingly of their time."

The Maryland Youth Commission was set up originally by former Governor Herbert R. O'Conor and reactivated by former Governor William Preston Lane. It had two paid staff members — an assistant to the director and a stenographer. The former will leave June 1 and the latter sometime during June. This will liquidate the State Commission.

Sees Duplication

In his veto message Governor McKeldin wrote concerning the Commission:

"I believe the creation of a new

Legion Auxiliary To Sponsor Poppy Day Program Saturday

Saturday is Poppy Day!

Fort Cumberland Post No. 13, American Legion Auxiliary, will join with all other Legion auxiliaries in the nation Saturday to help the sale of the crepe paper poppy in recognition of the heroic sacrifices of our disabled American veterans.

The sale of the poppy is conducted entirely by volunteer workers and the proceeds are used for the relief of disabled veterans and dependents of veterans who are dead or disabled.

The purpose of the auxiliary program is to place the symbol of the heroic sacrafice of war veterans before every American and at the same time give those disabled veterans a chance at employment making the tiny flower.

The resolution making the poppy the Legion's Memorial flower was adopted at the National Convention in Cleveland, Ohio, September, 1920. At first silk poppies made by French widows and orphans in France were used then the first American poppies were made by veterans in hospitals of Minnesota in 1922.

The crepe paper poppy was selected because it provided the maximum of work for the disabled men with low cost. Occupational therapy departments in the hospitals recognize the program as having high therapeutic value and the money earned helps the veterans keep their families and work their way to recovery more quickly.

Material for making the poppies is supplied by legion auxiliaries which also pays the wages of the disabled veterans throughout the manufacturing period.

Pasquino Editor Congratulated

Peggy Jo Davis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Davis, LaVale, is shown above being congratulated following the announcement of her appointment as 1951-52 editor-in-chief of the Pasquino, student newspeper of Potomac State College, Keyser, W. Va. The announcement was made last night by Dr. Elizabeth A. Atwater, faculty advisor, at the annual press banquet at Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club. Left to right are Eloise Oates, news editor, Miss Davis, Robert B. Sincell, advertising manager of Oakland Republican and guest speaker, Thomas Pendergast, graduating editor, and Dr. Atwater.

State Pension Plan Rejected By Firemen

Members of the Cumberland Fire Department this week rejected a proposal to join the State Retirement System.

The plan to abandon the present pension system in favor of joining the state plan was lost when members voted 22 for to 21 against the change. A three-fourth majority is required to make any change in the present plan.

Officials said there is a possibility of reconsideration of the action before July.

If the department should desire to enter the state plan, the action would have to be taken before the 1951 levy is set up, Arthur B. Gibson, city auditor, said yesterday.

He added that the city would be unable to accept the plan unless the budget included the cost of the accrued liability of members of the department.

All city employes except members of the Police and Fire Department are now members of the state system.

The Fire Department Pension Fund was set up in August, 1935, with members and the city each paying one per cent of the employes' salaries. In 1940, worker's contributions were upped to three per cent, with the city contributing five per cent.

Firemen said the fund will be overdrawn at the rate of $1,077 a month by June 1 and that the fund would be depleted in about 19 months at the present rate of pension payments.

The department also announced the election of a new Fire Department Pension Board. It includes Fire Chief J. T. Defibaugh, Harold Hipsley, of West Side Fire Company, and Herman Miller, of East Side Fire Company.

Oakland Newsman Cites Value Of College Degree

LaVale Student New Editor Of Pasquino

Completion of one's college education is an important factor in assuring the modern-day youth of a prosperous future" Robert B. Sincell, business manager of the Oakland Republican, told members of the Pasquino staff last night.

The occasion was the annual press banquet of the Potomac State College student publication held at Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club. Sincell pointed out that present day industry is inclined to rely more on the holder of a college degree for training in its particular field.

Stressing the importance of completing their college education Sincell told the students there are "few self made men nowadays" who work day and night in search for an education.

Sincell was editor of the Pasquino in 1947-48 in his Sophomore year. He graduated from West Virginia University's School of Journalism in 1950, where he served as business manager of the University newspaper, the Daily Athenaeum, in his senior year. Sincell's father, Donald R. Sincell, managing editor of the Oakland Republican was speaker at the press dinner in 1947.

Melvin McKenzie, graduating circulation manager of the college publication acted as toastmaster during the banquet. Announcement of Chief Staff Positions for 1951-52 was made by Dr. Elizabeth A. Atwater, faculty advisor, and a Cumberland student, Peggy Jo Davis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Davis, LaVale, will be editor-in-chief next year.

Ormond Knippenburg, Midland, will serve as news editor, Delores Smith, Fort Ashby, business manager, and Harry McCulloh, Piedmont, circulation manager.

Guests attending the banquet included Dr and Mrs. E. E. Church, Dean and Mrs. K. S. McKee, and Mrs. Robert B. Sincell.

Battle-Weary Korea Veteran Recalls Past Year At Front

By CHARLES H. KELLY
News Staff Writer

"Being back in the United States just doesn't seem possible. It seems too good to be true." These words indicate the feeling of battle-weary M/Sgt. Richard Harper, 545 Fairview Street, who is home on furlough from Korea on the rotation plan.

The twice-wounded veteran of the Korean conflict received word of his trip back home while lying in a hospital bed on a Danish Hospital Ship the "Jutelindia" where he had been for 30 days.

Harper, a 27-year-old ruddy faced GI, had ben wounded for the second time in the Chungchong area on the 16th of March and got shell fragments in the back and legs. The first time he was hit was in August of last year in the Waejon campaign and this time he spent 50 days in a hospital in Japan.

Medics Act Quickly

He commented that due to quick action by the medics his life was saved. Harper enlisted in May, 1949, at Cumberland and after processing at Camp Stoneman, Calif., was made Pfc and shipped overseas to Japan with the 1st Cavalry Division.

In World War II he served three years in the CBI and was a member of the famed "Merrill's Marauders" which fought up through Burma. He commented on the "happy-go-lucky" outfit which really came through when the "chips were down." With the marauders he was a demolition specialist working with mines and bobby traps yet escaped injury throughout the three years.

When asked how he rose in rank so quickly the last year, he replied such a large turnover of men occured in the early Korean campaign he received his "stripes" in quick order. His enlistment is up in May of next year but he expects to "re-up" for an indefinite period.

Caught In Death Trap

He recalled being caught in one of the "death traps" in Korea and commented on how the outfit fought its way out. Harper remarked that the Chinese were fighting with anything and everything against the U. N. forces.

He holds high regard for the medics since he had occasion to benefit by their efforts on the field of battle. He smiled when commenting on PX rations and said the "Stars and Stripes" is keeping the soldier's well informed.

When asked what he thought of General MacArthur's ouster he said it was quite a blow to the boys on the front yet General Ridgway is a capable leader and well up on fighting tactics.

After his well earned rest at home M/Sgt Harper will report for reassignment at Fort George G. Meade, Md.

Furniture Bids On Mt. Savage School Received

One complete bid and 10 partial bids on furniture for the new Mt. Savage School were opened by the Allegany County Board of Education at its office on Washington Street yesterday afternoon but a decision was withheld pending a complete tabluation of the proposals.

Although none of the school officials made a complete tabulation yesterday afternoon, an informal check indicated the cost of students' desks, tables and chairs, science laboratory furniture, library teachers' desks and chairs, auditorium chairs, office furniture and filing cabinets would run above $40,000.

Analysis Planned

School Superintendent Charles L. Kopp said an item by item analysis would be made. He added that contracts will be awarded to low bidders providing quality meets minimum standards.

Concerned over the high cost of furniture, Kopp observed that prices on some of the items were three or four times what they were in the mid-1930s when furniture was bought for Fort Hill High School.

Present for the bid-opening besides Kopp were Edgar A. Dashiell, board chairman; Wilbur V. Wilson, board member; Richard T. Rizer, assistant superintendent of schools, and representatives of some of the bidding firms.

Bids were submitted by four Cumberland firms, three others from Baltimore, two from Pennsylvania and one each from Delaware and Virginia.

One Complete Bid

The only complete bid was presented by the Flowers School Equipment Company, Richmond, Va., which submitted proposals aggregating $42,260.87, according to an unofficial tabulation.

Partial bidders included The Marquis Company, 128 Bedford Street; Ankeney Company, 27 North Centre Street; B. Beneman and Sons, 41 North Mechanic Street; Cumberland Office Supply Company, 17 North Liberty Street; James T. Vernay & Sons Company, Baltimore; Kurtz Brothers, Clearfield, Pa.; Bradley Distributing Company, Middletown, Del.; Edward L. Rieha Company, Baltimore; William H. Blohm, Jr., Baltimore, and Gaylord Company, Philadelphia.

First Street Route Opened For Traffic

Construction work on the grading of First Street from South to Maple Street is nearing completion, Martin M. Corrigan, street superintendent, reported yesterday.

Still to be completed is the stabilization of the surface of the street, which will be done after the roadway has settled.

Only a temporary surfacing sufficient to stabilize the roadway is planned.

The street was opened for traffic this week.

Work on the 2,100-foot project, included grading a roadway and disposing of surplus materials.

The work, which was estimated to cost some $7,000, included several culverts and gutter drains. Construction began late last month.

The street will provide a new traffic artery from Mapleside to South Cumberland.

Park Pool To Open May 30

Final plans for opening Constitution Park pool are being completed, Edmund F. Hoey, city recreation director, announced yesterday.

The pool will formally open May 30, Decoration Day, and remain open until Labor Day.

Thomas Hopwood, pool manager, is supervising re-calking of the pool and floors of the bath house and all benches are being painted in preparation for opening the season.

The Mayor and Council on Monday confirmed appointment of a 14-member staff for the swim center.

Hoey said student admissions will be 16 cents, which includes 13 cent admission and three cents federal tax. Adult tickets will cost 30 cents, which includes 21 cents admission, four cents federal tax and the new five cent tax on adult admissions earmarked for the recreation program.

Judge Rules Insurance Firm Is Not Liable

Says Insured Did Not Cooperate

An opinion and decree which cited that the Fidelity and Casualty Company of New York is not liable on a certain automobile liability insurance policy because the insured failed to abide by the cooperation clause were filed yesterday in Allegany County Circuit Court by Associate Judge George Henderson.

In his decree, Judge Henderson wrote that the insurance company, is not liable under its automobile insurance policy which was issued on or about May 1, 1949, to George Franklin Shuck and Florence C. Shuck, his wife, or to Nellie M. Shuck, his mother, for injuries suffered by Nellie M. Shuck on or about June 17, 1949, while a passenger in a car driven by her son.

Equity Suit

This decree was entered in an equity suit which was filed in Allegany County Circuit Court by the Fidelity and Casualty Company of New York against George Franklin Shuck, Florence C. Shuck and Nellie M. Shuck.

Judge Henderson's decree also referred to a $5,000 damage suit brought by Nellie M. Shuck against her son, George Franklin Shuck. He decreed that the order passed November 22, 1949, enjoining Nellie M. Shuck from taking further proceedings in the suit by her against her son be continued pending any appeal. Should no appeal be taken, the injunction is dissolved as of the 31st day after the date of the decree.

In his lengthy opinion, Judge Henderson observes Mrs. Nellie M. Shuck was injured on June 17, 1949, while riding in her son's automobile, which he was driving, collided with a truck in Baltimore. At the time, George and Florence Shuck, his wife, were living in Silver Spring. Mrs. Nellie Shuck returned to her home in Frostburg about three days after the accident.

Sold Business

About July 1, 1949, Shuck sold a jewelry business which he operated in Silver Spring and his home there and sent his household furniture to his wife's parents in Cumberland.

The equity case was filed in November, 1949, based on his failure to comply with the cooperation clause of his policy. This states: "The insured shall cooperate with the company and, upon the company's request, shall attend hearings and trials and shall assist in effecting settlements, securing and giving evidence, obtaining the attendance of witnesses and in the conduct of suits.

In the opinion, Judge Henderson cites that Shuck arranged with G. Gregg Everngam, Silver Spring attorney, to represent his mother. However, Everngam never saw Mrs. Shuck. Everngam subsequently wrote to the insurer offering to settle the claim for $500. The insurer offered only $350.

A few days before Shuck left for Florida, where he intended to stay, in November, 1949, he took his wife to the office of Edward J. Ryan, local attorney, and advised the attorney that he was leaving November 18. Suit was filed November 17, 1949, by Ryan on behalf of Nellie M. Shuck. The next day the son went to the sheriff's office here, accepted service of the summons and immediately left for Florida.

Judge Henderson's opinion concludes:

"From the foregoing it will be seen that Shuck's conduct went far beyond mere failure to cooperate. He was not only assisting his mother to make claim; he was actually directing the prosecution of it.

"Had the mother recovered a judgment in the suit against the son, and thereafter sued the insurer, upon the facts being proved which have been proved in this case, it would be the duty of the court to direct a verdict for the insurer."

In this equity case the insurance company was represented by Attorneys W. Earle Cobey and C. William Gilchrist. George Franklin Shuck and Florence C. Shuck were represented by Attorney Harold E. Naughton. Nellie M. Shuck was represented by Attorney Ryan.

Court House Vestibule Painting Starts

Two painters yesterday began interior painting in the Allegany County Court House.

Clyde S. Kuhns, Narrows Park, last Friday was awarded the contract to paint the vestibule and first-floor men's rest room at the Court House by the Allegany County Board of Commissioners on a bid of $60.

Governor's Veto Also Ends County Youth Commission

Governor McKeldin's veto of the bill to create a Maryland Youth Commission also has written finis to the Allegany County Youth Commission, which had been functioning locally in cooperation with the state agency, according to Homer S. Higgins, who had been serving as county chairman.

Higgins said yesterday that he will send individual letters to all of the approximately 30 persons in this county who served with him on the County Youth Commission. Local members were appointed by the Allegany County Board of Commissioners.

His letter reads in part:

"I want to take this opportunity to thank all of you who participated in what we believe was one of the greatest projects ever undertaken to pull together material on the resources and needs in relation to youth and children. More than 30 persons took part in the work. Especially do I want to thank the public and private agencies and individuals who gave so unstintingly of their time."

The Maryland Youth Commission was set up originally by former Governor Herbert R. O'Conor and reactivated by former Governor William Preston Lane. It had two paid staff members — an assistant to the director and a stenographer. The former will leave June 1 and the latter sometime during June. This will liquidate the State Commission.

Sees Duplication

In his veto message Governor McKeldin wrote concerning the Commission:

"I believe the creation of a new

Legion Auxiliary To Sponsor Poppy Day Program Saturday

Saturday is Poppy Day!

Fort Cumberland Post No. 13, American Legion Auxiliary, will join with all other Legion auxiliaries in the nation Saturday to help the sale of the crepe paper poppy in recognition of the heroic sacrifices of our disabled American veterans.

The sale of the poppy is conducted entirely by volunteer workers and the proceeds are used for the relief of disabled veterans and dependents of veterans who are dead or disabled.

The purpose of the auxiliary program is to place the symbol of the heroic sacrafice of war veterans before every American and at the same time give those disabled veterans a chance at employment making the tiny flower.

The resolution making the poppy the Legion's Memorial flower was adopted at the National Convention in Cleveland, Ohio, September, 1920. At first silk poppies made by French widows and orphans in France were used then the first American poppies were made by veterans in hospitals of Minnesota in 1922.

The crepe paper poppy was selected because it provided the maximum of work for the disabled men with low cost. Occupational therapy departments in the hospitals recognize the program as having high therapeutic value and the money earned helps the veterans keep their families and work their way to recovery more quickly.

Material for making the poppies is supplied by legion auxiliaries which also pays the wages of the disabled veterans throughout the manufacturing period.

Davis, LaVale, is shown above being congratulated following the announcement of her appointment as 1951-52 editor-in-chief of the Pasquino, student newspeper of Potomac State College, Keyser, W. Va. The announcement was made last night by Dr. Elizabeth A. Atwater, faculty advisor, at the annual press banquet at Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club. State Pension Plan Rejected By Firemen

Members of the Cumberland Fire Department this week rejected a proposal to join the State Retirement System.

The plan to abandon the present pension system in favor of joining the state plan was lost when members voted 22 for to 21 against the change. A three-fourth majority is required to make any change in the present plan.

Officials said there is a possibility of reconsideration of the action before July.

If the department should desire to enter the state plan, the action would have to be taken before the 1951 levy is set up, Arthur B. Gibson, city auditor, said yesterday.

He added that the city would be unable to accept the plan unless the budget included the cost of the accrued liability of members of the department.

All city employes except members of the Police and Fire Department are now members of the state system.

The Fire Department Pension Fund was set up in August, 1935, with members and the city each paying one per cent of the employes' salaries. In 1940, worker's contributions were upped to three per cent, with the city contributing five per cent.

Firemen said the fund will be overdrawn at the rate of $1,077 a month by June 1 and that the fund would be depleted in about 19 months at the present rate of pension payments.

The department also announced the election of a new Fire Department Pension Board. It includes Fire Chief J. T. Defibaugh, Harold Hipsley, of West Side Fire Company, and Herman Miller, of East Side Fire Company.

Oakland Newsman Cites Value Of College Degree

LaVale Student New Editor Of Pasquino

Completion of one's college education is an important factor in assuring the modern-day youth of a prosperous future" Robert B. Sincell, business manager of the Oakland Republican, told members of the Pasquino staff last night.

The occasion was the annual press banquet of the Potomac State College student publication held at Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club. Sincell pointed out that present day industry is inclined to rely more on the holder of a college degree for training in its particular field.

Stressing the importance of completing their college education Sincell told the students there are "few self made men nowadays" who work day and night in search for an education.

Sincell was editor of the Pasquino in 1947-48 in his Sophomore year. He graduated from West Virginia University's School of Journalism in 1950, where he served as business manager of the University newspaper, the Daily Athenaeum, in his senior year. Sincell's father, Donald R. Sincell, managing editor of the Oakland Republican was speaker at the press dinner in 1947.

Melvin McKenzie, graduating circulation manager of the college publication acted as toastmaster during the banquet. Announcement of Chief Staff Positions for 1951-52 was made by Dr. Elizabeth A. Atwater, faculty advisor, and a Cumberland student, Peggy Jo Davis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Davis, LaVale, will be editor-in-chief next year.

Ormond Knippenburg, Midland, will serve as news editor, Delores Smith, Fort Ashby, business manager, and Harry McCulloh, Piedmont, circulation manager.

Guests attending the banquet included Dr and Mrs. E. E. Church, Dean and Mrs. K. S. McKee, and Mrs. Robert B. Sincell.

State Police learned yesterday that Collett left Morgantown two hours before his car crashed headon with a tractor-trailer. His father, Dr. A. R. Collett, is assistant dean of the West Virginia University College of Arts and Science.

Collett, who suffered a skull fracture, broken jaw and internal injuries, was returning to Cumberland when the accident occurred near Guntertown. A graduate chemist of West Virginia University, he is highly regarded by associates at the Kelly plant.

Battle-Weary Korea Veteran Recalls Past Year At Front

By CHARLES H. KELLY
News Staff Writer

"Being back in the United States just doesn't seem possible. It seems too good to be true." These words indicate the feeling of battle-weary M/Sgt. Richard Harper, 545 Fairview Street, who is home on furlough from Korea on the rotation plan.

M/SGT. RICHARD HARPER

The twice-wounded veteran of the Korean conflict received word of his trip back home while lying in a hospital bed on a Danish Hospital Ship the "Jutelindia" where he had been for 30 days.

Harper, a 27-year-old ruddy faced GI, had ben wounded for the second time in the Chungchong area on the 16th of March and got shell fragments in the back and legs. The first time he was hit was in August of last year in the Waejon campaign and this time he spent 50 days in a hospital in Japan.

Medics Act Quickly

He commented that due to quick action by the medics his life was saved. Harper enlisted in May, 1949, at Cumberland and after processing at Camp Stoneman, Calif., was made Pfc and shipped overseas to Japan with the 1st Cavalry Division.

In World War II he served three years in the CBI and was a member of the famed "Merrill's Marauders" which fought up through Burma. He commented on the "happy-go-lucky" outfit which really came through when the "chips were down." With the marauders he was a demolition specialist working with mines and bobby traps yet escaped injury throughout the three years.

When asked how he rose in rank so quickly the last year, he replied such a large turnover of men occured in the early Korean campaign he received his "stripes" in quick order. His enlistment is up in May of next year but he expects to "re-up" for an indefinite period.

Caught In Death Trap

He recalled being caught in one of the "death traps" in Korea and commented on how the outfit fought its way out. Harper remarked that the Chinese were fighting with anything and everything against the U. N. forces.

He holds high regard for the medics since he had occasion to benefit by their efforts on the field of battle. He smiled when commenting on PX rations and said the "Stars and Stripes" is keeping the soldier's well informed.

When asked what he thought of General MacArthur's ouster he said it was quite a blow to the boys on the front yet General Ridgway is a capable leader and well up on fighting tactics.

After his well earned rest at home M/Sgt Harper will report for reassignment at Fort George G. Meade, Md.

First Street Route Opened For Traffic

Construction work on the grading of First Street from South to Maple Street is nearing completion, Martin M. Corrigan, street superintendent, reported yesterday.

Still to be completed is the stabilization of the surface of the street, which will be done after the roadway has settled.

Only a temporary surfacing sufficient to stabilize the roadway is planned.

The street was opened for traffic this week.

Work on the 2,100-foot project, included grading a roadway and disposing of surplus materials.

The work, which was estimated to cost some $7,000, included several culverts and gutter drains. Construction began late last month.

The street will provide a new traffic artery from Mapleside to South Cumberland.

Furniture Bids On Mt. Savage School Received

One complete bid and 10 partial bids on furniture for the new Mt. Savage School were opened by the Allegany County Board of Education at its office on Washington Street yesterday afternoon but a decision was withheld pending a complete tabluation of the proposals.

Although none of the school officials made a complete tabulation yesterday afternoon, an informal check indicated the cost of students' desks, tables and chairs, science laboratory furniture, library teachers' desks and chairs, auditorium chairs, office furniture and filing cabinets would run above $40,000.

Analysis Planned

School Superintendent Charles L. Kopp said an item by item analysis would be made. He added that contracts will be awarded to low bidders providing quality meets minimum standards.

Concerned over the high cost of furniture, Kopp observed that prices on some of the items were three or four times what they were in the mid-1930s when furniture was bought for Fort Hill High School.

Present for the bid-opening besides Kopp were Edgar A. Dashiell, board chairman; Wilbur V. Wilson, board member; Richard T. Rizer, assistant superintendent of schools, and representatives of some of the bidding firms.

Bids were submitted by four Cumberland firms, three others from Baltimore, two from Pennsylvania and one each from Delaware and Virginia.

One Complete Bid

The only complete bid was presented by the Flowers School Equipment Company, Richmond, Va., which submitted proposals aggregating $42,260.87, according to an unofficial tabulation.

Partial bidders included The Marquis Company, 128 Bedford Street; Ankeney Company, 27 North Centre Street; B. Beneman and Sons, 41 North Mechanic Street; Cumberland Office Supply Company, 17 North Liberty Street; James T. Vernay & Sons Company, Baltimore; Kurtz Brothers, Clearfield, Pa.; Bradley Distributing Company, Middletown, Del.; Edward L. Rieha Company, Baltimore; William H. Blohm, Jr., Baltimore, and Gaylord Company, Philadelphia.

The Mayor and Council on Monday confirmed appointment of a 14-member staff for the swim center.

Judge Rules Insurance Firm Is Not Liable

Says Insured Did Not Cooperate

An opinion and decree which cited that the Fidelity and Casualty Company of New York is not liable on a certain automobile liability insurance policy because the insured failed to abide by the cooperation clause were filed yesterday in Allegany County Circuit Court by Associate Judge George Henderson.

In his decree, Judge Henderson wrote that the insurance company, is not liable under its automobile insurance policy which was issued on or about May 1, 1949, to George Franklin Shuck and Florence C. Shuck, his wife, or to Nellie M. Shuck, his mother, for injuries suffered by Nellie M. Shuck on or about June 17, 1949, while a passenger in a car driven by her son.

Equity Suit

This decree was entered in an equity suit which was filed in Allegany County Circuit Court by the Fidelity and Casualty Company of New York against George Franklin Shuck, Florence C. Shuck and Nellie M. Shuck.

Judge Henderson's decree also referred to a $5,000 damage suit brought by Nellie M. Shuck against her son, George Franklin Shuck. He decreed that the order passed November 22, 1949, enjoining Nellie M. Shuck from taking further proceedings in the suit by her against her son be continued pending any appeal. Should no appeal be taken, the injunction is dissolved as of the 31st day after the date of the decree.

In his lengthy opinion, Judge Henderson observes Mrs. Nellie M. Shuck was injured on June 17, 1949, while riding in her son's automobile, which he was driving, collided with a truck in Baltimore. At the time, George and Florence Shuck, his wife, were living in Silver Spring. Mrs. Nellie Shuck returned to her home in Frostburg about three days after the accident.

Sold Business

About July 1, 1949, Shuck sold a jewelry business which he operated in Silver Spring and his home there and sent his household furniture to his wife's parents in Cumberland.

The equity case was filed in November, 1949, based on his failure to comply with the cooperation clause of his policy. This states: "The insured shall cooperate with the company and, upon the company's request, shall attend hearings and trials and shall assist in effecting settlements, securing and giving evidence, obtaining the attendance of witnesses and in the conduct of suits.

In the opinion, Judge Henderson cites that Shuck arranged with G. Gregg Everngam, Silver Spring attorney, to represent his mother. However, Everngam never saw Mrs. Shuck. Everngam subsequently wrote to the insurer offering to settle the claim for $500. The insurer offered only $350.

A few days before Shuck left for Florida, where he intended to stay, in November, 1949, he took his wife to the office of Edward J. Ryan, local attorney, and advised the attorney that he was leaving November 18. Suit was filed November 17, 1949, by Ryan on behalf of Nellie M. Shuck. The next day the son went to the sheriff's office here, accepted service of the summons and immediately left for Florida.

Judge Henderson's opinion concludes:

"From the foregoing it will be seen that Shuck's conduct went far beyond mere failure to cooperate. He was not only assisting his mother to make claim; he was actually directing the prosecution of it.

"Had the mother recovered a judgment in the suit against the son, and thereafter sued the insurer, upon the facts being proved which have been proved in this case, it would be the duty of the court to direct a verdict for the insurer."

In this equity case the insurance company was represented by Attorneys W. Earle Cobey and C. William Gilchrist. George Franklin Shuck and Florence C. Shuck were represented by Attorney Harold E. Naughton. Nellie M. Shuck was represented by Attorney Ryan.

Governor's Veto Also Ends County Youth Commission

Governor McKeldin's veto of the bill to create a Maryland Youth Commission also has written finis to the Allegany County Youth Commission, which had been functioning locally in cooperation with the state agency, according to Homer S. Higgins, who had been serving as county chairman.

Higgins said yesterday that he will send individual letters to all of the approximately 30 persons in this county who served with him on the County Youth Commission. Local members were appointed by the Allegany County Board of Commissioners.

His letter reads in part:

"I want to take this opportunity to thank all of you who participated in what we believe was one of the greatest projects ever undertaken to pull together material on the resources and needs in relation to youth and children. More than 30 persons took part in the work. Especially do I want to thank the public and private agencies and individuals who gave so unstintingly of their time."

The Maryland Youth Commission was set up originally by former Governor Herbert R. O'Conor and reactivated by former Governor William Preston Lane. It had two paid staff members — an assistant to the director and a stenographer. The former will leave June 1 and the latter sometime during June. This will liquidate the State Commission.

Sees Duplication

In his veto message Governor McKeldin wrote concerning the Commission:

"I believe the creation of a new
